U. S. Settles Defense Pact Dispute With Argentines

Move to Limit Zone Of Security Halted After Vandenberg Cites U. N. Charter

Petropolis, Brazil, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Argentina tonight withdrew a proposed amendment which would have excluded from the proposed defense treaty any attack on United States-held territory outside the hemisphere defense zone.

Quitandinha, Brazil, Aug. 29 (AP).—A flareup between Argentina and the United States at the 19-nation Inter-American Conference over an Argentine move to limit the defense pact to territories under the "effective jurisdiction" of the members was settled amicably tonight, key conference delegates said.

These sources said an understanding was reached that Argentina would withdraw a controversial amendment, introduced at a meeting of the committee on aggression which had been expected to give quick approval to a Pole-to-Pole security zone. It was agreed at the same time that the United States would consent to a change in the debated treaty article.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) United States delegate, had declareed the Argentine amendment a restriction on even the obligation to consult in the case of aggression and a violation of the United Nations Charter.

Vandenberg Curious

The Argentine proposal would apply the principle of "effective jurisdiction" only within the Pole-to-Pole security zone in which any attack would constitute an aggression against all the American republics.

In submitting the amendment, Argentine Delegate Enrique V. Corominas asked:

"If there is an attack on the North American zone of Germany, would this be an attack against the American Continent?"

A treaty article approved Wednesday would invoke defense measures in the case of "invasion affecting a region which is under the effective jurisdiction of other (American) states."

Vandenberg said he wanted to find out "in a friendly spirit" what the proposal meant.

Sees Charter Violation

Vandenberg referred to the first article of the draft treaty which he said stated as a fundamental principle that an attack against one American state "is an attack against all."

"If we do not give any value to that, we do not agree on anything," he said. "We cannot discriminate between what is crime inside the Pole-to-Pole zone and what is crime outside the zone. If I understand the theory, we are discriminating only on the procedure when an aggression is occurring inside (the security zone) and outside. . . . The only obligation when there is an attack outside is to consult.

"I submit that the proposal of the Argentine delegation is to limit the obligation to consult. Since that is the situation, the final net result would be to delimit the crime of aggression to one zone. We cannot do that, because we would be violating the U. N. Charter itself. No meeting of foreign ministers or the Security Council can deny the fundamental obligation under the Charter, which is to oppose aggression anywhere it occurs."

Four Support Argentina

Vandenberg asked the Argentine to withdraw his proposal. He added he was "sure that if an attack on the American zone in Germany occurred, my good friend from Argentina would be happy to talk it over with us to see if it constituted a threat against other American states."

Argentina was supported by Brazil, Colombia, Mexico and Peru. Editor's Note.]

Chest-Council Coordinating Move Mapped

Voice Would Be Given Participating Groups Under Proposed Setup

Formation of a new Chest-Council designed to bring agency and public participation in private welfare into better balance has been proposed by executive bodies of the Community Chest of Washington and the Council of Social Agencies.

The recommendation was announced yesterday in a joint statement by Lee D. Butler, Washington Chest president, and Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, president of the Washington Council.

Creation of a single board of trustees is proposed, to replace the present two independent boards. The board, to consist of 312 members, would have the same number of representatives from the public at large and member agencies.

Limited to 2 Apiece

Membership in the delegate group would be open to all federations of civic organizations, and to any "city-wide community organizations with general civic, welfare, religious or professional nature that have established departments or committees carrying out activities of a health and welfare nature."

Representation is to be limited to two delegates chosen by each member organization. No member community organization, however, is to be represented by more than one delegate at a time in the Chest-Council board of trustees. A number of major member organizations in the delegate body, to be designated annually by the trustees, are to be represented on the board of trustees with one member each.

The reorganization and amalgamation now awaits final action of the Chest trustees, the delegate body of the Council and the boards of directors of member agencies of the Chest and of the Council.

Five Committees Planned

Present functions of the Community Chest of Washington, and the primary planning function of the Council of Social Agencies would be carried out by a single staff through five standing committees to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the executive committee. These committees are:

New Step to Take Effect After Truman Returns From Rio

President Truman yesterday filled six of the key posts in the unified national defense organization and revealed the new setup will go into effect on his return from South America next month.

He selected two heads of large corporations—both World War I veterans—and four ranking World War II officers for the major posts. They are:

Maj. Gen. William H. Draper, jr., now chief economic adviser to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany, to be Undersecretary of War. Draper, who was a New York investment banker before entering the Army during the war, will become Undersecretary of the Army when the unification act goes into effect.

Arthur Middleton Hill, 2101 Connecticut ave., chairman of the board of directors of the Atlantic Greyhound Corp., to be chairman of the National Security Resources Board. The board will plan for use of the Nation's materials and facilities in wartime.

Sidney W. Souers, of St. Louis, a wartime rear admiral, to be executive secretary of the National Security Council. The council, which will consist of the President, Secretaries of State, Defense, Army, Navy and Air Force and Chairman of the Resources Board, will coordinate foreign and military policy.

Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, deputy commandant of the National War College here, to be director of the joint staff of 100 Army, Navy and Air Forces, to be created.

Thomas J. Hargrave, president of Eastman Kodak Co., to be chairman of the new munitions board. A resident of Rochester, N. Y., Hargrave became chairman of the present Army-Navy munitions board in June.

Shorter '48 Meat Supply Is Forecast

Agriculture Dept. Economist Sees 5% Drop From Record High of This Year

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Next year's meat supply will be at least five per cent smaller than this year, Charles A. Burmeister, Agriculture Economist of the Department of Agriculture predicted yesterday.

High prices for feed, due largely to this year's prospects for a poor corn crop, have caused growers to market livestock in unprecedented numbers this year, Burmeister told the Sandhills Cattle Association at Broken Bow, Nebr.

Not only will meat be scarcer, but better grades will be in even smaller supply, he said.

Burmeister, a veteran of 37 years in the Agriculture Department, is recognized as the leading Government authority on the Nation's meat supplies.

The total meat output this year, he estimated at 23 billion pounds, the greatest on record.

"Consumers tend to appraise the meat supply in terms of the prices they have to pay," Burmeister added. "Since current prices are far above prewar, there probably is now fairly general belief among consumers that meat supplies are short.

"Meat prices are directly related to the level of consumer income. The high prices paid for meat now, compared with prewar reflect the great increase in consumer incomes resulting from the higher level of wages and salaries paid and the marked increase in employment.

"Disposable income per capita, that left for spending after taxes, is more than double what it was in 1937-41, and retail meat prices for the year to date have averaged slightly more than double the average for that period."

Federal inspection records, Burmeister said, "show more cattle and calves going to slaughter than in any previous year."

During the first seven months of the year the combined total was about five per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1945, the previous high record.

"If slaughter during the remainder of this year should show the same rate of increase, the grand total for the year would be near 37 million head," he said.

"In 1941 the total was less than 26 million, and all during the late 30s it ranged from that figure down to slightly less than 24 million."

Going Into Reserves

The result, he said, is that the country is going heavily into the reserves of cattle normally carried for further growth, replacements and expansion.

Wheat and Oats Hit New All-Time Highs

Chicago, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Wheat and oats future prices hit new all-time highs today on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The price of wheat for September delivery soared to $2.55¾ a bushel. It was the third successive day that wheat futures had hit new high. September oats jumped to $1.12 a bushel.

Zone Output Level Keyed To '36 Rate

Self-Supporting German Area by 1952, Aim of U. S., British Program

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Berlin, Aug. 29.—The level of industry for British and American zones of Germany is to be boosted during the next three years to a rate equalling that of 1936, it was disclosed today.

The new plan, announced jointly by Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Gen. Sir Sholto Douglas, commanders of the American and British zones, prescribes very considerably higher levels than had obtained under the four-power agreement of March, 1946.

The higher schedule is necessitated, they said, because assumptions of the previous program were not fulfilled and were unrealistic.

Under the old program "neither the bizonal area nor all of Germany can regain economic health," they said. It had proposed a level of industry equal to 70 to 75 per cent of that of 1936.

Self-Supporting by 1952

Achievement of the new level will make the bi-zonal area self-supporting by 1942, the announcement said.

The key figure in the new schedule is the proposed lifting of steel production to 10.7 million tons annually. This is necessary to support the new level of the rest of the bi-zonal industry. The present rate is less than one third of this. The allowable quota under the old plan was five million tons.

Though the new figure for all industry is 100 per cent of that of 1936 in absolute measurement, it is emphasized that already six million new inhabitants (mostly refugees from the Russian zone) had been added to the two Western zones. By 1952 their population will be 8 to 10 million above that of 1936. Accordingly the per capita production capacity will be only 75 per cent of the 1936 rate.

500 More Calories

If production reaches the new quotas, America and Britain would not have further monetary outlays. The zones, though self-supporting, would have only a 2000-calory per day diet level, about 500 more than the present standard.

The plan has been long under preparation and has been the subject of bitter argument from the French this week in London. No agreement was reached and the French, as announced in yesterday's three-power communique, still maintain their objections.

At a press conference, Clay ducked a direct answer to a question as to whether the plan would nevertheless be put into effect. But it appeared there would not have been any point in announcing it if the British and Americans

Tsaldaris Organizes Single-Party Cabinet; May Lose Test Vote

Efforts by U. S. To Obtain Broader Government Fail; Zervas Due to Stay

By L. S. Chakales

Athens, Aug. 29 (AP).—Constantin Tsaldaris, leader of the Populist (Monarcist) Party, tonight organized a Greek cabinet entirely from his own followers and set himself for a confidence vote in a showdown with a solid opposition in Parliament.

The all-Populist cabinet, with the full support of the Rightist, Gen. Napoleon Zervas, was scheduled to be sworn in later tonight at the royal palace by Archbishop Damaskinos, ending a seven-day government crisis.

Such a solution was contrary to the efforts of United States representatives who throughout tried to convince Greek political leaders to get together and form a broadly representative government.

Defeat Is Likely

With only 166 votes, even with the support of Zervas' nationalists, Tsaldaris appeared certain to be defeated in a confidence test if the opposition ranks held firm.

Tsaldaris appeared angry following a meeting with opposition leaders summoned by Demetrios Maximos, resigned Prime Minister, who was announced Thursday as the agreed choice of all political leaders to head the new government.

One of the participants walked out of the meeting after a few minutes and said there had been a "complete breakdown."

Until then the Greek governmental crisis had remained in deadlock, with both sides hoping that Loy Henderson, U. S. State Department's chief of Near Eastern affairs en route from Washington, would bring a solution.

Zervas' Post an Issue

The opposition parties were solidly lined up against Tsaldaris, foreign minister in the cabinet that resigned last Saturday and formerly designated early in the crisis to form a new cabinet.

The issue was the Ministry of Public Order, with Tsaldaris determined to secure the post for his loyal ally, Zervas.

The three Centrist political leaders, George Papandreou, Panayotis Kanellopoulos and Sophocles Venizelos, supported by the national liberal Stylianos Gonatas, and reformist Apostle Alexandris, were set against Zervas. The three Centrists resigned last Saturday after they had alleged the conduct of the campaign against guerillas by Zervas and War Minister George Stratos was ineffective, and had demanded their posts. The three resignations caused collapse of the government.

[The United Press reported that United States Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh had virtually ordered Zervas to stay out of the new government.

Russia Ratifies Peace Pacts With Five German Satellites

London, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—The Presidium of Russia's Supreme Soviet ratified the peace treaties for the five German satellites of Italy, Romanoa, Hungary, Bulgaria and Finland today, the Moscow radio announced tonight.

The ratification came after months of speculation in Allied diplomatic quarters as to the time when Russia would take action and thus make an important step toward the withdrawal of its occupation troops from eastern Europe.

But the final steps of depositing ratifications by all signatory countries remained to be taken, and until the treaty restoring Austrian independence is written, Russia will be permitted to keep troops in Hungary and Romania to "safeguard communications" to its Austrian occupation zone.

The United States, Britain and France had ratified previously those treaties which they signed.

Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland likewise had ratified their treaties and the Italian government had been authorized by its National Assembly to ratify its treaty.

When the instruments of ratification are formally and finally deposited, Allied armies of occupation will be obliged to get out within 90 days.

In the case of the United States and Great Britain, their troops will evacuate Italy. In the case of Russia its troops will evacuate Bulgaria but will remain in Hungary and Romania until the Austrian treaty has been written.

U. S. Calls Off Korea Parleys With Russia

Meeting of Big Four Suggested to Plan Early Independence

By the United Press

The United States broke off its futile, two-year negotiations with Russia over creation of a provisional government for Korea today. It proposed instead that a Big Four conference be held here next month to consider a seven-point plan for early and complete Korean independence.

The American action was interpreted as a move to get the troublesome Korean question before the United Nations General Assembly, where Russia could not exercise her veto power.

If the Big Four and the General Assembly were incapable of settling the problem, the United States presumably would go ahead on its own with a program of economic reconstruction in the U. S.-occupied southern half of Korea. Informed sources have indicated that Congress would be asked to put up as much as 100 million dollars a year for that program.

Note Sharply Worded

In a sharply worded note handed to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov in Moscow Thursday, the State Department made it clear it sees no further use in dragging out the bilateral negotiations between American and Russian commissions in Korea.

The note proposed that representatives of the United States, Russia, Britain and China meet here September 8 to take up a concrete American plan that would speed the withdrawal of United States and Soviet troops from Korea and enable the Koreans to choose their own government.

Copies of the note were delivered to the British and Chinese governments.

Russian Reply in Doubt

There was some doubt that Russia would agree to join the conference, but none at all that she would turn down the American independence formula. Dispatches from Seoul, Korea, said Russian commission members there already had rejected the seven-point plan as "pure propaganda."

The present negotiations in Seoul began in May, 1947, after Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Molotov had agreed on procedure for consulting Korean political parties and organizations. But the Marshall-Molotov "agreement" did not work out, and negotiations have

Prelate Urges British Party Unity Meeting

Round-Table Solution To Crisis Offered by Archbishop of York

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—Dr. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York and second ranking prelate of the Church of England, in an unusual move proposed today that Prime Minister Attlee call a round-table conference of all political parties to save Britain from what he termed economic ruin.

The archbishop's statement appeared in his diocesan weekly paper, as a spreading coal strike, accompanied by a threat of violence to the head of the National Union of Mine Workers, spread through Yorkshire in a new threat to Britain's recovery program.

The National Coal Board, which administers the nationalized pits, said 16,701 men were on strike at 14 mines, but reports from the area quoted by the British Press Association put the number at 25,000 men and 16 mines.

Would "Show America"

Dr. Garbett said a coalition government was "at present entirely out of the question," but that "united action by all parties" would help the national production effort and "show America that the whole nation was united in its determination" to survive the economic crisis.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, head of the government while Attlee is on vacation, declined comment on the archbishop's proposal.

A Conservative Party spokesman said that "while we cannot support a coalition, if any proposals of a national character were made, the Conservatives would support them and would send representatives to a round-table conference."

Strike Spread Feared

The Manchester Guardian, usually sympathetic to the Labor government, said today that the recently announced cuts in food, gasoline and foreign travel were "a resounding failure" taken by themselves and urged that Parliament, now in summer recess, be recalled.

The wildcat coal strike monopolized newspaper headlines.

Will Lawther, president of the Mineworkers' Union, denounced the strike as "blackmail." A gallows with the words "Burn Will Lawther" later was painted on a wall at the Grimethorpe Colliery, where the strike began August 11.

Union officials said they feared a further spread of the strike.

'Not Guilty' Is Judge Raedy's Plea to Hit-and-Run Charge

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A plea of "not guilty" was filed yesterday in behalf of Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy in connection with a hit-and-run accident in which her car was involved August 19. Trial was set for 1:30 p. m. on September 11.

Although Judge Raedy was presiding in the same court at the same time, she did not leave her chambers to attend the arraignment.

Her attorney, Charlees E. Ford, invoking Rule 14 of the Municipal Code, entered the plea before Judge Nadine Gallagher, the only other woman Municipal Court judge.

Judge Raedy failed twice to make promised appearances for the arraignment which was due to take place Thursday. Her attorney pleaded illness on her behalf.

In accordance with Rule 14, Attorney Ford had written authorization from Judge Raedy to file her plea.

He did not indicate yesterday whether the judge would appear at her trial on September 11. Under the rule Judge Raedy would not have to appear if she gave written consent for the trial to proceed without her and had permission of the presiding judge.

Scheduled to be sitting in traffic court on the trial date is Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey.

Judge Raedy's appearance on the bench yetserday after two days' illness came as a surprise. She presided in Landlord and Tenant branch of Municipal Court from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., hearing two cases.

Numbers Writer Risks Trial Before Neilson—And Regrets

By Howard Dutkin
Post Reporter

Numbers writer Frederick Bailey, 21, defied judicial lightning yesterday—and got hit to the tune of $100 fine and 45 days in jail.

Bailey was the first numbers operator in 24 days to chance a trial before Municipal Court Judge George C. Neilson, who had given fair warning on August 5 that he would jail all such violators.

Since then, those accused on lottery charges have used every possible means to avoid facing the judge—delays, continuances, jury trial requests—in an effort to find a more lenient jurist.

But Bailey, who lives at 1335 Huntoon's Court sw., decided to take a chance with a not guilty plea. Tempting fate further, he waived counsel and defended himself.

Police said they found $6 in quarters in Bailey's pocket and a pad containing more than a score of numbers.

"I found the pad and was just trying to explain to a friend how the number game works," Bailey told the court. The money, he said, he had "earned at odd jobs."

"Too much coincidence," Neilson remarked. "You are detrimental to the community. The only way to handle people of your kind is to send them to jail as I promised I would do."

The judge then pronounced sentence, adding that if Bailey couldn't pay the fine he must serve 45 additional days.

Hirshberg Gets Prison In POW Case

New York, Aug. 29 (INS).—The Navy announced today that Chief Signalman Harold E. Hirshberg, 29, of Brooklyn, has been sentenced to 10 months imprisonment and dishonorable discharge for maltreatment of fellow prisoners of war in Japanese internment camps.

Hirshberg

Hirshberg, married and the father of one child, was convicted recently by a court-martial on two of nine specifications contained in three charges. He has been ordered to serve his term at the United States naval retraining command at Norfolk, Va.

The sentence, approved this morning by Rear Admiral Monroe Kelly, commandant of the Third Naval District, is to be forwarded to Washington for review by the Secretary of the Navy.

The trial board, after a three-week trial, found him guilty of striking two American POWs. Hirshberg claimed the did it only to impress the Japanese and to ease the hardships of the men themselves.

Tsaldaris Picks Cabinet

quoted as saying that MacVeagh told Zervas American public opinion has been "greatly shocked" by mass arrests, indiscriminate gendarmerie attacks and general "dictatorial and fascist" methods he authorized to combat guerilla activity while permitting rightist armed bands to terrorize the population.—Editor's note.]

Expects U. S. Support

Tsaldaris, who recently returned from the United States where he had a series of conferences with State Department officials, was believed to be under the impression that Henderson would look favorably on his position.

The Centrist opposition leaders hoped their arguments would convince Henderson. He was expected to arrive soon on the announced mission of taking back to Washington a full report on the Greek situation.

Dwight P. Griswold, chief of the U. S. aid mission here, told a news conference he did not think Henderson's coming "has anything to do with the government crisis. I think it's fine he is coming to get a first-hand view."

He said the work of his mission was handicapped because some officials "we work with don't know if they are in or out of the government."

MacVeagh issued a formal statement denying recurring reports of a rift between himself and Griswold. He said the United States Government wanted a Greek government formed on as broad a basis as possible and that he and Griswold were working to that end and no other.

A usually reliable source quoted Papandreou as saying he had been told by Griswold the inclusion of Zervas and Stratos in the cabinet would be "inadvisable."

Meanwhile, the Greek army said it was engaging in large-scale operations in the Phlorina area on the flank of the Monastir Gap leading to Yugoslavia. Planes and mountain artillery were being used by the army against Mount Kalmatchilan and Vitsi, guerilla strongholds.

New Yorker Held For Fleecing Washingtonians

Arrest of a "smooth-talking" New Yorker on charges of fleecing a Washington bank attorney and businessman of $37,000 was disclosed by the FBI here yesterday.

The FBI said Arthur R. Anderson, 39, is charged with violation of the National Stolen Properties act and will be given a removal hearing for return to Washington, September 9.

The FBI declined to reveal names of the victims in the series of "check kitings," but said the man began his operations by opening accounts in a bank here and in New York; then making his cleaning in two swift check-writing operations on October 16 and 17 of 1946.

Devers Would Build Force for Possible Service in Greece

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Fortress Monroe, Va., Aug. 29.—A world-wide "streamlining" campaign has been ordered throughout the Army aimed at eliminating all unessential units and functions, Gen. Jacob L. Devers reveals.

Objective of the program, the Army Ground Forces chief said, is to release soldiers from less important servicing jobs to combat forces.

"We hope," he told The Washington Post, "to obtain enough soldiers to establish one regimental combat command in the Third Division—some 4000 officers and men."

Double in Brass

The move is closely connected with the prospect that the United States may be forced to send troops to Greece. If the War Department is called upon to send an expeditionary force there or another troble spot, Army officials say that a least a reinforced division will be required and that all or most of the troops will have to come from within the United States.

At present, there are less than 2½ combat divisions available in the "Army in being" at home. And they dobue in brass on post housekeeping duties, training reservists, etc. The rest of the Army is tied down to occupation duties overseas or servicing those units.

The Third Division at Camp Campbell, Ky., now has only a skeletonized staff and no combat forces. If the streamlining program succeeds in building up the division from one third to one half strength, the job of providing forces for a possible assignment to Greece will be slightly eased.

Surveying All Staffs

General Devers says that the Army is going over its units with a fine-tooth comb in its streamlining drive.

"We are trying to squeeze men out of the 'pipe-lines' to Europe and the Far East," he stated. "One way is to cut down delays at embarkation ports. We are surveying all staffs to see if they can be trimmed. All servicing functions are being reviewed to see if their contribution outweighs the great need for combat soldiers."

As an example of how detailed the survey is, Devers said he had decided to eliminate a daily news bulletin issued by the Army Ground Forces. This saved not only the staff which prepared it, but also 15 minutes daily that everyone spent reading it. And most of the material was duplicated in the morning newspaper, he declared.

No Armor Overeas

The only divisions now in the United States are the 82d Airborne at Fort Bragg, N. C., the 2d Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Wash., and in Colorado, and the 3d Armored Division in Texas. The latter has only one of its three combat commands in service. The other two are on paper.

"It seems like a crime to me that the United States should be so short of armored forces," Devers declared. "That one-third of a division is all we have. There are none overseas."

Shipwreck Work Starts

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Work on removing the wreck of the river freighter Seminole, sunk 35 miles from Thimble Shoal Light, last April 12, in a collision with a steamer, was begun today, according to an announcement by the Coast Guard for the U. S. Army District Engineer's force here.

Shipmasters were warned not to approach nearer than one-half mile to the scene of operations between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m., since explosives will be used in demolishing the wreck.

Harnessed Version of A-Bomb Is Producing Steady Energy

New Reaction Pile Is Major Stride Toward Power Plant

Los Alamos, N. Mex., Aug. 29 (AP).—A significant stride toward an atomic power plant, involving a harnessed version of the atomic bomb, was announced today by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The commission said it had developed an atomic reaction plant, called a "pile," which actually is "a controlled form of the atomic bomb."

In it, an atomic explosion releases a steady, sustained flow of energy instead of turning it loose in an instantaneous, crushing blast. Operators can control the rate at which energy is generated.

The atomic furnace is a long way from being in itself a plant which can generate useful power for industrial or other purposes by splitting atoms.

More Intense Source

But Dr. Norris E. Bradbury, director of the commission's Los Alamos scientific laboratory, said the plant supplies a more intense source of "fast neutrons" and it is hoped this will "make possible the study of fast neutron chain reactions in more detail, and thus be another step toward finding the best type of chain reactor for the production of useful power."

He said the plant, developed secretly at Los Alamos, has been operated successfully since last November.

It differs from other atomic "piles" in two major respects:

1. It uses the man-made element plutonium, which is the explosive material in the atomic bomb, rather than the natural element uranium.

2. It uses fast neutrons, produced from atom splitting.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
DR. NORRIS E. BRADBURY, director of the Los Alamos, N. Mex., scientific laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission, yesterday told of the development of a controlled atom bomb

To keep the chain reaction going when uranium atoms are split, the neutrons resulting from the fission have to be slowed down.

The scientists say that at a slower speed a neutron has a better chance of sticking in the nucleus of the next atom and splitting it.

The slowing is done by mixing graphite, water or some other substance with the uranium. But in the new atomic furnace nothing like this is necessary.

Vandenberg Attacks Motives Of Hemisphere Pact Critics

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 29 (AP).—Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) addressing a joint session of the Brazilian Congress, said today that those who suspect ulterior motives in the Inter-American defense pact "merely confess their own."

Plainly replying to Russian allegations that the treaty is a bloc pact aimed against the Soviet Union, Vandenberg said:

"Nothing that we do here is aimed at any other enemies than war and aggression and injustice—three great foes of civilized mankind.

"Nothing that we do here subtracts one single word from our over-all responsibilities to the United Nations to which we renew our allegiance.

Criticizes Critics

"Nothing that we do here ignores our inevitable self-interest in peace, justice and recuperation in other countries on this fore-shortened and war-weary earth.

"If there should be those who suspect ulterior motives they would merely confess their own.

"We have no purpose but to make helpful progress and set new landmarks on the high road to international peace and security . . .

"If we effectively perfect this regional achievement—and I expect we will—we shall not weaken, we shall only strengthen and encourage peace forces throughout the world."

The Brazilian Congress held its joint session in honor of the Senators and Congressmen of the American republics who are attending the Inter-American Conference at the Quitandinha Hotel in Petropolis, 50 miles from here.

Claims Charter Backing

Vandenberg came here for the speech and returned to resume his work as No. 2 delegate to Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Vandenberg said that when the U. N. Charter was written in San Francisco there was a critical controversy over the question of recognizing regional arrangements such as the defense treaty. He recalled that he was chairman of the committee appointed to settle the question.

"Fortunately—and wisely—it was the final, unanimous verdict at San Francisco that appropriate regional arrangements like ours, devoid of the remotest thought of conquest or aggression and dedicated solely to the pursuit of orderly peace, would strengthen and even simplify the work of the United Nations," he said.

In writing the peace treaty, Vandenberg said, the American republics set world peace forces an example.

Body With Bottle Taken From River

Harbor and park police last night recovered from the Potomac River near Outlet Bridge, 15th st. and Maine ave. sw., the body of an unidentified man about 40 years old, dressed in khaki shirt and trousers.

Pockets yielded a partly filled whisky bottle, an empty billfold, a Junior Police Boys' Club card with no name inserted, a Capital Transit transfer dated August 27, and four pennies.

Police retrieved the body at about 6:20 p. m. in a borrowed paddle boat after it had been seen by three youths playing on the bank.

Brooklyn Newspaper Ceases Publication

New York, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—A front page announcement said today that the Brooklyn Citizen, long a powerful Democratic daily newspaper in Kings County, was ceasing publication with today's issue.

The paper has operated continuously since 1886. Its announcement said: "With this issue, the Brooklyn Citizen ceases publication. Rising labor and material costs make this action necessary.

been deadlocked for the last three months.

The joint commission first met in May of 1946. But then, as now, the Soviets insisted that only Korean leaders who had not opposed trusteeship be consulted. This virtually excluded all but Communist and left-wing parties. These first parleys broke down after only a few weeks of negotiations.

Informed sources viewed the American move as a preliminary maneuver to clear the way for United Nations Assembly action on the question that has kept the United States and Russia at loggerheads since the two powers moved into Korea at the end of the Pacific war. The assembly convenes at Lake Success, N. Y., on September 16.

If, as is believed almost certain, the Soviets veto Big Four action, the United States then could ask the General Assembly to take over the problem and recommend a settlement.

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett informed Molotov that the United States "cannot in good conscience" be a party to any further delay in restoring Korean self-rule.

Pledge Violation Charged

Lovett accused the Soviets of violating Molotov's pledge that all Korean parties which agreed to support the Moscow decisions affecting their country would be given a voice in forming a provisional government.

Instead, he said, the Soviets have tried to bar 24 Korean political parties which claim to represent 15,200,000 members.

Lovett also denied in full Molotov's latest charge that leftist parties in the American-held half of Korea were being oppressed and persecuted.

Seven U. S. Proposals

Attached to the American note were these seven proposals on which the United States suggested settlement of the independence question:

1. Secret elections to be held at an early date in both the American and Russian occupation zones to choose provisional legislatures for each zone. The multi-party ballot would be based on election laws adopted by the existing Korean legislatures in each zone.

2. The provisional legislatures thus elected would choose representatives for a national legislature, which numerically would provide proportionate representation for each zone. The national legislature would then meet at Seoul to choose a provisional government for a united Korea.

3. The resulting provisional government should meet with representatives of the Big Four to discuss what outside help is needed to put Korean independence on a firm economic and political foundation.

4. The United Nations shall be invited to maintain observers in Korea during all those stages so that the world and the Korean people themselves may be assured of the independent character of the actions taken.

5. The Korean provisional government and the Big Four powers shall agree upon a date for withdrawal of all occupation forces.

6. The provisional legislatures in each zone shall be "encouraged" to draft provisional constitutions as a basis for a national constitution.

7. Until a united, independent Korea is established, public and private Korean agencies in each zone shall be brought into contact with U. N. agencies and Korean observers shall be permitted, "in appropriate cases," to attend international conferences.

Sugar Inventory Controls Lifted

Because there is plenty of sugar to "meet current requirements," the Department of Agriculture ordered immediate discontinuance of sugar inventory controls yesterday.

The order lifts the last of the wartime food controls.

Bizonal German Industry To Go to 1936 Rate in 3 Years

were not prepared to carry it out.

The new plan appears extremely optimistic. The new steel rate depends for success on the key factor of increased Ruhr coal production. To reach that goal and at the same time maintain commitments to export 25 per cent to France and other countries, Ruhr production must be boosted from the present 242,000 tons daily to 400,000 tons.

The plan points out that if the two zones are to be self-supporting, they must export at least 15 per cent more than in 1936 or a total of about 2 billion dollars. Its imports, mostly food, seed and fertilizer to maintain the 2000-calory diet, will cost about 1 to 1.25 billions.

Thus the next export balance will have to be better than three fourths to one billion dollars annually.

But as Clay and Douglas made clear, the chief export possibilities lie in industries which have been most severely curtailed in the March, 1946, agreement. These were war potential industries—metals, machinery and chemicals.

For these and other reasons, mainly the reconstruction program in Europe, the difference between the new and old plans will be accounted for almost entirely by expanding allowed activity levels of hitherto restricted industries.

Less Plant Dismantling

The revised plan necessarily leaves fewer industrial plants to be dismantled and carried away to other nations. This may strike an unhappy note to the Russians.

French objections have a different basis. They fear the expanded level is a threat to French security in permitting Germany to be built up into a military menace.

Though Clay has repeatedly denied it, the French also fear the program means that Germany is to be given priority over France in reconstruction.

Another aspect is the French worry that increased German steel production will require so much coal that insufficient amounts will go to French steel mills.

An undisclosed reason, but certainly one important to the French, is their own desire to be Europe's workshop rather than permit the title and power to be restored to the Ruhr.

Summary of Levels For German Production

Berlin, Aug. 29 (AP).—Here is a box score summary of the main items in a revised annual level of industry for Germany announced today by the United States and Britain.

Steel—Present capacity 19,200,000 tons, new agreed level of production 10,700,000 tons as compared with 1936 production of 14,900,000 tons.

Heavy machinery—Present capacity 775,000,000 reichsmarks, new level of production 500 million reichsmarks, compared with 1936 level of 619 million reichsmarks.

Machine tools— Present capacity 259 million reichsmarks, new level 170 million reichsmarks, compared with 1936 level of 206 million reichsmarks.

Passenger cars—Present capacity 199,000 units, new level 160,000 units, no 1936 comparison available.

Fine mechanics and optics—Existing capacity 307,700,000 reichsmarks, new level 248,700,000 reichsmarks, against a 1936 level of 180 million reichsmarks.

Cement—Present capacity 11,400,000 tons, new level 8,900,000 tons, 1936 level seven million tons.

Chemicals, all kinds—Present capacity 4,194,000,000 reichsmarks, new level 2,271,000,000 reichsmarks, 1936 level 2,325,000,000 reichsmarks.

All reichsmark figures are measured in 1936 prices. In 1936 the reichsmark was quoted at 40 cents.

Miners were coming out in sympathy wtih 140 Grimethorpe men fired by the Coal Board for refusing to dig an extra 2 feet of coal a day as recommended by the Coal Board and the union.

Coal Loss Large

Coal Board officials, estimating the daily loss at 100,104 tons, said the dismissals were "technical." They explained that the miners would be reinstated when they agreed to the increased stint.

Unofficial sources said the daily loss of coal mined because of the strike was 154,000 tons.

The strike was by far the most serious since the coal mines came under public ownership last January 1, in one of the first nationalization moves of the Labor government.

The White House said the new appointees will take office when James Forrestal is sworn in as Secretary of Defense. The date, which has not been set, will take place shortly after President Truman returns from Rio de Janeiro, some time between September 16 and 20.

At present, the defense establishment is operating under the old law.

General Gruenther, who takes over the key directorship of the joint staff under the Joint Chiefs of Staff, served as deputy chief of staff to General Eisenhower in the North African invasion and chief of staff to Gen. Mark Clark in the Italian campaign. A native of Platte Center, Nebr., he is a former West Point professor and nationally known bridge expert.

The new Undersecretary of War, an Army Reserve officer since the first World War, was vice president of Secretary Forrestal's investment banking firm, Dillon, Read & Co., before the war. Draper was a top procurement official prior to his assignment to Germany.

Admiral Souers, a banker and businessman before the war, was first chief of the Central Intelligence Group. He recently set up an intelligence program for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Hill, though a West Virginian, has been active in Government and business circles here for years. He was chairman of the NRA Motor Bus Code Authority and is chairman of the board of the Capitol Greyhound Lines.

Hargrave, an attorney, won the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in World War I.

Industry Gain Held Paris Parley Goal

Follow Britain

French Cut Spending in Dollar Zone

Paris, Aug. 29.—France followed Britain's example today. She put th ebrakes on any further dollar spending and told the nation to prepare for the hardest winter since the liberation.

Andre Philip, Minister of National Economy, warned that this is only the beginning.

"At least 10 years of penury and difficulty lie ahead of us," he said. "We must follow the heroic example of Britain and prepare for greater sacrifices than ever before."

Gasoline miports will be stopped immediately, Philip said. Less than two months supply remains in France. After that the nation must face a virtual halt in all automotive transport, he said.

Only for Essentials

All other dollars imports will be suspended except a few essential. These are cereals, coal and fats, and a few items for France's overseas territories. The minister indicated that even by making these essential imports France is assuming a greater dollar debt than she can afford to carry.

In July, France had planned to spend 600 million dollars during the last six months of this year. Today Philip said the cabinet has decided to halt any further dollar purchases except 293 million dollars already contracted for.

A European Problem

Philip emphasized the dollar shortage is not a French problem but a European problem. It is the same problem which the 16-nation conference on European cooperation is now trying to master, he said, and mastery is essential to the success of the Marshall Plan.

Independence For Palestine Is Decided

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—The United Nations Special Commisison on Palestine decided unanimously tonight that the British mandate should be ended as quickly as possible and that Palestine should be given unqualified independence.

The 11-nation commission also decided that the transitional period between the end of the mandate and complete independence should be short and the responsibility of the U. N.'s General Assembly. The commisison's recommendations will be presented to the Assembly for action when it meets next month.

But the commisison failed to decide unanimously about another more trying phase of the Palestine problem: what to do about conflicting Jewish and Arab interests if and when the Holy Land is given its complete independence.

Vote is Divided

The latest vote taken in the commisison showed three members—India, Iran and Yugoslavia—favoring an Arab-Jewish federation. Seveen favored partition into Jewish and Arab states. The other member, Australia, abstained from voting either way.

Australia, which cooperated in the formulation of an alternative plan, holds that since a two thirds majority was not obtained for either federation or partition, no clear-cut proposal by the commission is possible on this issue.

In all, the commission made 12 recommendations, 11 of them unanimous. In addition to recommendations about Palestine's independence, termination of the mandate, a short transition period and U. N. responsibility for the transition, they were:

(1) The sacred chaarcter of holy places should be preeserved.

U. S. Should Act

(2) The U. N. General Assembly should take the initiative in international action for 250,000 distressed European Jews.

(3) Specific obligations for maintenance of democratic principles and portection of minorities should be written into the Palestine constiution.

(4) There should be an obligation in the constiution for peaceful settlement of disputes in relations between Arabs and Jews.

(5) Economic unity for Palestine a sa whole is indispensable to the life and deevlopment of the country.

(6) Abolition of capitulations (treaties).

(7) Full cooperation with the United Nations and an appeal against the use of violence.

(8) The solution of the Palestine problem cannot be considered a solution of the Jewish problem. The Uruguayan delegate was understood to have dissented in the vote on this.

Doctor Found Guilty Of Morals Charge

Gettysburg, Pa., Aug. 29 (AP).—Dr. Robert S. Lefever, 28-year-old physician, was convicted today on a morals charge and was acquitted on another charge of rape and administering a drug with intent to commit a felony. Sentence was not pronounced immediately.

The charges were made by Mrs. Rita Dryer, 23, a dishwasher. A jury of 11 men returned the verdict after 3½ hours' deliberation.

Marshall Plan Aims Include Stabilized Money, Tariff Cuts

(First of a Series)

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Paris, Aug. 27 (Delayed).—In response to the Marshall proposal, powerful groups within the Paris Conference are working for a report based on these three points in the order of their importance:

1. All-out effort within each nation to increase its own industrial production.

2. Commitments by each nation for a stabilized currency and a balanced budget.

3. Cooperation among all participating nations to increase the flow of international trade, initially by reducing tariffs and other export-import restrictions.

A long-range goal is a West European customs union.

It is still too early to know whether the report of the Paris Conference will take this form.

Four Years to "Get in Black"

The so-called "bookkeeping" phase of discussions—a consolidation of resources, production, expectations and potentialities of each nation—has been completed. Decisions on major policies have not yet been crystalized. But the dominant nations of the conference appear to be pushing toward the plan outlined above.

The report is expected to be completed about September 15, instead of September 1, as originally planned.

The program it outlines covers a four-year period through 1951. The report hopes to demonstrate that, given initial help from the United States, the 16 participating nations will have an equalized balance of payments at the end of those four years. They propose to show that they will be exporting or rendering tourist and other services in quantities equal to, and sufficient to pay for, their required imports.

U. S. Aid Figure a Secret

The amount of American aid thought necessary is a close secret and indeed is not yet arrived at specifically. Figures published so far are entirely speculative and mostly inaccurate. It is known on excellent authority that the currently gossiped figure of 29 billion dollars is completely out of line and vastly in excess of the real amount.

Indeed, it may be that the report itself will mention no dollar figure at all. Some groups in the conference are considering the idea of stating hopes for American aid entirely in terms of commodities.

This plan will show that the amount of goods or money desired from America will be the largest in the first year, 1948, and will diminish progressively year by year until it disappears by 1952.

Parley Setup Outlined

The work of the conference is organized under several committees. At the top is the general committee on European economic cooperation with a representative of each of the 16 nations. Under it, meeting almost daily, is the executive committee of five men. The British representative is chairman. Members include France, Norway (representing the Scandinavians), Italy (for Mediterranean countries), Holland (for the Low countries).

In addition, five technical subcommittees are totaling up the combined balance sheet for each nation's needs, resources, and production potential in power, (coal, oil, and electricity), food, steel, transport, and lumber.

Another committee is studying the financial aspects—balance of payments, financial stabilization and financial means to facilitate expansion of trade.

France to Draft Final Report

Reports of each committee are to be submitted up the line to the executive group and finally the top body. France has been given the job of preparing the final report. This in turn will be presented to the Foreign Minister of the participating nations. If they approve, the plan will be transmitted to the United States.

The delegates are impressed with the extent to which the Marshall proposal has served to bring into focus every conceivable economic problem of Europe and many political ones.

As one internationally known expert put it, the suggestion was a catalyst which forced every question to be raised and to be related—future pattern of trade of western Europe; consequences of an economic barrier between western Europe and Russian Europe; new markets and different productions for Europe, and exploitation of new raw material sources and finished goods markets, particularly Africa.

McCarran Resting After Heart Attack

Reno, Aug. 29 (AP).—Senator P. A. McCarran (D., Nev.) was reported resting in a hospital today after having experienced a heart attack last week at Tonopah. His condition was said to be good.

The veteran Senator, 71, was first taken to the Hawthorne Naval Depot Hospital and then was moved to a hospital here.

His office staff said he expected to "spend some time resting" in the hospital.

Police officers and firemen whose promotions have been approved

The District Commissioners yesterday approved the promotions of eight Metropolitan policemen and four firemen, effective September 1.

Acting Lieut. George S. Eckles, of 2412 Taylor ave., Alexandria, Va., was promoted to permanent rank to fill the vacancy created by retirement of Lieut. Paul Sullivan, of 3500 14th st. nw.

Eckles, who is married and has one daughter, June, 19, will succeed Sullivan at the 11th Precinct. Eckles was appointed to the police force January, 1931.

Sullivan, who is retiring because of physical disability, recently returned to duty after serving as lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps reserve. He was appointed to the force September, 1922 and is married.

Sergt. Horace F. Skinner, assigned to administrative headquarters, was promoted to temporary lieutenant to fill the vacancy created by detail of Lieut. Michael J. Dowd of 1324 Rittenhouse st. nw., to the Capitol.

Acting Sergt. Edward H. Ring of 2534 14th st. nw., was promoted to permanent sergeant at the Second Precinct and Corpl. U. S. Rogers of Route No. 4, Alexandria, Va., was promoted to temporary sergeant.

Promoted to temporary corporal were Pvts. Charles A. Parker of 2330 Branch ave. se., Harbor Precinct, and Herman A. Sauer of 804 Silver Spring ave., Silver Spring, Md., Sixth Precinct.

Temporary Corps. Albert B. Nicholson, jr., of 5601 Taylor rd., Riverdale, Md., accident investigation unit, and Grady A. Beacham, of 4300 N 18th st., Arlington, Va., Fourth Precinct.

Four privates in the Fire Department, who have been acting inspectors in the fire marshal's office were made permanent inspectors. They are:

Hurley F. Offenbacher, of 2218 Nicholson st. se., Louis W. McNamee, of 7400 Rhode Island ave., College Park, Md., Clyde T. Delp, of 2717 Ordway st. nw., and Bernard B. Lindner, of 800 Randolph st. ne.

Russia Repeats Old Charge U. S. Seeks Atomic Monopoly

Lake Success, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Soviet Union charged once more today that the United States is seeking a world-wide monopoly on atomic energy.

In a long-awaited declaration, Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, also rejected a series of six papers approved by a majority of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. These documents, which Russia refused to help draft and on which she had not committed herself definitely until now, deal with constituting and running an international atomic control agency.

Thoroughly Convinced

Gromyko told the political committee of the commission that every statement by the United States "convinces us" that the United States is seeking a monopoly.

He said these papers seek to protect the interests of one country by securing a monopoly for that country in atomic energy.

Gromyko hurled the monopoly charge at the United States for the first time last spring. It was met then by a snappy reply and denial from Warren R. Austin, United States delegate. Frederick H. Osborn, United States atomic deputy, did not reply today.

Gromyko said the six papers, on which various subcommittees have worked for three months, were extensions of the original United States plan presented in June, 1946, by Bernard M. Baruch and which the Soviet Union has repeatedly refused to accept.

Disagreement Unchanged

His statement made it clear the wide disagreement between Russia and the United States remained unchanged. It also made clear that the second report of the Atomic Commission to the Security Council, due September 15, would not have Russia's approval.

The political committee is in the final stages of drawing up the report, which will be based on these papers. It expects to meet steadily next week in an effort to have the report finished before September 10 but delegates were not optimistic on that point. The full commission must give final approval.

After hearing Gromyko, Richard Miles, Britain, said there was no point in trying to rewrite the papers to "accommodate" the Soviet Union.

H. R. Wei, China, said this second report would be better than the first one made last December, on which Gromyko refused to vote. Wei said this report undoubtedly would have a section devoted to minority views while the first report contained only the ideas of a majority of 10 members of the 12-country commission.

Poland also abstained and Poland's Dr. Ignacy Zlotowski is slated to give his views on these papers at the next committee meeting Tuesday.

Price Support Guarantee Given Turkey Raisers

The Department of Agriculture yesterday announced that prices of turkeys in the Washington area will be guaranteed for the rest of the year.

The schedule at which the Government will support turkey prices in the Maryland-Virginia-West Virginia-Pennsylvania zone is:

Young turkeys under 18 pounds, live weight, 36 cents.

Grade A young turkeys, under 16 pounds, New York dressed, 45½ cents.

Young turkeys, 18 to 22 pounds live weight, 32 cents.

Grade A young turkeys, 16 to 20 pounds, New York dressed, 40¾ cents.

Young turkeys, 22 pounds and over, live weight, 26 cents.

Grade A young turkeys, New York dressed, 20 pounds and over, 34 cents.

Prices for Grade B turkeys will be three cents a pound less on all classes.

Egyptian Case Unsettled as Council Rests

Lake Success, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Security Council failed again today to settle the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over British forces in the Nile valley and adjourned for vacation until Sept. 9 with the case still on its calendar.

A Colombian plan for settling the case was rejected through failure to get the necessary affirmative majority of seven votes. The most it received in a paragraph-by-paragraph balloting was five votes. Britain, a party to the dispute, had no vote.

For the first time in council history all voting delegates abstained on one section relating to "mutual assistance," which had been vigorously assailed by Russia and other speakers during a three-hour wrangle.

Some delegates contended this "mutual assistance" would mean that the negotiations would be conditioned on the withdrawal of troops. But others said it merely clarified the points for negotiation.

Egyptian Premier Nokrashy Pasha who has been here almost a month, told newsmen he would stay on in New York.

Shots Calm Crowd

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Police fired their shotguns into the air today over the heads of a growing crowd hooting the United Nations Security Council and threatening to riot in Malika Farida Square. The roar of the shotguns quieted the demonstrators.

Dutch Outlaw Home Rule of Indonesians

Batavia, Java, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Netherlands East Indies government, listing for the first time the areas which it considers officially "occupied" by Dutch "police action," outlawed the authority of the Indonesian Republic today in the most important economic districts of Java, Sumatra and Madoera.

The communique said the Dutch pledged to maintain "law and order" in nearly two thirds of Java, leaving to the Republicans only a 150-mile stretch aroung Jogjakarta, Indonesian capital; the Bantam district, extending approximately 150 miles west of Batavia to Sunda Strait, and a southern coastal strip in East Java.

(At The Hague, the Dutch announced acceptance of the "general tendency" of the resolutions adopted by the United Nations Security Council on the Dutch-Indonesian conflict. Two of these resolutions called on consuls of six Council nations stationed in Batavia to investigate conditions since the cease-fire order and tendered the Council's good offices through a commission of three.

(Although the Dutch contended the Security Council was not a competent authority to deal with the Indonesian siuation, they said they would announce shortly which nation the Netherlands would designate to be a member of the commission of three. The Indonesians already have announced acceptance of the Conucil offer.

(At the same time the Netherlands government announced that Acting Governor General Hubertus J. Van Mook was being summoned home from Batavia to consult with the cabinet. It was expected Van Mook would urge continuation of "police action" in Indonesia.)

In addition to most of Java, the Dutch assumed responsibility for large sections of north central and South Sumatra and for the southern coast of Madoera beyond Pamekasan, its capital.

At Lake Success

Yesterday's Activities In the U. N.

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Following is a summary of today's activities of the United Nations:

1. Palestine—The United Nations Special Committee on Palestine, still working at Geneva, hoped to sign its reports Monday. It was learned there would be a majority report, recommending separate Arab and Jewish states in Palestine confederated in an economic union and a minority report, recommending a single federated Arab-Jewish state.

2. Egypt—The Security Council temporarily gave up the Egyptian case and recessed for a vacation.

3. Atom—Andrei A. Gromyko of Soviet Union rejected six majority-supported Atomic Energy Commisison working papers.

4. Territories—The special committee created last year to study economic and social data on the world's non-self-governing territories approved a Russian proposal to include study of the participation of subject peoples in colonial governments.

5. Social Affairs — George F. Davidson of Canada told the Social Commission that its primary function is to eliminate overlapping between the agencies.

6. Rights—The U. N. received an appeal signed by 429 persons, including Protestant Episcopal Bishop Charles K. Gilbert of New York, Arthur Garfield Hays, Aldous Huxley, and Pearl S. Buck, urging that the proposed international bill of rights include an article recognizing the right of conscientious objection to military service.

7. Food—A report on cereals made public by the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization conference at Geneva said that "the 1947 grain harvest is substantially below 1946 in a number of deficit countries, including large grain-producing countries such as France, India, Italy and Poland."

9. Balkan—Gregory P. Kasparov, the Russian member of the subsidiary group of Salonika, charged that the group was cut off from any contact with the Greek population, and said that he had seen people arrested at the entrance of the hotel in which the group worked.

Bandits Take $57,500 From Oregon Bank

Sweethome, Oreg., Aug. 29 (INS).—The Bank of Sweethome was robbed of approximately $57,500 today by two armed and masked bandits who entered the bank shortly before noon.

Customers and employes were herded together as the gunmen forced A. F. Ames, assistant cashier, to deliver cash from the bank drawers and safe.

Ingram objected to records showing he had been sentenced to three two-year sentences for housebreaking.

"How could I have been jailed for all of them when I was serving two years for the first housebreaking?" Ingram asked. "I served time for the first one between the ages of 18 and 20 and I'm only 21 now."

The matter was placed in the hands of the probation office for checking.

much the same kind of a decrease. In fact, the decrease in sheep is even greater than in cattle, Burmeister asserted.

"From early 1942 to the end of 1946, sheepmen reduced their breeding flocks nearly 17 million head, or 34 per cent. Sheep numbers are now down to about the low level reached in 1923, after the first World War.

"The lamb crop this year is near the smallest of record going back to 1867.

"Supplies of lamb and mutton next year are expected to be the smallest since the late 20's, and will continue small for at least three to five years.

"Supplies of hogs for slaughter this fall and winter are expected to be only slightly larger than last year, as the 1947 spring pig crop was only about 1½ per cent larger than the 1946 crop.

"Because of the short corn crop, hogs will be marketed earlier and at lighter weights than in the previous year. Pork supplies this fall and winter, therefore, may be less than a year earlier."

judge's chambers and lasted from 10:30 to shortly after noon. The case was settled by agreement between the two attorneys in her presence.

The second case, Needham Lewis vs. James A. Cumber, was tried before a jury and was only partially completed. At 3:30 Judge Raedy adjourned the court and the case was carried over until Tuesday morning.

Judge Raedy's arraignment came as a result of "hit-and-run" charges filed against her when her Buick convertible struck a parked car at 1st and K sts. nw. The judge denied driving her car that night but said that she had loaned it to a friend, Edward Emerson, of New York.

Hilton Rheubottom, 1504 Stevens rd. se., an employe of a filling station at 1st and K sts. nw., told police that Judge Raedy's car struck the parked car and then went through a red light. He identified the judge as the driver.

Crime Kept Secret To Protect Friend

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—Clinton Ridley, operator of a tavern, told the judge today he didn't report a $231 holdup at the place for more than 20 hours because "I didn't want to hurt a friend."

Ridley testified he knew Thomas Linton, 40, one of two men held for grand jury action after a preliminary hearing on armed robbery charges.

Asked when he reported the robbery, Ridley said: "I didn't report it. The manager reported it. I wanted to forget all about it. I didn't want to hurt a friend."

Dr. M. W. Johnson To Speak Tonight

Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, will address the National Technical Association banquet at 8 o'clock tonight at the university's Lucy D. Slowe Hall.

NTA, an organization of engineers, architects and technicians which disseminates information "concerning the opportunities of colored persons in the technical and engineering fields," opened its 19th there-day convention here yesterday.

Following presentation of technical papers this morning, members will take a sightseeing tour this afternoon. The convention closes with a morning session tomorrow at Cook Hall when officers will be elected.

Eight Protest Request for ABC License

Eight persons appeared at an Alcoholic Beverage Control Board hearing yesterday to oppose the petition of Mrs. Sara Israelson for a Class C license at 3333-A Connecticut ave. nw.

Mrs. Israelson said she had invested $25,000 in the former dine and dance place at that address, known as the Brown Derby, and plans to serve lunches and dinners there as well as sandwiches and drinks, opening in two weeks if she is granted a license. She lives at 1725 Varnum st. nw.

Alan W. Payne, chairman, and Mrs. Agnes K. Mason of the ABC Board took the case under advisement.

Petitioner Supported

Speaking in favor of the petitioner was A. Julian Brylawsky, real estate agent for Warner Brothers Theaters, who said he had no objection to a license being granted for that location, and that he could not think of anyone that could run such a place better than Mrs. Israelson.

Opponents, led by Harry C. Grove, president of the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association, said high school students had been seen coming out of the Brown Derby intoxicated when the place was being operated under the previous ownership. They said they feared a resumption of such conditions, and several referred to the recent opinion of Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West that minors could drink liquor legally if it is purchased by an adult.

Leon Pretzfelder, former first vice president of the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association, now chairman of its legislation committee, disagreed with President Grove. He was Mrs. Israelson's attorney, in fact, and brought out from her and Brylawsky that she had operated the Uptown Cocktail Lounge, 3334 Connecticut ave. nw., for some seven years, and the Seafare Restaurant, 3524 Connecticut ave. nw., for several months last year, without having any complaints made to police, which he termed a "remarkable record."

Mrs. Israelson also said the only entertainment she would have would be classical piano music.

Other Protests Made

Those protesting against the license in person, in addition to a number of residents who signed written petitions, were:

Mrs. Frederick Norton, 2800 Connecticut ave. nw.; Mrs. Elizabeth R. Groves, 2712 27th st. nw.; Mrs. Annie D. Simpson, 2930 Newark st. nw.; Miss Lillie Bass, 3846 Koodley rd. nw.; William J. Oates, 3024 Porter st. nw.; Miss L. E. Rixey, 3022 Porter st. nw., and Maurice A. Emerson, 3057 Porter st. nw.

Slav Campaign Against Church Seen in Venezia

Trieste, August 29 (AP).—A spokesman for Bishop Antonio Santin of Trieste and Capodistria said today the recent killings of two priests in Yugoslav-occupied Venezia Giulia and the grave injury to a Vatican prelate were part of a Slav campaign to "disintegrate the Catholic Church."

The Bishop was not available for comment and the spokesman asked for anonymity because he feared reprisals.

The spokesman said Yugoslav authorities in zone B of the northeast Italian territory were seeking to undermine the church indirectly by preventing the christening of children.

The Rev. Miro Bulesich was killed Sunday at Lanische where he was helping confirm and christen children. The body of a second priest, Father Kristian of the town of Golazzo, was found the same day in a wood near Golazo, a week after his disappearance.

Smoking Ban Among Rules Urged for Nitrate Ship Safety

By The Associated Press

As a result of the Texas City, Tex., disaster last April, a Government committee last night recommended fire watches, smoking bans and other precautions when vessels carrying ammonium nitrate are in port.

Two ships loaded with the fertilizer exploded at Texas City, with a heavy toll of dead and property damage in the town.

The report by 14 representatives of various Government agencies accepted the opinion of a Coast Guard investigating board that the first explosion aboard the SS Grandcamp was caused by "careless disposal of cigarette butts."

An explosion 16 hours later aboard the SS Highflyer, the board said, "resulted from fire and the possible contamination of ammonium nitrate with sulphur" which also was aboard the ship.

The committee saw no reason to recommend that shipments of ammonium nitrate by water be forbidden, since it "feels that with proper precautions and adequate supervision of all phases of loading, stowage and transportation on board vessels, ammonium nitrate can be transported with reasonable safety."

"The principal hazard to guard against on board vessels is fire," it said.

Yesterday's report was limited to dangers of carrying the fertilizer on ships. Second and third parts of the report at a later date will cover land transportation and results of chemical and physical tests of the fertilizer.

But the committee said experiences and study already indicate "the explosive hazard of ammonium nitrate fertilizer in normal land transportation is negligible."

Released by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, the first report was signed by 14 of the 18 committee members. It said one member declined to approve and three were unavailable for signatures.

Ex-Official Admits Theft of Jeep Motors

Toledo, O., Aug. 29 (AP).—Stephen Flisek, 31, of Toledo, accused of stealing 296 jeep motors worth $114,550 and selling them for $19,637, pleaded guilty to a federal charge of theft of government property today. He was held in jail under bond of $3,500.

E. C. Richardson, FBI agent, said Flisek diverted three freight cars of army-owned jeep motors while he was chief of the Rossford, Ohio, army ordnance depot.

Los Angeles Banker Leaves Estate to Girl Who Jilted Him

Los Angeles, Aug. 29 (AP).—Claude A. Adams, 67, bank president, who killed himself 10 days ago over the love of his 31-year-old private secretary, left her his entire estate in a new will, filed for probate today.

Miss Lassen

Attorneys earlier had estimated Adams' private fortune at "over $150,000."

The will was written exactly a month before he shot himself in the bedroom of his luxurious new North Hollywood home, leaving a note tucked in her picture frame addressed to Merna Lassen, who resigned in June after 13 years as his secretary. It read, in part:

"To think that you are now in the arms of another man is more than I can stand."

Adams' first will, filed August 19, left his estate to the City of Los Angeles as a children's playground and recreational center, and his personal fortune for the education of his grandchild, Martin Brown of Los Angeles. It was filed by the attorney for Adams' Hollywood State Bank, Walter G. Danielson.

Today Attorney Rex B. Goodcell, a long-time friend, filed a document dated July 18, in the banker's handwriting

Adams was found shot to death August 18. He left seven notes scattered around his $70,000 house, two of them to Miss Lassen.

One of them, Detective Lieut. E. W. Smith said, read:

"Merna—We could have been so happy if you had consented to have me. I have your picture in front of me. I will look at it the last thing. I do love you so much. . . . Remember the wonderful times we have had kindly. Good-by, darling. I love you."

The other note, Smith said, chided her for having a new boy friend, a clarinet player, whom Adams described as "arrogant" and "conceited."

In 1939, when Miss Lassen was 23, she addressed the Women Bankers Convention in Seattle. She declared that too many girls sought only a meal ticket, adding that there were plenty of opportunities in business.

Adams, a widower since 1942 when his second wife, Mildred, was killed in a war blackout auto crash, had been president of the 22-million-dollar bank since 1938, after an early career as a railroader, during which he lost his right arm in an accident.

He was born on a cotton plantation in Wilson County, N. C.

Early Arraignments Sought On Real Estate Fee Charges

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

The Justice Department yesterday moved for early arraignment of two real estate groups indicted here Wednesday for alleged conspiracy to violate the antitrust laws.

The Department announced that subpenas had been prepared late yesterday and delivered to the office of the United States Marshal for service and that arraignment had been set for next Thursday.

In District Court it was announced that the arraignment would be before either Justice Alexander Holtzoff or Justice Jennings Bailey.

However, it was expected that the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which was named in the indictment with the Washington Real Estate Board, would ask additional time to prepare its case.

Caught Unprepared

Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of UAREB, said the association "probably will ask for some delay in the arraignment" in order to obtain data from its 918 affiliated boards throughout the country.

Nelson said Attorney Roger Whiteford of Washington had been retained to represent NAREB and would need a "reasonable' time to prepare his case.

Charles Stewart, publicity director of NAREB, estimated that "at least a month" would be needed to prepare the case. "That would be the minimum time, I would think," he said.

Nelson, explaining why time would be needed, said:

"We were caught totally unprepared by this indictment and had no idea until a week ago that such action was under consideration. It is a big job to assemble data from all over the United States on such brief notice."

Service of the subpenas issued yesterday can be made on any of the officers of NAREB and the Washington board.

No individuals were named in the criminal indictment. However, Nelson and 15 Washington realtors, all directors of the Washington Board, were named in a civil suit which seeks to enjoin them from continuing the practices alleged to have been in violation of the antitrust laws.

There has been no indication when the civil suit will reach court.

The indictment charges specifically that NAREB and the Washington Board conspired to set a mandatory schedule of commissions on real estate transactions in the District, thus eliminating competition among real estate brokers.

Future Action Vague

Meanwhile, the Justice Department's future moves against price combinations remained obscure.

The reconvened April grand jury which last week heard 26 witnesses in the course of a probe into alleged price fixing by gasoline and oil companies in the District and nearby Maryland counties of Prince Georges and Montgomery has been recessed until Monday, September 8.

W. B. Watson Snyder, special assistant to the Attorney General who is conducting the investigation into gasoline prices, has announced that more testimony is to be heard when the jury meets again September 8.

The Justice Department has informed the office of the U. S. attorney that it will not immediately require the services of the regular July grand jury which returned the indictments Wednesday.

However, this does not mean the Government has completed its investigation of the housing field.

Sonnett in New York

Authorization by Attorney General Tom Clark for Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett to take over the housing probe has been taken as a signal that other elements in the housing field will be investigated next.

The Justice Department confirmed that Sonnett was in New York City yesterday, but said his visit there had no connection with the investigation.

The department said members of the American Legion's permanent housing committee had sought an audience with Sonnett and other antitrust attorneys in connection with the Legion housing program. The Legion is holding its national convention in New York.

No Immediate War Seen by Eisenhower

General Tells Legion Delegates No Great Nation Today Ready to Start Hostilities

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, in an address he described as "something of an official farewell," told the American Legion today he did not foresee "a global war as an immediate threat."

The Army Chief of Staff and supreme commander of World War II, who leaves military service early next year to become head of Columbia University, declared the world at present "comprises two great camps"—one grouped around dictatorships and the other, democracy.

But, he said, "no great nation is today in position deliberately to provoke a long and exhausting conflict with any hope of gain."

Eisenhower's long-run view of the international situation was less optimistic, however.

"As long as deliberate aggression against the rights of free men and the existence of free government may be a part of the international picture, we must be prepared for whatever this may finally mean to us," he said.

The Chief of Staff, who shared the platform with Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, received an ovation from the 6000 Legionnaires at the second session of the twenty-ninth national convention, held in the gaily decorated Seventy-first Regiment Armory on lower Park ave. instead of Madison Square Garden, as at yesterday's opening meeting. The Kansas delegation, from Eisenhower's home State, staged a brief, impromptu parade when the smiling general was introduced.

Parade Scheduled Today

Most of the speechmaking was concluded today, with tomorrow reserved for the Legion parade up Fifth ave. Final business sessions will be held Sunday at the armory.

Eisenhower gave emphatic indorsement to a universal military training program, which was backed strongly by President Truman, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Secretary of Defense-Designate James V. Forrestal and other notables at the opening session.

Universal military training, the Chief of Staff told the Legionnaires, "is the least burdensome and most equitable solution yet suggested" to "assure us a reservoir of trained manpower."

"We must so gird ourselves," he asserted, "that a predatory aggressor will realize, should he provoke war, it will likely be fought over his territory."

At the same time, Eisenhower said "armed defense, however elaborate, is only a partial insurance against war," adding, "I firmly believe that the only prescription for absolute security for any nation, including our own, is international understanding and cooperation."

Spaatz, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, said 70 combat groups were necessary to guarantee the Nation security in the air. Present appropriations permit the Air Forces to maintain 55 groups.

"By a 70-combat group air-force-in-being, we mean that every unit must be at peak effectiveness, supported by adequate services, capable of sustained operations with equipment superior to that of any possible aggressor," he said.

Spaatz expressed concern about the Air Forces' replacement requirements, stating that 2000 planes were needed for this purpose annually, but that only 800 are being bought this year.

"We are worried about this aspect of the program," he said. "The aircraft industry, a fundamental element of defense, has declined from an all-time high of 85,000 airplanes produced in 1945 to 1700 in 1947."

Nimitz, chief of naval operations, asked the Legionnaires to act "as sentinels to see that no one branch of the armed forces is permitted to decline to the point where it can no longer carry out its share of responsibility for the national security."

"Each branch of our armed forces—like each leg of a three-legged stool—must be as effective as the others," he said.

Nimitz acknowledged there had been some suspicion of the armed forces unification law "principally on the basis that it is detrimental to the Navy," but declared

"I am personally convinced . . . that if it is administered in the spirit with which it was created, the Navy will not suffer any disadvantage, nor will national security be jeopardized thereby."

British Navy Cited

Sir Ian Fraser, president of the one-million-member British Legion, told the convention that the British Navy for 100 years kept the peace of the world but said "we can no longer afford to do this."

"We pass the torch to you and our Canadian brothers in North America without regret, without jealousy," he added, "for you have inherited and nurtured our way of life and you will protect it."

He recommended that the United States and Great Britain jointly standardize weapons and share scientific secrets and military bases.

The Legion's distinguished service medal was awarded at today's convention session to William S. Knudsen, wartime lieutenant general, for his work as director of production for the War Department. He was not able to be present, but his son, Semon, of Birmingham, Mich., accepted the medal.

Dr. Paul R. Hawley, chief medical director of the Veterans' Administration, told the convention construction cost of veterans' hospitals had leaped from 85 cents per cubic foot in 1945 to $1.80 in 1947.

40 and 8 Elects Slate

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—The 40 and 8 Society of the American Legion today elected Guy Land of Clarksdale, Miss., 48-year-old Marine veteran of World War I, as Chef de Chemin de Fer.

Sous Chefs de Chemin de Fer include: Henry Bamberger, Philadelphia; Will J. Irvin, Cleveland; Lee J. Weimers, Jacksonville, Fla.; Walter T. Muff, Sioux City, Iowa; John Sommers, Farmington, Me., and Leonard Riebe, Kalispell, Mont.

Fred G. Fraser, 1407 South st. nw., Washington, D. C., was named to the finance committee and James H. Phillips, 6056 22d st., North Arlington, Va., was elected to the trophies and awards committee.

District Legion Pushes Malloy For Top Place

Special to The Washington Post

New York, Aug. 29.—Hopeful of a first-ballot deadlock in Sunday's election of a new national commander of the American Legion, the District of Columbia delegation is working feverishly day and night to win second and third ballot support for Joseph T. Malloy, its national executive committeeman and one of eight announced candidates to succeed National Commander Paul H. Griffith.

Malloy and his supporters have been receiving encouragement in their nightly visits to various caucuses held by State delegations whose support is either uncommitted or committed only for the first ballot.

The District of Columbia Legionnaire is conceded an outside chance to win the election in the event the floor contest goes to three ballots. Other convention observers are less optimistic.

O'Neil Is Favorite

The favorite candidate and probable winner on the first ballot is James F. O'Neil of Manchester, N. H., with Harry Brown of Beaumont, Tex., and Martin V. Coffey of Middletown, Ohio, the runners-up in that order.

Four other candidates, Bascom F. Jones of Nashville, Tenn.; Robert W. Colflesh of Des Moines, Iowa; Ben Hilliard of Denver, Colo., and Richard C. Cadwallader of Baton Rouge, La., are expected to withdraw before the first ballot.

The District delegation voted unanimously yesterday to support Malloy as a unit.

Malloy's supporters are urging his election upon State delegations as a veteran of World War II although, like the present national commander, he is a veteran of both World Wars.

The hope of the District delegation centers around a feeling that unless O'Neil, the so-called "Kingmakers'" candidate, can win on the first ballot, the election will become a free-for-all among Malloy, Brown and Coffey, with the Washington man standing an equal chance of victory.

Although the Washington delegation has been working tirelessly in Malloy's behalf, it is not neglecting business matters in connection with the convention. The District delegation is solidly behind a bill introduced in Congress—the Veterans' Economic Development Corporation Act of 1947—under the sponsorship of the legion's main rival, the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Tough Sledding Expected

The fact that the bill, known as the "Veterans' RFC" bill, was roundly condemned recently by Gen. John Thomas Taylor, national legislative director of the legion, indicates that the District delegation will find it tough sledding to get its resolution out of the national employment committee, where it now rests for action by the convention at large.

The district delegation also is active in seeking support of a resolution calling upon the United States to maintain a strong and effective merchant marine in peacetime.

The District delegation voted late today to defer until Sunday consideration of a resoution calling upon the legion to indorse and support legislation to pay a general service pension to veterans of World War I after they reach the age of 60.

Matador Loses Fight With Bull

MANUEL RODRIGUEZ, who as "Manolete" was the idol of bullfight fans of two continents, died yesterday in Cordoba after he had been gored by a bull from the celebrated Miura Stables. He received the mortal wound in the arena in a setting which symbolized the "gold, silk, blood and sun" of the Spanish National Fiesta. Manolete was 30 and had accumulated a fortune estimated at four million dollars

Ed Pauley May Return to Post As Fund Raiser for Democrats

Reports that Edwin W. Pauley may return to his old party money-raising role as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee circulated in Democratic quarters last night.

George Killion, who succeeded the California oil man in the party office, is leaving the post shortly to become head of the American President Lines.

Gael Sullivan, executive director of the committee, is expected to take on Killion's duties in addition to his own until a new treasurer is named.

The Democratic war chest was described as "well-heeled" for an off-year but 1948 will start the usual quest for funds. Pauley, who left the committee to become United States Reparations Commisioner before the President's unsuccessful fight to make him Undersecretary of the Navy, has never figured in the current chairmanship talk. Democratic spokesmen, however, recalled that he was one of the best money-raisers the party ever had.

Speculation on a new chairman to succeed Robert E. Hannegan meanwhile had thinned down pretty muc hto four names—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, Sullivan, former Representative Joseph E. Casey of Massachusetts and Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.).

There was growing doubt that Anderson, believed favored by the White House, would accept it. Former Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle was reported to have removed his own name from the running.

500 Statistical Experts to Meet Here Sept. 6 to 18

About 500 delegates, half of them from 55 foreign nations, are expected to attend the International Statistical Conferences in Washington, September 6 to 18.

It will be the first international gathering of economics and statistical experts in 10 years, Henry Caulfield, jr., executive secretary of the joint arrangements committee, said yesterday.

Meetings will be held in the Wardman-Park and Shoreham Hotels concurrently, with Trygve Lie, United Nations general secretary, speaking at a formal session in the Shoreham September 8.

Many of the sessions will center about the statistical problems related to world trade, international exchange, domestic depressions, inflation, and the general use of statistics in business operations.

Oklahomans to Meet

The University of Oklahoma Alumni Club will meet at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Cosmos Club auditorium. Ted M. Beaird, executive secretary, will present color movies of campus activities. Admission will be 50 cents.

how would YOU have voted on this "best news reporters" poll?

WHICH Washington newspaper do you think has the best news reporters?" That's the question recently asked a cross-section of Washingtonians. Maybe you were one of the persons interviewed. In any case, here's your chance to check your opinion against that of other Washington newspaper readers.

When people who read both the Post and Paper B were polled, here's how they voted:

2 to 1

said, "The Post has the best news reporters"

When people who read both the Post and Paper C were polled, the Post had an even better lead:

7 to 1

said, "The Post has the best news reporters"

And when those who read both the Post and Paper D voted, these were the results:

8 to 1

said, "The Post has the best news reporters"

This vote of confidence naturally makes The Washington Post pretty proud. Much more important, we feel it should also gratify our readers. Your selection of The Washington Post as the paper you want to read is strongly justified by this vote of public confidence in the quality of its reporting.

Nonpartisan UMT

In paralleling President Truman's plea for universal military training at the American Legion Convention in New York, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was by no means playing a long shot. The heavy preponderance of public opinion polls favoring training must be well known to Mr. Dewey, and this may have encouraged him to violate his own rule against discussing controversial topics. In the position he has taken Mr. Dewey is at opposite poles from Senator Robert A. Taft, who maintains the steadfast opposition he displayed in preventing a congressional vote on UMT. We think it a healthy sign that the debate over military training thus is intra-party rather than inter-party. UMT is no more an issue for partisan politics than is the whole subject of our national defense.

President Truman did well, in our opinion, to stress that military training, like unification, is but another piece of the security structure we are building bit by bit. There is an unfortunate tendency in some circles to accept the too facile explanation that the atomic bomb renders all traditional employment of military manpower obsolete. The atomic bomb does mean that our defense must be adaptive and dynamic. It requires major shifts in strategy, changes now underway. It may succeed in outmoding the concept of the mass army, though that term is a misnomer for the army of highly trained specialists that participated in World War II.

But the advent of the atomic bomb in no way lessens the need for trained men. Aside from the retaliatory striking force we presumably would have in readiness in event of attack, we should need a reservoir of men to back up and replace those in the first line of defense. Moreover, before an atomic war could be brought to a successful conclusion, we should probably require a force for invasion and occupation. The indispensable advantage of universal military training is that it will enable us to keep our regular defense forces down to the size the people will support, and at the same time will add to our security by assuring a self-perpetuating reserve that can be mobilized rapidly and prepared in far less time than was the case in World War II.

There is danger, of course, in viewing UMT as an end in itself. To rely on military training would be self-deception unless it were accompanied by the other components of a rounded defense which include, as Field Marshal Montgomery states, the development of national character and stamina. Nevertheless, military training is a keystone of these efforts. Nor can the significance of UMT in strengthening the hand of our diplomats in their efforts for peace be overlooked. For it is a truism that in its relations with the world the United States must fight the illusion of weakness as much as weakness itself.

City Life

It seems that many Americans didn't want to go back to the farm after they saw Paris, London, Berlin, Honolulu, Cairo, Willow Run, San Antonio, Seattle, Wichita and other lively centers during World War II. Although many GIs were reported looking forward to owning farms, and it was widely predicted that, in contrast to the 1920's, there would be a trend back to farm life after the war, yet the net result of wartime shifts has been a three million shrinkage in farm population. About five million persons had left agriculture by 1945, but demobilization sent about two million back, according to reports of the Census Bureau and the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. High demand for industrial employes has kept many veterans and former war workers in the cities. Increasing mechanization of farms has steadily lessened demand for farm labor, and in many areas opportunities for small farmers have also tightened.

Congested and medieval as cities are, they yet offer more in housing and comforts to low income groups than do rural sections. It is estimated that one third of all rural houses are beyond repair. Only 18 per cent have running water, 15 per cent mechanical refrigeration, 11 per cent plumbing. About half of farm homes have not been electrified. Carrying water, cooking on wood stoves, cleaning lamp chimneys doesn't appeal to those veterans' and war workers' wives who have known even meager city conveniences. Another force boosting city population is the natural pull of crowds. The stimulation and challenge of cities have always appealed to most people. Poets may rhapsodize (usually from their city apartments or hall bedrooms) about the beauty of the countryside, and health authorities may expound the benefits of country air and sunshine. But the city's roar is more beguiling because it is a paean, not only to indoor plumbing, but to bright lights, entertainment, excitement, human adventure. Not only GIs and former war workers have been successfully wooed by it, but the cosmopolitan delegates to the United Nations as well. They clung tenaciously to the largest, liveliest and most crowded metropolis of the country as a site for their future home and would have no part in efforts to locate them in quiet, scenic, restful—and dull—surroundings. In fact, not even all the threats and predictions about atomic warfare have as yet caused a run on sylvan retreats.

Treaty Of Rio

Agreement on the manner in which the new security system of the Western Hemisphere will operate has been reached with surprising speed at the Rio de Janeiro Conference. That accomplishment is the more remarkable because of the absence of any eviscerating compromise. Copies of the treaty are not yet available in Washington, but the indications are that the security plan favored by the United States will be accepted with no vital alteration.

Argentine made her bid for a system which would have given her virtually the same veto privileges that are now frustrating the United Nations Security Council. But her scheme was turned down flatly by a 16-to-1 vote. Yesterday Argentina raised a new furor by introducing in Committee No. 2 an amendment that would prevent operation of the treaty in case an an attack on United States-held territory outside the hemisphere security zone. Further surprise moves may be in store. Yet the fear of being isolated by all the other American nations which favor an effective regional security system has brought Argentine acceptance of the basic principles that the conference was called to establish.

As unanimously approved by the Rio Conference's Commission No. 3, this new regional security system would go into operation on an affirmative vote of two thirds of the signatory countries. Should any one of these countries be attacked, or believe itself to have been attacked, it could call for consultation among the representatives of its sister nations. In case of emergency such consultation might take place in the governing board of the Pan American Union. More likely it would take place in a full-fledged conference of foreign ministers. In either event, the assembled statesmen could commit their respective governments to put down the aggression by an affirmative vote on the part of two thirds of the signatories. Such a vote would bind every participating nation to act against the aggressor, although no country would be under compulsion to provide armed forces. This means that neutrality in relation to an aggressor could no longer be maintained. Presumably countries which did wish to send troops would break relations with the state found to be the aggressor and apply sanctions in the form of interrupted trade, communications and so forth.

There has been much talk about applying a less drastic formula to aggression within the hemisphere than to aggression from without. Actually, however, there is no difference in the principle to be invoked in either case. Representatives of all the American nations will consult together in case of aggression from either source. If the dispute should be between two American nations, there would be special emphasis upon steps for pacific settlement. Should it become necessary to invoke sanctions, however, that action would be taken by a two-thirds vote just as in the case of aggression from outside the hemisphere, except that in the case of intra-hemispheric aggression the parties to the dispute would have no vote until the aggressor had been defined. Then the victim would regain its voting rights. If the Argentine can find any victory in this arrangement, she is welcome to it. The important fact is that effective rules are laid down for penalizing aggression directed at an American nation from any source.

Of course, this system has been carefully integrated into the United Nations plan. Article 51 of the U. N. Charter reserves the right of "indivdual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the United Nations." And Article 53 permits the Security Council to utilize "regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority." At the same time the critical weakness of the U. N.—the Security Council veto—has been avoided in our hemispheric peace plan. That gives the Americas a better chance to keep the peace among themselves and to resist outside aggression than any group of nations has ever had. If the Treaty of Rio de Janeiro is ratified by all the American republics and Canada, as we trust it will be, it will thus attain a world-wide significance. And we may be sure that the world will be watching eagerly to see what use we make of it.

Hitch-Hike Murders

The brutal murder of a young married couple from nearby Alexandria while on a motor trip is a forcible reminder of the dangers of giving a lift to hitch-hikers. The number of deaths and robberies of motorists resulting from the kindly practice of assisting the pedestrian on his way is small, no doubt, considering the prevalence of the custom. Nevertheless, the ease with which the average person can beg or thumb a ride encourages the criminal or potential criminal to take to the highways as means of escape, if he is fleeing from justice, or a means of subsistence, if he is in search of money. Then, too, there is the weak individual who is suddenly tempted by a display of money to hold up his victim and then, in the hope of escaping detection, murder him. While these are the exceptional cases, hardly a day goes by without reports of such attacks. It is only when the victims are well known, as in the present case, that these assaults receive the attention they deserve.

The vast extent of the country, the many isolated roads traveled by motorists make adequate policing impossible. The best means of reducing the number of such crimes is for motorists to resist their natural inclination to respond to the hitch-hiker's signal. And, of course, the law-enforcement agencies should spare no effort to apprehend the elusive and loathsome criminal who rewards kindness by dealing out death.

Mr. Bilbo's Successor

Governor Wright of Mississippi has decided to permit the voters to dispose of the somewhat complicated legal question of a successor to the late Senator Bilbo when they go to the polls next November. The consequence of this decision has been to open the State to an epidemic of feverish fence building and political jockeying. Already a dozen probable candidates have been mentioned, and before the summer is out we shall probably hear of a dozen more.

Many of these no doubt will see fit to retire from the contest before election time; nevertheless the ballot is certain to be heavily crowded. Thus, in all probability, the victorious candidate will represent the choice of no more than a relatively small minority of the voters; for under the law a simple plurality over the candidate compiling the second highest number of votes will suffice to elect.

Under such an arrangement the strongest contestant appears to be Representative Rankin, whose candidacy was formally announced the other day. Mr. Rankin, of course, represents very much the same political attitude and ideology as the late Senator Bilbo, with, however, this difference: that as far as Mr. Rankin is concerned it is probably quite honest and sincere, whereas in Mr. Bilbo's case we are of the opinion, expressed more than once on this page, it was pure opportunism. In any event, Mr. Rankin can be expected to make his campaign on the two issues exploited so successfully by Mr. Bilbo, namely white supremacy and xenophobia.

On these issues Mr. Rankin can probably consolidate his support among those ignorant and impressionable backwoods Mississippians whose prejudices and phobias have been such valuable assets to politicians like Vardaman and Bilbo. Doubtless, then, the only way Mr. Rankin's hold on such voters could be shaken would be for some candidate to represent himself as the exponent of a still whiter and more supreme sort of white supremacy than Mr. Rankin's brand. This being so, there is some danger that the senatorial campaign in Mississippi may lead to a carnival of demagogy on such a scale as to be without precedent even in that State.

Mr. Rankin's most formidable rival at the moment appears to be Representative Colmer, who has, however, not yet openly stated his intention of becoming a candidate. Mr. Colmer has the indorsement of the Jackson Daily News and presumably the support of a large number of those who have been so greatly embarrassed for their State by Senator Bilbo's exhibitions in Washington and by the venality and corruption which have been advertised to the whole Nation. It seems possible that in a straight-out contest limited to these two candidates Mr. Colmer might win. And this seems to us a sufficient reason why all the other candidates who are capable of putting the prestige of their State above personal ambition would do well to withdraw.

Production Declines

For four successive months the Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production (physical volume) has registered a decline. The postwar peak was reached last March when the index stood at 190—that is, 90 per cent above the 1935-39 base level. In July the index stood at 178, a drop of 12 points or slightly more than 6 per cent. Fear of coal shortages as well as continuing shortages of sheet steel account for the July drop in the output of steel and automobiles, respectively. The board concludes that the June to July decline in the index was due in part to temporary influences, and expects the August index to be somewhat above the July level.

Nevertheless, the rather prolonged decline in industrial output dating from last March suggests that the period of expanding industrial production may be behind us. At any rate, it is a warning that we cannot rely upon further production increases to relieve the strain on prices resulting from heavy domestic demands and abnormally large export demands. Indeed, with practically full employment already attained, it is not to be expected that our aggregate industrial output will continue to expand indefinitely, although specific increases are anticipated as shortages of industrial raw materials that have held down production in some industries are overcome. Our primary task at present is rather to hold the gains that have been achieved and to bring about the price and production adjustments that must be made to keep a peacetime economy operating at capacity levels.

MOONLIGHT INTO MORNING

Half-dawn, half-moonlight used up all the sky,
And which was which, there seemed no good to try
To fathom out: but, oh, the light was strange
Which shivered on the spruces, and the range
Of it went streaming outward west and east,
'Til dawn grew greater, and the moonlight least.
Only at sunrise could such moonlight make
The very look of common things to shake
Within a radiance belonging to
Neither a dawn nor dark we ever knew!

Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Global Alphabet

In The Washington Post of August 20, 1947, Mr. William E. Baff wrote a letter on behalf of Esperanto. There are solid reasons for taking exceptions to his views. Former United States Senator Robert Latham Owen of Oklahoma, who died on July 19, spent the last six years of his long and distinguished life and $25,000 of his own money in developing his Global Alphabet.

The Scottish Rite News Bulletin in its issues of October 21, 1946, March 20, 1947, and August 5, 1947, gave considerable attention to Senator Owen's Global Alphabet. The following are excerpts from those articles:

"It has long been a dream of scholars and diplomats that if the world could have one language for the human race there would follow an opportunity for mutual understanding of the various racial groups, a big factor in abolishing war. . . .

"The universal language must be English and this for many reasons. For one thing 200 million people, or roughly one tenth of the world's population, already speak it, and, furthermore, most of the world's great books are to be found printed in English. Also, another 200 million use English as a secondary language.

"This does not mean that any race or nation is to give up its native language—far from it. It merely means that this global alphabet will enable other people to learn to read, write and speak English in from four to six months. In the same way, the native English-speaking peoples can learn any of a dozen languages in the same length of time by use of the same global alphabet. . . .

"Thanks to the genius of Robert L. Owen, former U. S. Senator from Oklahoma, there has been worked out a global alphabet. This is a phonetic stenographic alphabet of 33 letters, using letters having one immutable primary sound of the human voice, with no silent letter, and the forms simplified to the last degree humanly possible for perfect legibility and speed with writing with a pen. With this alphabet, the people of any language in the world can write their own language and print it stenographically. Only 1200 words and their derivatives are necessary for day to day conversation."

The pamphlet entitled Global Alphabet contains 81 pages and merits the study of thoughtful peace-loving citizens. A copy of it may be obtained from World Language Foundation, 2400 16th st. nw., Washington 9, D. C., or from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

Drug Price Rises

The latest merry-go-round spiral of price rises in the drug field by the various manufacturers is going too far indeed.

The usual excuse for the rise which the mailman brings daily is by now common and stereotyped. The excuse given of "higher cost of raw materials and labor" sounds too silly by now in view of the fact that these same manufacturers show the greatest profit ever. The various promises given by NAM in "holding the line" were never sincere and by now the motives and greed are clearly visible.

We pharmacists are confronted with a very serious situation: We are to face the public in a guilty manner, offering apologies and explanations for the rise in price of an item, which excuses are not at all impressive. Most customers resent the sudden price change and become very indignant. The good will created by us with the public vanishes for no good reason. Actually the fault does not originate with the retailer at all. That is why the so-called "Newberryport Plan" failed. It was sponsored by the retailers only, without the manufacturers' cooperation.

I believe, however, that the time is ripe for the retailers in unison and concerted action to stop this vicious circle of unwarranted price rises. Bearing in mind that the manufacturer depends upon the retailer for distribution of his commodities, the retailer can and should refuse to accept these price changes by not buying those items at all. He can educate the public by sponsoring less known brands whose prices have not changed. The manufacturer would then think twice before deciding on a price rise.

Thanks From Germany

As an inhabitant of one of the most war-damaged towns of west Germany (Siegen is damaged at about 90 per cent), I should be able to tell you much about the distressful situation here. But that is not the purpose of this letter; on the contrary, I write to you because I want to say some simple words of thanks for the help coming from U. S. A. in the form of the CARE packages and others.

I have seen in this war-pounded district, and in spite of all need, many a mother with tears of joy, many old men and wives with happy eyes and particularly many children hopping with joy and enthusiasm about these wonderful American things not seen for so long. I must write these words saying to you: Your good will is recognized with hearts full of thanks! There are not only people who only pocket your goods, but many many poor people saying: "We thank you and God save you!"

U. N. Language

I suggest that as a step toward promoting world harmony the United Nations appoint a committee to select a universal language, along the line of Esperanto for example, to be taught in the schools of all nations embraced in the United Nations, and who desire to do so. I make the latter proviso because Russia will probably not agree but the other nations should proceed with the plan without Russia if necessary and outside of the United Nations if it is necessary to do it in that way because of a Russian veto.

If this plan be adopted the next generation will be able to converse with their fellow men in every country of the world without interpreters.

Segregated Intellect

Whatever the outcome of the present impasse between legal and social demands on the National Theater, we who are teachers of colored youth fervently hope that the Nation's Capital may in time obtain a legitimate theater wherein the best inheritance of our civilization may be interpreted for all who hunger and thirst for culture.

There is no segregation so paralyzing to the segregated and so dehumanizing and stultifying to the civilization that fosters it as the attempt to cabin and crib the spirit and soul of man by an inexorably planned segregation of his intellect. In saying this I speak not for myself nor my class. In this as in other things life has its compensations. But woe to the democracy that feeds fish to one and fowl to the other by educating its youth in color strips.

Better go the whole length and forbid the alphabet altogether, for if you allow identical courses of study, textbooks, public press and radio without discrimination, while the door is shut against interpretations of Shakespeare, Ibsen, Tolstoy and Shaw, you will have a distorted state of mind in a third or more of the population.

Blunder in Greece

Your reliable reporter, M. W. Fodor, on May 28 stated: "Order must be established in Greece not by military means but by appeasment—that is by compromise between the warring parties, and by holding new elections that will bring to power a government enjoying the confidence of the majority of the Greek people."

Mr. Fodor then quoted Greece's grand old man, Themistocles Sophoulis, a former Premier, who said: "Rebellion cannot be suppressed by military means. Increased casualties would only further divide the population into two camps."

Mr. Fodor has gained the confidence of his readers and time has confirmed the accuracy of his observations. Would that our State Department had followed the advice of as intelligent and unbiased an emissary.

It cannot be denied that the so-called guerilla bands in Greece are motivated by the misery of misrule and not by any desire for communism. Our activities on behalf of the royal regime there has given the Communists their excuse to call it antidemocratic and to increase their assistance to the guerillas. We have blundered in so doing as we did in China.

Washington, D. C.

While wrapping a firkin of watermelon rind pickle in the editoral page of The Washington Post of August 28, I came across what appeared to be a brace of inconsistencies, or, as The Washington Post would say, a brace of two inconsistences. Frankly it has upset me quite a bit. I hope you will be able to clear this thing up for me.

But enough of this chit-chat. The editorial, which discussed the case of Judge Raedy's car, said, in part, "While unquestionably the failure to stop constituted a violation of the law, it hardly warranted the opprobrium of 'hit and run'—a term usually reserved for accidents in which someone is injured and left unattended."

Good thought, crisply done. But in The Washington Post of August 27 on the Compensations of Senility page, a story headed, "King Ready With Data in Raedy Case," says in the first, or lead, paragraph:

"Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King last night declared himself 'ready' to take definite action on his inquiry into the hit-run accident involving the car of Municipal Judge Ellen K. Raedy."

Italics, sir, are ours.

The news story also tells us the accident occurred on August 19. The editorial says, however, it was August 15. This is the sort of thing that breeds a lack of confidence, boys.

Just one more thing, sir, before I get back to my pressure cooker. The editorial said, also, "In itself the accident was trifling." After getting warmed up to his work, though, your man writes, "If she (Judge Raedy) should be proved guilty in the face of her statements to the contrary, it would be inconceivable that she should remain on the bench."

I do hope to see a clarifying statement, say a column and a half or so, within the next few days.

I remain yours truly,

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Gen. Clay's Job

BERLIN—In a glass and stucco building on the outskirts of ruined Berlin are the offices of the man who has been called America's viceroy in Germany. This is a title singularly unsuited to Gen. Lucius D. Clay. The term "viceroy" calls up pomp and circumstance, the display of imperial power. That is not Clay's style.

One MP is at the gate of the courtyard before the main entrance of the building. He is there to inspect credentials. Another MP is at the main door. This is the only military display at the headquarters of the man who is commander of American troops in this theater and military governor of a large area of Germany.

He must, of course, maintain prestige in a part of the world where the outward signs of prestige count for more than they do back home. He has a private plane and a private train equipped with living and office quarters which he uses to shuttle back and forth between here and Frankfurt, principal headquarters for the American zone. His house in Berlin is not pretentious, and his three or four German servants he pays out of his own pocket.

By 8 o'clock each morning, Clay is at his desk. He hardly ever leaves his office before 7 in the evening. Since he takes no lunch, except when he is required to attend formal luncheons, that makes a long day. At least a half dozen times his efficient secretary, Wac Capt. Margaret Allen, brings in coffee, which is offered to the visitor, too.

YOU FEEL a controlled tension beneath Clay's calm exterior and quiet speech. Behind his drive is a powerful head of steam that rarely gets out of control. In his eyes is a dark intensity.

Many qualities have gone into the shaping of his self-discipline. He is 50 years old. In his youth in Georgia was the bitter memory of defeat and conquest, occupation by an army of carpet-baggers.

Clay's father was a United States Senator from Georgia. Clay got an early schooling in the politics of Washington. Then came West Point and, after that, service with the Army Engineers.

He was educated in another kind of politics in the New Deal era. Repeatedly Clay went before congressional committees to explain this or that public works project. It gave him an invaluable background for what was to come later.

Because of that background he was ordered to a desk in Washington when the war broke out. He knew how to cut through the tangle of red tape and delay both in business and in Government. Clay fought the battle of the War Production Board. Because his goal was to boost war production and consequently to cut civilian output, he frequently clashed with the civilians who sat on the opposite side of the table.

BUT ONE civilian who became his close friend and admirer was James F. Byrnes. When Byrnes became Secretary of State in July, 1945, one of the first issues to come up was whether the German occupation should be turned over to civilians—i. e., to the State Department. Byrnes decided he had enough troubles. He voted to keep control where it was.

The State Department did acquire, however, a policy-making function. Inevitably there was bureaucratic wrangling between the State and War Departments.

Clay, then the deputy military governor in the American zone, was the man in the middle, facing the day-to-day job of supervising the feeding, the denazifying, the re-education and the pacification of some 17 million Germans. When vital decisions were not forthcoming from Washington, Clay made them himself. He had to. He was dealing not with words on paper but with human beings.

One of his decisions was to stop sending machinery out of the American zone into Soviet Russia as reparations. He took that step after a long struggle to get the Russians to live up to various conditions of the Potsdam declaration.

Yet he remains on terms of personal friendship with his Russian opposite number in Berlin—Gen. Vasily Sokolovsky. They meet three times a month in the sessions of the Allied Control Council. And when the arguments are over for the day, they sit down to a generous luncheon as though not a single difference existed between them.

British Rioters

Do you not think it would be advisable to question the sanity of a certain contributor to your paper, namely, Harry Brickman, whose letter appeared on August 9?

A portion of his article was reprinted in a Sunday paper, describing his suggestions for clearing the rioters supposed to be racing round London streets and explaining how the American military should police the city.

It did surprise me that a paper of such integrity as The Washington Post would print such rot.

On the other hand was it meant as a joke? If so I apologize for being slow-witted and strongly suggest that Harry Brickman read that delightful book by Norman Hunter, illustrated by W. Heath Robinson, The Incredible Adventures of Professor Branstawm. It has given my two children many laughs and if they can appreciate the humor, I feel sure he could too.

Citizen Wallace

By Kenneth Crawford

Appraisal After One Year

Kenneth Crawford, associate editor of Newsweek, is a guest columnist for Ernest Lindley.

IT IS ALMOST a year since Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace became Citizen Wallace at the request of President Truman. This would seem to be an appropriate time for a review of Wallace's spectacular achievements as a free lance politician and for preview of his role in the upcoming presidential election year. Whatever one may think of him, he is certainly among the most interesting phenomena on the public scene and may even be important.

Fired from the Cabinet last September after denouncing the foreign policy of the Administration he served, Wallace became editor of the New Republic, a once respected liberal journal. Even though it had slipped sadly in esteem through the closing years of the war and the early months of peace, Wallace must be credited with furthering its deterioration. Mirroring his thinking, the magazine became an apologist for Russian totalitarianism and its depredations abroad while professing liberalism and actually supporting liberal causes at home.

Such a position is too patently incongrous to command respect when presented in the cold black and white of magazine pages. When Wallace himself does it from the political platform, the effect is less jolting. There is the mitigating effect of attractive human warmth. Audiences feel that, oddly self-contradictory as his doctrine may be, Wallace believes in it. The unruly forelock somehow compensates for lack of logic. A magazine, unfortunately, has no forelock.

HIS EDITORIAL career launched, Wallace took off on a tour of England, France and the Scandinavian countries. There he undertook, with at least temporary success, to create the impression that his own country, under the leadership of Truman, was embarked on a course of tough dollar imperialism against the wishes of the world at large and all right-minded citizens of the United States. He warned that such a course might lead to war with Russia and disaster to civilization but suggested that the world take heart because he, Wallace, represented so many Americans that Truman eventually would be forced to return to paths of international righteousness, i.e., Russian appeasement.

Then he returned to his native land to make good this implied promise. He packed them into his meetings like no one since Bryan. He shouted, "peace, peace," from California to Washington, D. C. He threatened to organize a third party and thus deny Truman the margin of left-wing votes that might elect a Republican in 1948, unless Truman listened to his advice on foreign policy and stood by labor and Roosevelt progressivism at home. In California, a pixyish political adventurer, one Robert Kenney, actually organized Wallace followers with the object of nominating their man for President on the Democratic ticket or, failing that, running him as a third party candidate.

THEN WALLACE retired to his New York farm temporarily to inbreed chickens and cross an American strawberry with a Russian strawberry, thus making a modest start toward the Russo-American rapprochement he had been advocating. But meanwhile some distressing things had happened. The Russians had been offered United States aid in reconstructing both their own country and their eastern European satellites and they had bluntly turned it down. The offer, made in an address at Harvard by Secretary of State Marshall, hadn't sounded very much like cruel dollar imperialism. And Truman had vetoed the Taft-Hartley labor bill to the great satisfaction of American labor leaders. Some of these leaders promptly indorsed Truman for reelection without waiting to back up Wallace's third party threat.

That is the situation as Wallace banks his chicken houses and strawberry plants against the New York winter and rides forth to reenter the political lists. Organized labor, except for the extreme left fringe, has deserted him. Russia has angrily rejected the kind of help Wallace wanted his country to extend. He looks lonely and not a little foolish. Yet he seems undaunted. In his latest New Republic ukase he in effect charges labor leadership with double crossing him, accuses Truman of vetoing the Taft-Hartley bill with insufficient gusto and insists that Truman's foreign policy is somehow responsible for the drift toward two worlds, rather than one, that Russia insists upon.

HE WRITES in amazement about his New York neighbors, many of whom, he discovers, share his wish for world peace. It always seems to surprise Wallace to learn that he is not alone in his aversion to war. It is probably the most accurate index either of his simplicity of mind or his utterly cynical demagoguery (which depends upon one's individual judgment of his character) that he never concedes that Truman is trying as sincerely as he, but in a different way, to achieve world peace and that an overwhelming majority of Americans seem to agree that Truman's way is the more promising.

So Wallace's immediate future doesn't look very bright. Boom prosperity at home, a prosperity that seems destined to last another year, creates an atmosphere inimical to the home reformer. Russian intransigence clearly makes a mockery of the one-world ideal abroad. Bedding with the bear at this moment would be a case of rape rather than requited love.

Yet Wallace shouldn't be written off as an influence in American politics. Come the depression, there will again be a market for the wares of the reformer, whether he be honest man, demagogue, or, as is probably the case with Wallace, a combination of both. Moreover, there is always a market for pacifism at any price and dissent of any variety. And Wallace still has with him the irrepressible Communists and their travelers; these will probably remain loyal so long as he speaks out against measures to contain Russia's imperialist spread by diplomacy, economic pressure or force. They may not be good allies but they are loud.

German Industry

By Barnet Nover

France And The New Plan

FOR UNDERSTANDABLE reasons, there is a good deal less than complete satisfaction in Paris with the outcome of the recent three-power talks in London regarding Germany's industrial expansion.

NOVER

The London meeting ended, as it had begun, with the French dissatisfied with the proposal to boost steel, machine tools and chemicals production in the Anglo-American zones of Germany and Great Britain and the United States determined to go ahead with their plan regardless of French objections.

From this point of view the London talks might be written off as a failure. Yet, in more than one respect, they were not a failure, if by no means an unqualified success.

During the course of the conference progress was made in eliminating certain misunderstandings between the French, on the one hand, and the British and Americans, on the other. Some success was achieved in reconciling the different viewpoints. The way was also paved for further progress in that direction.

WHAT THE FRENCH at one time seemed to be arguing for was that the English-speaking powers, instead of discussing ways and means of increasing the German level of industry, ought to be considering ways and means of increasing the French level of industry.

This, of course, was out of the question. The United States and Great Britain are very anxious to see France recover as rapidly as possible. Yet it is deemed very questionable in Washington and London whether France, or any other western European nation, can make full progress toward recovery unless and until something is done in the direct of rehabilitating the industrial heart of Europe, which is the Ruhr.

Furthermore, until something constructive is done about the Ruhr, the burden on the American and British taxpayers who have to foot the bill for German food and raw materials imports will remain heavy.

IN THE COURSE of the London talks, the French did not press their extreme claims. They abandoned their objection to a rise in the German steel production level per se. Theoretically, the present level, fixed in 1946, permitted a total annual production of 5,800,000 tons in the combined Anglo-American zone. Actually, during 1946, steel production in the two zones amounted only to slightly more than two million tons.

It will take some time before the new permitted level of 10,700,000 tons, announced after the close of the London meeting, is reached.

How fast that German production will achieve that new level will depend on a number of unknowns, the most important of them being the speed with which coal and coke production in the Ruhr can be stepped up.

That production has begun to show a gratifying rise. On Monday, August 29 it reached a daily total of 246,717 tons. That is a record for the post-war period. But it is still far below the daily prewar production of 400,000 tons.

WHAT THE FRENCH fear, and not without reason, is that a rapid rise in German steel production would mean the absorption by German industry of the entire or an increasingly large part of the Ruhr's coal and coke output.

Should that happen, they say, the expansion of France's steel production would be retarded. They have been hoping to bring their annual output up to 12 million tons by 1951 but that can only be done by increasing Ruhr coal and coke exports to France.

Nor is that all. While France would be weakened by such a diversion of Ruhr coal, Germany would be strengthened. A stronger Germany, the French are convinced, means a more aggressive Germany, a Germany that might again take to the warpath.

THESE FRENCH fears have been played upon for all they are worth by Soviet propaganda.

Incessantly, the contention is made by Moscow and its stooges in France and elsewhere that the Anglo-Saxon powers have given priority to Germany's industrial recovery while neglecting the nations that had fought Germany.

To offset these fears, the communique issued at the close of the London meeting declared categorically that the new level of industry plan "should not result in priority being given to the rehabilitation of Germany over that of the democratic countries of Europe. They consider it necessary that German resources should contribute to the general rehabilitation of Europe."

At the same time, Great Britain and the United States have agreed to discuss "forthwith" the French proposal for an increase in the export of coke from the Ruhr.

Here, again, we come up against what is the central problem, namely, whether and how soon it will be possible to bring about a major expansion in Ruhr coal production.

If it could be stepped up rapidly there should be no difficulty in meeting France's growing needs of Ruhr coal and coke while, at the same time, making possible a badly needed increase in German steel production.

Plan to Link Scenic Parks Is Completed

Plans for one of the most scenic roadways and park areas in the country, extending Virginia's famous Skyline Drive into western North Carolina's equally famous Grandfather Mountain-Linville Gorge area, were completed this week.

The plans call for connecting the Shenandoah National Park, along the Skyline Drive, with the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, by way of the Blue Ridge Parkway, now being built.

The project was set up in an inter-bureau agreement signed Wednesday by Newton B. Drury, director of the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior, and Lyle F. Watts, chief of the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture.

The agreement sets up a special administrative area of approximately 55,000 acres of privately and publicly owned land through which the parkway route will run. The special area lies within the Pisgah National Forest and purchase unit.

Famous Areas Included

Two famous areas are marked for inclusion within the immediate boundaries of the parkway, which will be administered by the National Park Service.

These are:

1. About 7500 acres in the vicinity of Grandfather Mountain, and including Grandmother Mountain, in North Carolina just below the Virginia border south of Abingdon, Va.

2. About 5500 acres bordering the Linville River and including the famed Linville Falls, just southwest of the two mountains.

Ambition Fulfilled

Inclusion of the North Carolina portions of the parkway, fulfills an ambition of Harlan P. Kelsey of East Boxford, Mass. Kelsey visited the site years ago, and recently started a popular movement to raise money for the purchase and donation to the Government of the Grandfather Mountain area.

Kelsey was a member of the Federal Commission that 20 years ago recommended the establishment of both the Shenandoah and Great Smoky Mountains National Parks.

The agreement also provides that 6700 acres of the Linville Gorge, in the Pisgah National Forest and under Forest Service management, to be designated a "wild area."

The completion of the drive will provide a scenic roadway beginning at Front Royal, Va., and extending to southern North Carolina, about three times the 103 miles that now make up Skyline Drive.

Two Brazil Speeches Set For Truman

President Truman will address a joint session of the Brazilian Congress next Friday at 3 p. m., Eastern Daylight Time (4 p. m. Brazilian time), the White House announced yesterday.

This will be the second major address Mr. Truman will deliver during his week's stay in Brazil. The White House said the speech before the Brazilian Congress would be brief.

His principal speech will be a 20-minute address at 9:30 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time (10:30 a.m., Brazil time) next Tuesday at the closing session of the Inter-American Defense Conference. This speech will be broadcast.

Mr. Truman also will give a brief informal talk aboard the Battleship Missouri Tuesday at a buffet luncheon for delegates to the conference and ranking Brazilian officials.

The White House filled in additional spots in the President's itinerary today as follows:

Sunday, 9 a. m. (EST)—Takes off in the airliner Independence for Brazil.

Monday, 3 p. m., Brazil time (Eastern Daylight Time is one hour earlier)—Arrives at Galeao Airport. The President, Mrs. Truman, Margaret Truman and others in his party will board small boats to the touring club landing dock where they will be welcomed by Brazilian President Dutra, Mrs. Dutra, Brazilian ministers and others.

The party will then parade through Rio de Janeiro to the American Embassy residence, where the President and his family will take up temporary quarters.

Tuesday, 8:30 a. m.—Presidents Truman and Dutra motor from the embassy to Petropolis for the closing session of the conference at Quitandinha Hotel, arriving at 10 a. m.

10:30 a. m.—Mr. Truman addresses the conference.

11 a. m.—The President motors to the Ministry of Marine dock in Rio to take a small boat to the battleship Missouri in Rio Bay.

2 p. m.—Buffet luncheon on the Missouri for conference delegates.

5 p. m.—Leaves the Missouri to return to embassy.

Wednesday-Thursday — These two days will be kept free of official activity so the President can rest.

Friday, 4 p. m.—Mr. Truman addresses a joint session of the Brazilian Congress, then proceeds by motor to Laranjeiras Palace, where the President will reside until he departs from Rio.

8:30 p. m.—Attends a Brazilian state dinner to be given by President Dutra at Valacio Itamriti.

10:30 p. m.—Attends reception at Itamriti Palace.

Saturday, 10:30 a. m.—President receives members of American Embassy staff at the embassy.

11:30 a. m.—The President goes sightseeing by motor through Copacabana, Ipanema, Leblon, Caveo and Alto Boa Vista. Luncheon will be served at Fontes House in Caveo Pequena.

8:30 p. m.—President gives state dinner for President Dutra at the embassy.

Sunday, 9 a. m.—President reviews Brazilian Independence Day parade with President Dutra. Immediately afterward Mr. Truman and his party will board the Missouri to leave Brazil.

Quake Recorded At Georgetown

A "fairly strong" earthquake, possibly in the Aleutians, was recordeed on the Georgetown University seimograph Thursday, University seismologists reported yesterday.

The shocks began at 10:41:20 a. m. (Eastern Daylight Time) and reached maximum intesity at 11:10 a. m. They continued until 12:45 p. m.

Seismologists estimated location at about 5200 miles northwest of Washington and said the shocks were strong enough to have done considerable damage had they occurred in populated areas.

The Gallup Poll

41% Prefer Working for U. S. To Job in Private Industry

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 29.—A substantial number of Americans—more than two in every five—say they would rather work for the Government than for a private firm.

Some conservatives will probably see in this fact sinister evidence of how far the spirit of bureaucracy has premeated our country. But the people's own attitude is simply that working for the Government brings more security than working in private employment. The typical attitude is, "The Government is a lasting organization; the job would be sure and steady."

Judging by the poll result, private companies in this land of free enterprise haven't done a very good job in making employment attractive to people, especially in the white collar and manual worker categories. In fact, the poll finds that as many people want to work for the Government as for private companies.

The country's attitude was measured as follows:

Assuming that the pay is the same, would you prefer to work for the United States Government or for a private firm?

Government	41%
Private firm	40
No opinion	19

All who expressed an opinion were asked, "Why do you feel this way?" The chief reasons in favor of Government employment, as seen by voters, are:

1. The Federal Government is a permanent thing; not so many ups and downs in employment. You don't get laid off every six months while they retool.

2. Government pension plan is good.

3. Better working conditions; not so much pressure.

On the other hand, those who prefer private employment say that its advantages are these:

1. Better opportunity for advancement; in Government work you get in a rut.

2. Less red tape; too much politics connected with Government jobs.

3. In a private firm you can use your own initiative and ability; you can be more on your own.

The greatest vote for Government employment is found in the manual worker and white collar group, as the following table shows:

	Gov't.	Private	Undec.
Bus. & Prof.	33%	53%	14%
Farmers	39	47	14
White Collar	36	39	25
Manual Workers	49	31	20

A survey on this same question was recently completed in England by the British Institute of Public Opinion. It, too, found substantial sentiment in favor of Government employment. But there is more sentiment here for it than in England.

The British vote:

Government	37%
Private firm	45
No opinion	18

With British basic industries being rapidly nationalized, a large proportion of workers will end up working for the Government.

Truman Reports Virtual End Of UNRRA; Urges Self-Help

By The Associated Press

President Truman, reporting to Congress on the virtual windup of the United States-financed phase of UNRRA operations, laid sharp stress yesterday on the idea that the time has come for Europe to help itself cooperatively.

He spoke pointedly of the "long-range" nature of the Marshall Plan for European self-help. And he broadly implied definite limitations on what this country will contribute to that project and on the conditions under which it will be given.

The President sent to Capitol Hill a report on operations of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration for the quarter ended March 31. In an accompanying letter he expressed assurance that when the final figures are available "the Congress and the people will be proud of the success" of UNRRA.

The UNRRA report itself said that the June 30 figures will show that the organization will have "accomplished its supply programs to a remarkable degree and will have utilized to the fullest possible extent the total contributions of approximately $3,685,000,000 made available by member governments."

United States financial participation in UNRRA ended with the second 1947 quarter when the money was cut off by Congress' order. Mr. Truman said that on that date the organization had obligated practically all of the $2,700,000,000 contributed by this country, amounting to about 75 per cent of the UNRRA fund. Funds from other countries can be used in 1948.

In the March quarter, the President said U. S. shipments to UNRRA - receiving countries amounted to 1,970,000 tons valued at $212,230,000. Cumulative world shipments by UNRRA since the organization was set up were shown as 22,239,217 tons, valued at $2,587,299,000, of which 16,650,000 tons worth $1,900,000,000 came from the United States. That U. S. share was figured at 75 per cent of the volume and 73 per cent of the value.

Mr. Truman's letter appeared to point up news conference statements by Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett this week that U. S. aid will be given only to a European recovery plan that is reasonable and realistic and which provides for diminishing demands on this country.

Curbs on Fruits And Vegetables Are Being Lifted

Quarantine restrictions on shipments of fruits, vegetables, and cut flowers, from sections infested by the Japanese beetle, are being lifted, the Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

Quarantine on fruits and vegetables, except green ear corn, will be lifted today.

Because beetles often eat corn silk and work down into the tips of the ears, green corn restrictions will remain until September 12.

Restrictions on cut flowers will continue until September 30.

The areas where restrictions are being raised include western Maryland, the District of Columbia and Arlington County, Alexandria, and Norfolk, Va., and the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula.

GOP Economy Goal Missed: Only 200,000 Fired by U. S.

By the United Press

Administration officials estimated yesterday that the Republican economy drive lopped about 200,000 jobs off the Federal payroll—roughly one fifth of the goal set by some GOP congressional leaders.

The cut represents slightly less than 16 per cent of the total Government staff, and fell far short of the one million Federal workers slated to be fired in the economy drive. These predictions stemmed chiefly from Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee, in which all money bills originate.

When the Eightieth Congress assembled last January, under Republican control, the Government had 2,277,104 civilian employes, a staff already sharply reduced from the 3,188,625 wartime peak.

Acting on its own, the Administration began discharging some 60,000 workers in compliance with President Truman's "executive branch economy drive."

When Congress completed the appropriation bills for the fiscal year 1948 Administration figures estimated that an additional 180,000 to 200,000 employes would have to be fired to "come within the budget."

Although the Civil Service Commission has not issued official figures for Government employment since the new fiscal year began, it was believed that the next report will show slightly more than two million workers on the Federal payroll.

A vast majority of the employes already discharged have been temporary "war service" workers. But an estimated 1400 career employes were released—touching off a sharp behind-the-scenes fight in Government bureaus.

Winter Fuel Situation 'Looks Very Tough'

Max Ball, director of the Interior Department's oil and gas division, told a reporter yesterday that the winter liquid fuel situation "looks very tough."

Ball said fuel oil shortages—caused primarily by a lack of tank car equipment—will be most critical in the Midwest.

Hair-Raising Event Alarms U N. Delegate

New York, Aug. 29 (U.P.)—Herschel Johnson, United States delegate to the United Nations Security Council, called in the police bomb disposal squad today to inspect a suspicious looking package he received at his home today.

Bomb disposal experts carefully opened the package in a safe spot and removed a bottle of shampoo.

Youth Urged To Use Talent For Church

Dr. Walter E. Schuette, president of the American Lutheran Church's Eastern District, yesterday challenged youth to use its talents toward building the church.

The speaker, a clergyman from Sewickley, near Pittsburgh, Pa., addressed afternoon sessions of the eleventh annual convention, Luther League, Eastern District, at American University.

Dr. Schuette told delegates not to underestimate their time and talent in the work of the church. He was introduced by George Dasher of Ellicott City, Md., president of the Eastern District Luther League, covering the District and 10 States.

The Rev. August Gysan, pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Alexandria, Va., addressed the devotional period at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, near the campus.

Elections of Eastern District Luther League officers and other features are on today's agenda. The parley will close with a Communion service tomorrow at 7:30 a. m. in Metropolitan Church. The preacher will be Dr. Bernard Holm, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church.

Lutherans Providing Addition To Home

Architect's sketch of additions planned to National Lutheran Home for the Aged, 18th and Douglas sts. ne. The "Maryland Synod Building" is being constructed on the south end of the present building. Before 1952, the "Central Pennsylvania Synod Building" wing will be erected on the north side of the present home, shown in center. Excavation work has begun for the south wing

District and Maryland Lutherans, as well as any from West Virginia and central Pennsylvania, are providing a 60-room addition to the National Lutheran Home for the Aged, 18th and Douglas sts. ne.

Excavation work has begun on the addition south of the present home. It will be known as the "Maryland Synod Building, recognizing the financial contributions which have come from the District and Maryland, known as the Maryland Synod, United Lutheran Church.

The cornerstone-laying for the addition and the dedication of the already completed staff residence will take place in October, according to Dr. Robert Lang, the home's superintendent. He estimates that the "Maryland Synod Building" addition and the new dining room and kitchen will cost about $400,000.

Another Addition Planned

Many of the funds for the new building have come through annual $1 memberships which Lutherans hold in the home. The women's auxiliary of the home includes over 3000 members in churches in the Maryland, central Pennsylvania and West Virginia Synods, the three bodies that support the home. Within the next five years another 60-room addition will rise on the north end of the home. It will be called the "Central Pennsylvania Synod Building."

President of the women's auxiliary of the home is Miss A. Barbara Wiegand. She is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw., and an official of the Washington Federation of Churches and the Washington Council of Church Women.

Current project of the women's auxiliary is the renovation and enlargement of the home's chapel, where Lutheran pastors conduct services Sundays at 3 p. m. The project, to cost about $40,000, will include new windows, new pulpit, new organ and other improvements.

Dr. Lang says the Lutheran Home tries to avoid the "institutional" pattern of living.

"We try our best to make this like a real home and family, operating on the Golden Rule," he stated, explaining that most of the residents busy themselves with activities such as they would engage in at home.

Eighty-eight-year-old John Hoerner repairs furniture and other articles in his tiny workshop. Mrs. Helen C. Rodgers, once an art student, paints landscapes. Some women lend a hand in the kitchen and dining room. Members of the Inglewood Club of the home raised over $1000 last Founder's Day through sales of their needlework and other handicraft.

Average Age Is 80

The home now has 82 women and 8 men, and a waiting list of 78. Their average age is 80. Among the residents are a 92-year-old mother, Mrs. Loretta Bush, and her 71-year-old daughter, Miss Ora Bush, the latter having been totally deaf since birth. Oldest resident in point of residence is Miss Alice Keagy, 90, of Reisterstown, Md., who entered the home in 1920.

Among the District men on the board of directors are John W. Martin of St. Mark's-Incarnation Lutheran Church, president; Thomas P. Hickman of Reformation Church, treasurer; Dr. Carl Simon, pastor of Keller Memorial Church, secretary, and L. Russell Alden of St. Paul's Church, member for 40 years, and Dr. Lang, member ex officio.

D. C. Catholics To Take Part In Mich. Parley

Washingtonians will play important roles in the Catholic Tri-State Congress at Grand Rapids, Mich., September 12-17, it was announced yesterday at the National Catholic Welfare Conference headquarters here.

Speakers from here will be:

The Revs. William Rooney and Gilbert V. Hartke of Catholic University; the Revs. George Higgins, social action department, Edgar Schmiedeler, family life bureau, and William E. McManus, department of education, National Catholic Welfare Conference; Miss

Schmiedeler

Hartke

Linna Bresette and Miss Margaret Garrity, social action department, N. C. W. C.; Miss Catherine Schaefer, assistant to the general secretary U. N. affairs; Clarence Mitchell, director of the labor division, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Miss Jane Hoey, assistant director, Federal Security Administration; Miss Margaret Kelly, National Council of Catholic Women; Miss Miriam Marks, assistant secretary, National Center, Confraternity of Christian Doctrine and Mrs. H. A. Haynes, professor at Howard University, and the Revs. Philip J. Kenny and Raymond A. McGowan, of the N. C. W. C.

The congress will be sponsored by Bishop Francis J. Haas of Grand Rapids and the National Councils of Catholic Men and Women.

Its purpose will be "to make better known to clergy and laity the bishop's program as shown in the work of the departments and allied agencies of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and to coordinate and intensify Catholic effort by bringing together members of Catholic lay organizations and representatives of special Catholic agencies."

Father and Son To Hold Services

A father and son will conduct services tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw. Guest preacher will be the Rev. Byron W. John, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Montgomery, W. Va., who will be assisted in the services by his son, the Rev. Ralph Candler John, assistant minister of Foundry Church.

New Capital Clergy

Rev. Lowell Now Serving D. C. Pulpit

The Rev. C. Stanley Lowell is one of the numerous former service chaplains now serving Greater Washington pulpits.

Lowell

This lean, 37-year-old former Naval Reserve chaplain, who enjoys a fast game of tennis, was assigned to Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw., at last June's annual Baltimore Methodist Conference.

He comes to Washington from the Wesley Methodist Church of Dover, Del., of the Peninsula Methodist Conference. He likes recalling that Bishop Charles Wesley Flint, Washington Methodist resident bishop, attended the Tamiami Temple in Miami, Fla., when he was pastor there from 1936 to 1940 and the prelate was serving that area.

Mr. Lowell is a native of Hastings, Nebr., and was educated at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky.; Duke University and Yale Divinity School. At the last-named institution he was a classmate of the Rev. George Y. Flint, Bishop's Flint's son.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell are living at 3738 Jenifer st. nw. with their children—Marilyn, 6 and Dean Stanley, 4.

Bible Class Group Opens Parley Today

More than 400 Washington and nearby church folks will converge on Western Maryland College, Westminster, today for the twenty-sixth annual conference of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association.

Following registration, recreation and dinner today, delegates will meet in Alumni Hall to hear an address by Dr. Paul Christopher Warren, pastor of Baltimore's Second Presbyterian Church. He will speak frequently during the three-day sessions. Dr. Edgar Cordell Powers, executive secretary of the Maryland Bible Society, will share the speaking program with Dr. Warren.

A social hour at 9 p. m. in the gymnasium of Blanche Ward Hall will climax today's program. Howard M. Stackhouse, of the Box Bible Class of Emory Methodist Church, Brightwood, is chairman of the social events committee.

The program for tomorrow will include Bible classes for adults and young folks at 9:30 a. m.; a lecture and discussion groups at 10:30 a. m.; worship service at 11 a. m.; worship service at 8 p. m., and a "Fireside Hour" at 9:30 p. m.

The Bible Association's annual meeting is set for Monday at 9:30 a. m. Mrs. Gertrude M. Donovan is chairman of the nominating committee for the election of officers. Other members of that committee are Mrs. Myrtle Powell and J. F. Sidell.

Hyattsville Service

The Rev. Robert F. McFarlane will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at First Presbyterian Church, Hyattsville, on "Scrapping the Ten Commandments."

Service at Christ Episcopal Will Be Broadcast by WPIK

The service at 11 a. m. tomorrow at historic Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria, will be broadcast over WPIK, Alexandria. The preacher will be the Rev. Oren Van Tuyl Chamberlain, assistant rector of Christ Church. WPIK will broadcast services from the Washington Street Methodist Church, Alexandria, during September, and again from Christ Church in October.

Other Church Broadcasts

WINX will broadcast services tomorrow at 11 a. m. from National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle. During September, the services of Georgetown Lutheran Church will be heard over WINX.

The Rev. Charles R. Woodson, assistant pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at a service to be "aired" from the church over WBBC. "The Need for Vision" will be his theme.

The Rev. Berwin Jones, minister of the Pershing Drive Christian Church, Arlington, will speak Monday through Friday on the "Arlington Church of the Air" program over WARL. The program is sponsored by the Arlington Ministerial Union. The service of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Arlington, will be broadcast tomorrow at 11 a. m. over WARL. The Rev. George F. Tittman will preach.

National Baptist Young People Plan Discussion Hour

Young people of National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., will sponsor a discussion on "The Christian Attitude Toward World Government," tomorrow at 6:45 p. m.

Participants will include the Misses Lily Yee and Swen Shin, of the Chinese Community Church, and Walter Norris, Miss Norma uick and Robert Lacock, of National Baptist Memorial Church, with Norris presiding.

Michaux Services To Be Televised

Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux, known as radio's "Happy Am I" preacher, on September 5 at 7:30 p. m. will begin a series of weekly television programs over WTTG-Dumont.

The elder, who is pastor of the Church of God near Griffith Stadium, has been featured with his choir for many years on the Columbia and Mutual networks. He is now conducting his annual series of evangelistic services Sunday nights at Griffith Stadium.

Rabbi Harry Silverstone Praised for His New Book

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Rabbi Harry Silverstone is receiving praise for his latest literary effort, a book entitled "Every Man's Problems."

The fifth book from the pen of Rabbi Silverstone, spiritual leader of Tifereth Israel Congregation, 16th and Euclid sts. nw., it has been published by J. H. Furst and Company, of Baltimore.

In a foreword, Rabbi Silverstone says the purpose of his book "is to provide help and inspiration toward right thinking and right living, and to suggest ideals which will make for material and spiritual welfare."

MORE RECOMMENDED READING

"Journey Through the Bible," (Harper and Brothers), is a layman's non-theological version of the Bible. Dr. Walter Ferguson, English professor at Temple University, Philadelphia, the author, tells the old Biblical stories in style as timely as your newspaper. It soon will be on sale at bookstores.

Kelly Silverstone

TRANSLATING CHURCH WRITINGS

Scholars of Catholic University and other institutions are helping translate into English the principal writings of the Church Fathers.

"Our aim is to make the work not only accurate but also readable to the modern reader," says Dr. Roy J. Defarri, secretary-general of Catholic University and a member of the editorial board of the project.

According to Dr. Defarri, 15 years will be required to complete the edition of more than 100 volumes. Dr. Ludwig Schopp of New York, editorial director and initiator of the project, this week announced publication of Volume 1 of the edition, entitled "The Apostolic Fathers." Serving with Dr. Defarri on the editorial board are Fr. Wilfred Parsons, S. J., and Dr. Stephen Kuttner, both of Catholic University and the Rev. Anselm Strittmatter of St. Anselm's Priory and several out-of-town churchmen.

CHURCH'S ANONYMOUS GIFT

That $500 anonymous gift received by Mount Olivet Methodist Church in Arlington, Va., will be divided among the members September 7—with the suggestion that they invest it to enlarge the building fund.

The Rev. A. G. Lynch, pastor, disclosed that the anonymous donor contacted him by telephone during the church building fund drive, and suggested distributing the money to the congregation as an inducement toward increasing the amount.

"We have accepted the challenge," said the Rev. Mr. Lynch. "We believe we can take this money and multiply it several times. First reports of the success of the plan will be received at services October 2.

A RECORD PASTORATE

Dr. John Bailey Kelly, pastor of Georgetown Presbyterian Church, who will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, is the son of the late Dr. Joseph T. Kelly, for 52 years pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church, 13th and Fairmont sts. nw. That is the record pastorate for a Washington white minister. The late Dr. Walter H. Brooks served for 63 years as pastor of the Nineteenth Street (Negro) Baptist Church.

VACATION NOTES

The Rev. Stuart F. Gast, M. A., rector of the Episcopal Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, will be back in his pulpit tomorrow. He and Mrs. Gast and their son, Stuart, jr., have been vacationing in Harberton, Ohio, during August.

We received a card this week from Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, informing us of his preaching engagement last Sunday at the famous Timothy Eaton Memorial United Church in Toronto, Canada.

The Rev. Charles B. Austin, pastor of West Washington Baptist Church, and Mrs. Austin are back from vacation. Mr. Austin, however, will rest from preaching tomorrow, when the guest speaker at 11 a. m. will be Army Chaplain Roy H. Parker.

DR. CROMWELL HONORED

Dr. G. Custer Cromwell, formerly pastor of Lewis Memorial Methodist Church here, and now minister of the First Methodist Church, Towson, Md., has written a devotional message that was circulated yesterday to more than a million readers of The Upper Room. That publication is issued quarterly by the Methodist Board of Evangelism.

'MR. THOMAS CIRCLE'

This probably had the postman going around in "circles." Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, has received a letter addressed to "Mr. Thomas Circle, Washington, D. C." It began with "Dear Mr. Circle," and was a "thank you" message from a German professor's frau for a "CARE" relief package that the church shipped the family.

New Pastor of Plymouth Church

REV. MR. CATCHINGS

The Rev. L. Maynard Catchings, field representative of the American Missionary Association's race relations department, has accepted the pastorate of of Plymouth Congregational Church, 17th and P sts. nw., effective Monday. While studying at Howard University, he was assistant to the chapel dean, and assistant pastor of People's Congregational Church here. He also studied at Prairie View College, Texas, and the University of Texas. He was onetime Southern regional secretary for the National Student Y. M. C. A.

Indian Bishop To Speak Here

BISHOP SUBHAN

Bishop John A. Subhan, Methodist area bishop of Bombay, India, will speak tomorrow at 9 a. m., 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. He is the third Indian and the first convert from Mohammedanism ever to be elected to the Methodist episcopacy. He is on an American tour, representing the Southern Asia Council of Bishops. He was born a Moslem.

Dr. Blyth to Preach

Dr. Robert B. Blyth, formerly moderator of the Ohio State Conference of Congregational-Christian Churches, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Horse Show Opens Today At Warrenton

The renowned Warrenton Horse Show opens at 9:30 a. m. (EST) today at the horse show grounds with more than 1100 entries scheduled to participate in the three-day classic.

Officials said the show this year will "offer an exhibition which in both balance and variety of classes and caliber of entries will equal any show in the East." The tally of entries has "eclipsed all records" in the 48-year history of the Warrenton Horse Show Association, Treasurer Ian S. Montgomery said.

Its six divisions, comprising 71 classes, have attracted 237 horses from the outstanding stables of Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District, with a strong contender in the jumper division coming from Massachusetts.

$10,000 in Prizes

Prizes totaling $10,000, including eight stakes of $500 or more, are offered, and several trophies will be presented.

More than half the show's classes will be devoted to hunters and jumpers, maintaining Warrenton's reputation as the "hunter show of America," show officials said.

Night sessions are scheduled today and tomorrow.

Three of the stakes will be combined Keswick-Warrenton events, offering $750. The first leg was judged at the Keswick Hunt Club show Saturday when William M. Schlusemer's The Heckler, from Norfolk, Mass., won the jumper stake, after jumping off a three-way tie for the title. J. North Fletcher's Past Time was the green hunter winner, and Miss Betty Jane Baldwin's Brandywine the working hunter.

Other spectacular performers who will compete include Dr. and Mrs. Alvin I. Kay's Portmaker, a former Madison Square Garden winner and hunter stake winner at Keswick; Mr. and Mrs. John T. Maloney's Prompt Payment; Clarence C. Crises's Mosby; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kobzina's O'Doc; Mrs. Stephen C. Clark, jr.'s Mountbatten; Mrs. D. N. Lee's Bravo; Miss Peggy Hamilton's Golondrina; Miss Jane C. Pohl's Fitzrada; Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry's Cartender; W. C. Viar's Hi Jack and Hi Jack, jr.

Other Entries

Others exhibiting include Ballantrae, McLean; Mrs. Raymond Barbin, Keswick; Burrland Farm, Middleburg; Rappahannock Farms, Bloomsburg, Pa.; Miss Elizabeth C. Bosley, Monkton, Md.; Miss Sara Lee Cone, Richmond; Walter Craigie, Richmond; R. H. Dawson, Washington; Miss Terry Drury, White Sulphur, W. Va.; George N. FitzPatrick, Baltimore; Charles C. Freeland, Baltimore; Mahlon N. Haines, Monkton, Md.; Miss Mary Hopper, Bon Air, Va.; Miss Ellie Wood Keith, Charlottesville.

For juniors there will be 13 classes, climaxed by the championship award. A new 20-stall stable has been constructed to accommodate the unprecedented number of entries, it was announced.

AFL, CIO Have Ample Time to File At NLRB

Leaders of the CIO and AFL are getting ample time from the National Labor Relations Board to decide whether they will file non-Communist affidavits and financial statements as required by the Taft-Hartley law, it was disclosed yesterday.

Authoritative sources said NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham has decided to hold up until after the Labor Day weekend a big batch of notices informing CIO and ALF unions that their 3000 pending NLRB cases would be dismissed unless they filed within 20 days.

These informants said he was expected to issue the first of these notices Tuesday. The CIO top command meets here two days later to consider strategy on the filing issue and the AFL's 15-member executive council convenes in Chicago on September 8.

Deadline Misunderstood

Thus, the CIO leaders would have 18 days after the first notices go out to their member unions in which to make up their minds whether to file or let their NLRB cases go by the board. The AFL would have 15 days.

NLRB attorneys said there apparently had been some misunderstanding in union circles over the meaning of Denham's original 20-day ruling. Some unions believe Denham had set an automatic September 9 deadline for compliance. Actually, the attorneys said, each union has 20 days from the time it receives a formal notice.

Denham said in issuing the ruling that he would consider extending the deadline in specific cases where warranted by the facts.

Lewis May Refuse

Meanwhile, the United Mine Workers Journal hinted yesterday that John L. Lewis might refuse to sign the anti-Communist affidavit, a move which could result in blocking access to the Labor Board by 105 AFL unions.

Lewis is thirteenth vice president of the AFL and a member of its executive committee.

Denham has ruled that, if a single officer of the AFL or CIO refuses to sign the affidavit, facilities of the board will be denied to all unions affiliated with those organizations.

Lewis, in the West on vacation, has not yet said whether he will sign the affidavit declaring himself not to be a Communist. An article in the UMW Journal, however, insisted on the right of any officer to decline an invitation to prove his devotion to the American way of life.

From the other side of the fence came a pamphlet from the Republican National Committee scoring "misleading propaganda" about the Taft-Hartley Act's objectives and declaring the act to be in response to a demand by the American electorate.

And amid these arguments, the Labor Department reported that strikes during July were fewer than in any month since February. July was the last full month before the new law became effective.

The department reported 300 strikes in July involving 500,000 workers with 4,200,000 working days lost. Factors in keeping the loss of working time high, the department said, were the "short but widespread" walkout of 335,000 soft coal miners and the month-long strike of 75,000 shipyard workers.

Petworth to Resume Its Family Nights

"Family Night" supper meetings will be resumed Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. at Petworth Baptist Church, 7th and Randolph sts. nw. The Rev. James P. Rodgers, pastor, will return to his pulpit tomorrow, speaking at 11 a. m. on "The Carpenter." A sound film, "The Call of Matthew," will be shown tmorrow at 8 p. m.

UMW May Bar Taft, Hartley From Membership

If Senator Robert A. Taft, Representative Fred Hartley, or any members of the National Association of Manufacturers want to join John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, they'd better hurry up.

The miners' union, it was disclosed yesterday, is considering amending its constitution at the 1948 convention to bar all members of the NAM and Congressmen who voted for the Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

The proposed amendment has been submitted to Lewis for action at the convention, and thus far no dissenting voice has been heard from within UMW ranks.

The mine union constitution now forbids UMW members to join the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the Communist Party, the Ku Klux Klan or any Fascist, Nazi or bund organization.

Jack Kramer, Pails Meet in Davis Cup Opener

Haight Is So Scared He Drops an 'L'

DOES A TROTTING horse run faster than a pacer? According to our figures, pacers have a slight edge—Greyhound (trotter) has a mile record of 1.55¼ to 1.55 for Billy Direct (pacer). "That's surprising," . . . the man on the phone said. "I watched them as a boy and always thought the trotters were much faster." . . . That reminds me about Shirley Povich. When he first came from Maine 25 years ago, I took him to Bowie and after watching a race he remarked, "Why up home our horses run much faster and pull sulkies in the bargain." He was convinced he was wet when he looked up the comparative times in the office record book.

Haight

THE SEMIANNUAL rumor (one after each meeting) that the Charles Town track has been sold, was denied yesterday by Jockey Club Secretary Leeds Riely . . . In my recent piece about mountain climbing via auto, I referred to the "Corey" rd. Joe Bly postalcards thusly: "That drive must have scared you so much that it scared the "L" out of the highway. When I lived in Colorado Springs it was called the "Corley" hgwy." He is right. Perhaps I should sign my name "Water Haight" because it frightened the "L" out of me, too.

WE WERE laughing the other night about the old semipro football days around Washington. With no eligibility rules, an Alexandria eleven showed up one Sunday with five players from the Quantico Marines who had a top grid club in those years. The following weekend a Georgetown team went into action with nine Carlisle Indians . . . Joe Holman, the town's man-mountain publicity dealer, was all-State in high school basketball and football before he came here from Texas . . . What ever became of Steve Bagarus? . . . There's a move on to televise the features races daily at Laurel . . . Bob (WINX-Dumont) Wolff asked Andy Farkas what his greatest thrill was while playing for the Redskins and Andy answered, "collecting my pay check."

AMONG the current minor track riders, Jockey Danny Socca is the hardest whipper despite his lack of size. He learned from Sonny Workman who was the mile track champ in his day. When Sonny went to the whip, his mounts, including the great Equipoise, knew he meant business . . . all tracks allow whips but many have banned spurs . . . I ran into a slot machine out West that pays off on three lemons—but I couldn't beat it . . . which reminds me of a ball player who put a wad of money in a machine at training camp in an effort to hit the jack pot. In the early hours of the morning he made the grade—with the aid of a smashing stroke with a baseball bat . . .

DISAPPOINTED fishermen don't have to stop by the fish store to carry home evidence in a certain Colorado spot. Luckless trout seekers, for a price, can visit a hatchery and get a strike at every cast. This method eliminates lying . . . it is not illegal to sell crooked dice but it is unhealthy to shoot them . . . by the way, the Bureau of Standards has examined dice from Maryland's biggest house for years without finding a pair out of line . . . Frank G. Menke, author of "Encyclopedia of Sports" has another publication coming out soon that will answer all of your questions . . . buy yourself one and you won't have to phone our Sports Department . . . some listeners tell me that they can detect the inflection in Art (WOL) Brown's voice when he announces a race result if he had a winner or loser . . .

WASHINGTON ranks high as a pigeon racing center. Perhaps its No. 1 winged hero is Eureka (No. 1143). This bird, owned by Roy Matthews of this city, won the Havana-to-Washington race in 1928. There wasn't any second because Eureka was the only survivor (at least the only one to return) in the field of 28 . . . I'm told there's a good chance of getting a horse racing bill through in Virginia in the next few years . . . Maryland legislators are again toying with the "off-track" betting idea as an answer to the state's economic problems. Of course, the tracks are bitterly opposed . . . the miniature golf bug is beginning to bite the country again with new layouts being built in the Middle West . . . illegal fish netters once used the bay area just below Chesapeake Beach for their dirty work. However, they haven't been seen there since it was reported that a Navy gunner at the adjacent Radar Station took a pot shot at them last fall . . . there's a pair of skis in the Nerdiska Museum in Stockholm that were unearthed in Sweden. Archaeologists fix their age at 4000 years. However, this

Spence Homers Twice, Nats, Yanks Tied, 3-3

BULLETIN

New York, Aug. 29.—The Nats and New York Yankees were deadlocked at 3-all in the ninth.

New York, Aug. 29.—The Nats had a chance to get back at Bobo Newsom here tonight but were all tied up with the New York Yankees, 3-3, at the end of seven innings.

Bobo proved easy prey for former buddy Stan Spence who clouted two home runs, one with Mickey Vernon on base, to give the Nats a 3-1 lead going into the seventh inning.

The Nats promptly fell apart behind Early Wynn, as the Yanks tied the game in the seventh on two errors, two walks and an outfield fly. Bobo was removed in the seventh for a pinch-hitter.

The Yanks staked Bobo to a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Johnny Lindell tripled to right-center and came home as Joe DiMaggio followed with a double to left. DiMag's drive was not hit far, but Joe Grace was playing deep and almost made a shoestring catch.

The Yankee domination was short-lived, however, as Stan Spence struck back for the Nats with his twelfth homer of the year in the second. Spence's wallop, hit high into the right field stands, found Mickey Vernon, who had opened the inning with a single, aboard.

Spence Stings Bobo

Spence stung Newsom for his thirteenth homer in the fourth, swatting the first pitch on a line into the right field stands to increase the Nats' advantage to 3 to 1. It was the first hit made off Bobo since Stan had tagged him for that homer in the second.

Wynn, meanwhile, had allowed only one Yankee on base—Rizzuto with a walk in the second—since the first when Lindell and DiMag ganged up on him for the New York run. Buddy Lewis contributed a one hand catch in the fourth to rob George McQuinn of a homer and Eddie Yost made a great play on Billy Johnson in the same round, flagging his hard-hit liner and throwing him out.

A Pitchers Duel

After Spence's fourth inning swat, Wynn and Newsom settled down to a pitcher's duel. Bobo retired the next eight Nats in order yhile Wynn did not allow another hit until the sexith when Henrich singled with ane down. Early got Lindell and DiMaggio on outfield flies to dispel that threat, however.

The only other Yankee to reach base between the second and the sixth was Catcher Aaron Robinson who walked to open the fourth. But Newsom helped Wynn out of that spot by grounding into an easy Sullivan to Priddy to Vernon double play.

The Yankees tied it up in the seventh, pushing across two runs when the Nat defense went haywire. Priddy booted McQuinn's roller to start it. Then Johnson drippled a hopper to Wynn and he threw it into centerfield trying to cut down McQuinn at second, McQuinn going to third.

Robinson walked to load the bases and Rizzuto also walked to force in McQuinn. Bobby Brown, batting for Newsom, flied to Grace and Johnson scored after the catch. Stirnweiss was out on an infield fly and Henrich popped to Yost to end the inning.

Ferrier's Eagle Thriller

Furgol and Smith Shoot 67s, Top Early Western Finishers

Salt Lake City, Aug. 29 (AP).—Edward Furgol, a well-known golf campaigner out of Pontiac, Mich., and Al Smith, dark horse from Winston-Salem, N. C., licked par by five strokes today to lead early finishers in the first round of the $12,500 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Their 67s for the first 18-hole round on Salt Lake City's canyon-studded Country Club course gave them a two-stroke lead over the nearest competitors with a little more than half of the field across the finish line.

Worsham at 72

Lew Worsham, of Washington, D. C., shot a steady 36-36—72 to finish five strokes off the pace in the Western Open Golf Tournament.

But most of those still on the course were the "big name" players in the classiest lineup in Western Open history.

Grouped at 69 were Bobby Locke of South Africa; Jim Ferrier of San Francisco; Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio; Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles; Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., and Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind.

Furgol in Form

The 29-year-old Furgol, who was an All-America amateur champ three years ago, shot five birdies and equaled par figures on all other holes.

Smith hit seven birdies but was a bit more erratic as he went over par twice.

Although he was two strokes behind the leader, Ferrier had the best nine-hole score of the day, a five-under-par 30 on the front nine, and gave the galleries the day's biggest thrill with a shot not likely to be equalled in this tournament.

It came at the beginning of his round as the big Australian-born star blasted a 300-yard drive off the first tee. His second ball, hit with a nine iron, traveled about 120 feet in the air, hit the cup on the fly and stayed down for an eagle deuce.

Record in Jeopardy

To this eagle, Ferrier added three birdies and five pars to round the turn with the day's most spectacular nine-hole score, but he slumped with a two over par 39 on the home stretch.

After watching virtually all the United States "Name" golfers scatter birdies, eagles and even hole-in-one shots over the scenic canyon layout in pretourney practice, local observers were certain today the 15-under-par course mark of 273 could never stand over the weekend.

Title Skeet Shoot At National Club

The National Capital Open and District of Columbia Skeet championships will take place today and tomorrow at the National Capital Skeet Club, at 9 a. m.

First event today is the .410-gauge championship. The junior, .20-guage and .20-guage two-man team championships will be held in the afternoon.

Four more events will be conducted tomorrow at 8 a. m., the all-guage, women's, all-guage, two-man and all-guage five-man championships.

8000 Watch East—West Skins Battle

Santa Ana, Calif., Aug. 28.—Washington's Redskin football squad drew a capacity crowd of over 8000 fans at Municipal Stadium here tonight for the team's annual East vs. West game which climaxes it summer training schedule.

The Redskins meet the Los Angeles Rams at Memorial Coliseum a week from tonight in their first game of the season.

With the possible exception of Hary Adelman at end and Al Couppee at fulback, the squad of 29 players was in good shape for the tussle that will go a long way toward deciding which 35 gridsters will remain with the team when it opens its National League schedule on September 28 against Philadelphia.

USC Well Represented

The opening lineup of Westerners included five former University of Southern California stars who had the additional advantage of Sammy Baugh at quarterback.

Jim Youel was the starting quarterback for the Eastern eleven at opening kickoff time.

In their four previous squad training games the East and West have each won two games.

Sherman League Named Coach at Shenandoah

Shenandoah, Va., Aug. 29.—The appointment of J. Sherman League of Charlestown, W. Va., as coach at Shenandoah High School was announced by Superintendent of Schools Cecil Graves. Mr. League holds a B.S. in secondary education and studied physical education at the University of West Virginia for a year and a half.

'Dream Team'

Marx Boys Back, Tired But Happy

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

THE Marx Jewelers All-American Amateur Baseball Association junior champions, returned to Washington yesterday, tired but happy.

Manager-Coach Jim Munro wasn't too tired, however, to give his impressions of the play at Johnstown, Pa., in which his charges won six of the seven games they played against the best junior teams in the country.

"This is a dream team—the best youngsters I've ever coached;" Munro stated. "The harmony and drive of these kids was something to see. Many should go far in baseball."

Asked what he felt was the turning point in the series. Munro answered the 10-run inning enjoyed by New Orleans against his club.

"That New Orleans team scored ten times in the sixth inning of our first game with them. It was a good thing, in a way, as my boys got all the bad baseball they played in the whole series out of their system then."

* * * *

"NEW ORLEANS got those 10 runs on only one hit. We made four errors and our pitchers gave up 8 bases on balls. Imagine that, all in one inning.

"Well, we fought back to score five runs after that, but lost out, 10-5. The boys were silent after the game, and that night we had a meeting in our hotel.

"We decided right then and there that we had the best team in the tournament. We told one another that we were going out and win every game from there on in. And when the boys said that, I knew we would come through.

"Pat O'Neill was the hitting star of the tournament. He collected 14 safeties in 29 times at bat. That's some hitting. In addition he stole eight bases. That boy is headed for the big time.

* * * *

"BUT the one who had the most to do with our winning was Sal DiGiorgi, who caught and played in the outfield. That boy has more fight than an army of wildcats. He was beaned three times during the tournament, but he never gave up.

"We had the best pitching in the tournament. Bob and Tex Jones and out captain, Bill Witzel, pitched some great ball. Bob Jones won the second game over New Orleans, and Witzel won the final game against the same team.

"We had the best balance, the best hitting and the best piching. You can't beat a team with all that."

Asked how he got this "dream team" together in the first place, Munro answered:

* * * *

"LAST year I had a lot of these boys in Junior American Legion ball. We decided to get together this year again and point for the All-American tournament. We added a few more All-High players, but kept our squad small. We wanted quality, not quantity.

"We tried to get the boys who could play more than one position. And we stayed away from prima donnas. As a result we have a ball team where our catchers can play the outfield if necessary and our pitchers can play the infield, and so forth.

"We played in the Capital City Junior League and won 12 and lost only 2. We have a season record of 25 games won and 7 lost, including play in this tournament.

"Although we have another game at Front Royal, Va., Sunday, we are just playing out our schedule. We've accomplished what we set out to do, and we certainly are thrilled."

Dodgers Beat Giants, 6 to 3

Brooklyn, Aug. 29 (AP).—Sailing into Lefty Dave Koslo for five hits and five runs in the sixth inning which also featured a steal of home by Jackie Robinson, the Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the New York Giants, 6-3, before 34,000 fans tonight to increase their National League lead over the idle St. Louis Cardinals to seven and a half games.

Janney Fears Racing's Death In Bookie Bets

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—Chairman Stuart S. Janney, jr., of the State racing commission said today that in his opinion legalizing of off-track betting on horse racing would sepll "the death of racing' 'in Maryland.

Emphasizing this was his personal opinion, and not that of the commission, Janney said it was not a moral issue, but one involving the economic welfare of Baltimore City.

Several city council members have suggested legalizing and taxing of bookmakers as a means of raising additional revenue.

"Woulr Be Harmful"

"I think it must be conceded that there is a limit on the amount of betting which any community will tolerate," Janney said in a statement.

"The scheme for legalizing off-the-track betting sets up gambling as a bsiness in itself and entices people to bet just for the sake of betting. It is my judgment that it would turn out to be harmful to the welfare of the community."

Fears Excess

He said tradesmen and business would feel its effects, and added:

"The families of those who gambled beyond their means would be injured. It would not be long before public sentiment would be aroused against the system and in the end all forms of betting at the tracks well might be prohibited.

"The end result would then be the death of racing and the loss to the State of the considerable revenue which it now derives from this source."

Maryland to Act On Harness Permits

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—The State racing commission hopes to begin hearings about the middle of September on formal applications for harness racing permits, Chairman Stuart S. Janney, jr., said today.

The 1947 Legislature legalized not more than 100 days of harness racing annually, with pari-mutuel wagering, and left it up to the racing commission to grant licenses and dates.

Formal applications have been filed by the Ocean Downs Racing Association, Inc., and the Cecil County Association, Inc.

Colts Buy Karmazin

New York, August 29 (AP).—The football Yanks of the All-America Conference tonight announced the sale of Mike Karmazin, a guard who formerly played at Duke University, to the Baltimore Colts.

$311,000 Spent, $26.41 Earned

San Francisco, Aug. 29 (AP).—The bangtails can be beaten, Victor W. Nielsen assured the court—but the percentage wasn't anything to shout about.

Nielsen, testifying in a divorce case yesterday, pulled out a little black book on his bets to counter his wife's claims that he squandered the family's money on the race horses.

In two years, he told the court, he had bought $311,000 worth of parimutuel tickets on an original capital of $4500.

His profits? $26.41.

Robinson Kayoes 'Flash' in a Flash

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—In the fight show put on in Madison Square Garden tonight for the entertainment of the American Legion Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson scored a knockout over the champion of the Orient, Flashy Sebastian, at 1:02 of the first round.

In an earlier bout Sandy Saddler, New York Negro, stopped Cuban Champion Miguel Acevedo in the seventh as 16,000 looked on.

Ingram Bans College Stars Still Eligible

New York, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, starting his "freshman" year as commissioner of the All-America Football Conference today forbade clubs in his circuit to sign college players who still retain collegiate eligibility.

"No person whose class is graduated but who is attending college and who is still eligible for college football, shall be eligible to play in the conference," Ingram announced, adding that he intends "to enforce this rule with vigor, and uncompromisingly."

Ingram's tightening of regulations came as a result of his meeting with National Collegiate Athletic Association officials in Chicago last week.

Covers Servicemen

Under the old AAC regulations, college players became eligible for competition in the pro circuit when they graduated or their classes graduated on a regular four-year basis. The ruling paved the way for the signing of many returning servicemen who still had college eligibility remaining but whose classes had graduated.

The new ruling also covers players who miss a season's competition through injury, scholastic deficiencies, or other causes that allow them to remain school.

Although previously empowered to make exceptions in special cases, Ingram insisted "There will be no exceptions." He added that the authority to make exceptions had been removed at his own request.

Asks Colleges' Help

"We believe this rule will settle the whole problem, which has arisen between the colleges and our conference, and we expect it to be acclaimed with enthusiasm by college men all over the country," Ingram said.

He emphasized that in order for the rule to work, the AAC must have the co-operation of the colleges.

Bert Bell, commissioner of the rival National Football League, also met with NCAA officials in Chicago and assured them that his circuit would not sign any collegians with unused eligibility providing college conferences would allow game officials to work both college and pro contests.

Aussies Say Luck of Draw Favors Them

By Gayle Talbot

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Jack Kramer of the United States and Dinny Pails of Australia, the amateur tennis champions of their respective nations, will clash in the opening singles match of the Davis Cup challenge round at Forest Hills tomorrow before an expected crowd of more than 10,000.

This was the luck of the draw that the challenging Aussies had hoped for, as they feel it gives them their best chance of finishing the first day's play all-square. They are counting on their veteran star Jack Bromwich, to defeat America's other singles player, Ted Schroeder, in tomorrow's second duel.

Pails' name was the first pulled out of the big cup in the official draw on the clubhouse veranda. Then Mrs. T. Ellsworth Davenport, wife of the referee of the cup matches, plucked out the name of Kramer.

Just What Aussies Wanted

"Just what we wanted," beamed Roy Cowling, captain of the visitors. "I shuddered until they read off Kramer's name on the second pull."

"It suits us fine," echoed Elrie Man jr., Cowling's opposite number. "We really had no choice in the matter. I'm glad, though, that Kramer will get to open it."

Schroeder and Bromwich played the opening match at Melbourne last winter, and the net-playing Californian won out in a five-set thriller that set the American cause flying toward their 5-0 shutout victory of the Australians.

Bromwich, who has been playing brilliantly in practice this week, fully expects to turn the tables on Schroeder tomorrow. There is little hope in the visitors' camp, however, that Pails is equal to the task of holding Kramer.

Kramer Scares Them

The Aussies, in fact, do not believe that any amateur tennis player who ever lived could have coped with Kramer when he is at the top of his game, as he appears to be at present. Jack Crawford, the former Aussie star, gives it his considered opinion that "Big Jake" could have licked Don Budge on the best day the Redhead ever saw.

The Bromwich-Schroeder match will be in the nature of a play-off between the two. They' met in the finals of the Victoria championships at Melbourne a fortnight before last winter's cup matches, and Bromwich dusted Ted off in three straight sets. That Schroeder came back to beat the big, flaxen-haired Aussie in their cup duel was a tribute to the American's fighting heart and endurance.

If they can get an even break tomorrow the invaders feel they have a good chance of winning the doubles on Monday, in which Kramer and Schroeder are expected to tangle with Bromwich and Colin Long, the latter a husky bespectacled newcomer to cup play.

Aussies Have Secret Weapon

Australia has come up with a secret weapon with which she hopes to regain the Davis Cup, Jack Bridges, press attache of the Australian Embassy, revealed yesterday.

It seems that just before America won the final round matches last December in Melbourne, the American Ambassador to Australia, Mr. Robert Butler, presented the American team with a good luck charm. The result was that the U. S. regained the Davis Cup.

So when the Aussies take the court against the Americans at Forest Hills Saturday, Mr. Norman Makin, Australian Ambassador to the United States, will present a silver four-leaf clover to his countrymen. Which, according to the Australians, means that in a short time the Davis Cup will be on its way back to Australia.

Assumes Favorite's Role

Bubby Worsham Adopts Lew's Stratagem, Gains 'Sliderule' Victory in Caddy Tourney

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29 (AP). Eight youngsters swept into the quarter-finals of the second annual National caddy championship today, with Bub Worsham, of Washington, D. C., brother of National Open champion Lew Worsham, assuming the role as No. 1 favorite.

After winning 5 and 4 over Ronald Guariglya of Normandy, Mo., this morning, the blond brother of the champ came from far behind this afternoon for a one-up win over Tony Ondrus of Akron, Ohio, in a topsy-turvy match.

Still in the scrap for the President Truman trophy and a four-year scholarship at Ohio State University were four Ohioans, Jim Pollock and John Bernard of Columbus, Steve Hudak of Akron, and Hugh Quinn of Hamilton; Jim Dixon of Ypsilanti, Mich.; George Allmon of Kansas City, Mo., and Ray Wythers of Lincoln, Neb.

ALL three co-medalists were out of the running as the field was whittled down, Pollock firing a one-under par 71 to dispose of Darel Reed of Indian Hills, Ohio, and Worsham ushering Ondrus to the sidelines. The other qualifying leader, Dow Finsterwald of Athens, O., went out in yesterday's opening round.

As Worsham and Ondrus came to the dog-leg 18th, Worsham banged his drive into a deep fairway trap, and tried to come out with a wood club, but scuffed the ball which stopped 60 yards short of the green.

Ondus was nicely on, 25 feet from the cup in two, and when Worsham banged his third over the green it looked like the match was even. Worsham planted his fourth three feet from the cup, and Ondrus ran his approach putt past the cup, within a half-iinch of Worsham's.

WORSHAM, just as his brother did against Sam Snead in the national open playoff in St. Louis, insisted the distance be measured to see which should putt first, and Ondrus was away by a fraction of an inch.

The Akron youth rimmed the cup for a one-over-par five, and Worsham baanged his into the cup for the five which gave him the match, by a one-up margin.

The quarter-final pairings:

Pollock vs. Dixon, Worsham vs. Bernard, Quinn vs. Hudak, and Allmon vs. Wythers.

Georgetown 3 Deep With Able Passers

A STRONG aerial attack click- to a "T" figures in George- own grid Coach Jack Hagerty's reseason plans.

Three able passers are bolster- g Hoya hopes as the squad nds its first week of light drill nd blackboard sessions. Shifty lmer Raba, who has already een nominated as probable arting quarterback, is back fling short passes after a year n the crippled list.

Bob Barry, a product of Chi- go's Leo High, is a potential hucking threat who clicked with he "B" squad last season. Tom raham is a Philadelphia lad ho combines broken field run- ing talent with a strong throw- g arm.

Tackle Jim O'Keefe, whose 230 ounds tops the Hoya heavy- eights, rolled into early drills agging about a loss of 38 ounds since spring.

Hilltopper Bus Werder, candi- ate for All-America honors, is n an excellent position as far as radition goes. Both of the Hoyas' ll-Americans have been guards -Harry (Pud) Connaughton in 26 and Augie Lio in 1940.

est Virginia '72 Prospects

ORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—West Virginia Uni- ersity's football training camp pens Monday at Jackson's Mill, ith 72 varsity candidates sched- led to report to Head Coach ill Kern.

On the tentative roster are 49 oldovers. Kern also will lay out t welcome mat for eight other ame players, including Jimmy althall of Princeton, returning the gridiron for the first time ce the end of World War II.

Walthall was a backfield stand- ut as a freshman in 1944, and is year's Mountaineer offense ill be built around the tall peedster.

ichmond Looms rong Team Again

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 29 (AP). With All-Stater Jack Wil- ourne and Ed (Sugar) Ralston eading the way, Coach Johnny enlon's University of Richmond ackfield shapes up as one of the trongest in the State this season.

Six seasoned veterans in addi- ion to Wilbourne and Ralston re expected to be in the Spiders' amp when fall practice opens onday.

The only backfield letterman ost by the Spiders was Quarter- ack Pat Fenlon, younger brother f the head coach, who was grad- ated. However, Fenlon antici- ates no trouble replacing the an under the "T" with Co-Cap- ain Joe Laluna ready to step o the quarterback spot.

Laluna, a neat passing 175- ounder from Ossining, N. Y., lternated with Marion Tim- erlake of Fredericksburg, as substitute for Fenlon last ear. Timberlake, a bullet-like erialist, is slated to see a lot f duty, too.

Quarantined Horses Get 19-Day Meet

Salem, N. H., Aug. 29 (AP).—Rockingham Park was authorized today to run an "emergency" 19-day race meeting to accommodate horses quarantined by an epidemic of "swamp fever" at the track.

Lou Smith, executive director of Rockingham, announced the special meet would open September 13 and run until October 4 when the regular autumn meet gets under way.

With Narragansett Park in Pawtucket, R. I., opening a month-long meeting on Monday, this means that the major Rhode Island and New Hampshire tracks will be operating at the same time.

The New Hampshire Racing Commission announced it was authorizing the "emergency" meet to alleviate financial hardships facing horse owners at Rockingham who are forbidden to move their thoroughbreds to other tracks.

Narragansett officials declared their track was completely free of "swamp fever"—a form of anemia that saps the strength of horses and often is fatal.

Rockingham officials, too, expressed confidence that the epidemic had been checked at their track, declaring no new cases had been detected in the last three days.

Meanwhile, special precautions were being taken at Narragansett with warnings to owners that they must not even let their horses "rub noses."

All horses at the Rhode Island track will be stabled individually and switching of stalls will be prohibited.

Armed, Assault Race May Still Take Place

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP).—Possibility that a match race between King Ranch's Assault and Calumet's Stable's Armed might still take place this season was revealed in a statement today by George D. Widener, president of Belmont Park.

Widener said that if the trainers of the horses found their charges fit for the race Belmont would stage it on Saturday, September 27 with identical conditions prevailing as those planned for the race in Chicago which was cancelled because of soreness in Assault's hoof.

That means it would be at the distance of a mile and a quarter, weight for age, $100,000 added, winner take all.

"Robert Kleberg, Assault's owner," said Widener, "asked me if Belmont would be interested in staging this special event if Assault completed his apparent recovery. He said he was most anxious for it and felt the racing public had been disappointed at the forced abandonment of the race in Chicago.

"After consultation with Belmont's directors, I informed Mr. Kleberg we would be most happy to stage the race, if both horses were available, on Saturday, September 27 and that we would offer it under the same conditions as to purse and its running as those originally planned.

"I then spoke to Warren Wright, Armed's owner, in Chicago. His response was the decision would lay with his trainer and might be a week or more in the making, since his horse was in the midst of a hard campaign and was facing a big race now. Mr. Kleberg also wants to see how Assault returns to hard work before making his final decision.

"Everyone connected with the venture, of course, wants it certain that both horses do themselves full justice. If owners and trainers of both are satisfied on this score, we shall be very glad to have the race on September 27."

Assault is slated for a serious training move at Belmont Park on Monday and another on Wednesday and those trials will determine whether Trainer Max Hirsch considers the Kleberg star fit for the proposed race against Armed.

Four Softball Teams Clash

District softball fans will see four of the leading teams in this area clash tonight at Griffith Stadium in a benefit double-header.

Mount Rainier faces Baltimore Frame Refrigeration in the 8 p. m. opener, while Kavakos Grill and Thrifty Beverages meet in the 9:15 p. m. nightcap.

Mount Rainier's star hurler, Tom Dobyns, who has won 20 out of 26 starts this season, will work against Humphrey "Pennyworth" Nykula, who pitched 9 out of the 11 games that the crack Frame team won in its latest streak.

Another pitching duel is expected in the nightcap with Freddie Kramer of Thrifty Beverages opposing Kavakos' "Cannonball Jack" Smith. Each has won 18 and lost 2 this season.

Proceeds from the double-header will be used to send the District champion to the regional and National tournaments in Philadelphia and Cleveland next month.

Sharkey Rassles Here

Former Champion Bob Sharkey has been booked for a semiwindup match on next Wednesday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena. He will face Farro Rinaldo, the Milwaukee ace. This will be Sharkey's first local showing in several months.

Officials Set In Cup Regatta

George Hernan, chairman of the President's Cup Regatta rowing races, to be held jointly with the canoeing events next Sunday afternoon over the Key Bridge course, yesterday announced the lineup of officials.

They are chief judge, Jack Franklin; judges, Bob Rochardson and Dr. Robert Eller; referee and starter, Granville Gude; timer, Nelson Oliver; chief clerk of the course., Charles Eaton; clerks of course, Eldridge Wilson and Tom McNeil; distribution of medals, William Belt; chairman of reception committee, John Eiseman, sr.; refreshments, Larry Kelly.

The regatta officially opens next Saturday night with a swimming meet at East Potomac Park pool. September 13-16 the sailing events will be held off Hains Point to be followed by the powerboat classic, September 20-21.

I Declare Wins Garden State Feature Race

Garden State Park, Camden, N. J., Aug. 29 (AP).—Three candidates for the coming $10,000 Colonial Handicap finished one, two, three, in the 6-furlong, the Adolescent Handicap, sixth and featured race here today.

Brookfield Farms' I Declare, giving Jockey Don Padgett a riding double for the afternoon, beating Going Away by two lengths.

Going Away was a nose in front of Frankie's Bid, the one to receive most support from the crowd of 17,939.

I Declare was neglected in the betting and paid $22.30. She ran the 6 furlongs in 1.13 1-5 over the fast track.

Valhalla, which finished an also ran, was the one to show the way down the backstretch. I Declare raced in closest pursuit and the Brookfield lass moved into the lead on the turn.

Entering the stretch, I Declare held a two-length lead, which she maintained to the end. Going Airy came a trifle wide in the stretch then came on with good speed when straightened.

Jockey H. B. Wilson, who had won the third race, completed a riding double when he rode Dunder out through the stretch to beat the fast-closing Fulgaria two lengths in the 1 mile and furlong seventh race. Fulgaria was a half length ahead of Sleek Jane for the place. Dunder paid $10.20. He was timed in 1:53 4/5.

Daisy Chance, $18.10, won the eighth and final event, with Comic Ann second and Leavetaking third.

HAIGHT—From 14

doesn't prove that ski-jumping is that ancient. After all, prehistoric man carried a club that somewhat resembled a baseball bat. What are you trying to do Haight, start an argument? . . . when the Brooklyn Dodgers put a 20-foot screen on the top of the rightfield fence at Ebbets Field some years ago it was believed the move was one to stop homers. However, it was economic, because the club was tired of paying for replacing windows broken on Bedford Avenue. The screen was cheaper than glass . . . one of the improvements at Marlboro is a new announcer's booth. The races will be described over the PA there for the first time at the coming meeting.

Marandan Triumphs at Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 29.—Sammy Palumbo, veteran rider from Charles Town, W. Va., gave a turnout of 5500 a thrill when he put up a slashing ride aboard C. E. Brining's Marandan, favorite in the Johnstown Day purse.

Marandan won by a head from W. J. Peach, jr.'s Wrakfair, whose rider's foul claim was disallowed. Mrs. Emma Down's Joy Wes was third.

Favorite players, who registered 33 victories in the first 64 races run, an average of better than 50 per cent, got a running start today when their first two choices registered.

In the 6½-furlong opener, A. Weiner's Sick's Blade was timed in 1:27 1/5 to lead home E. Dixon's Bit O'Flag, a 50-to-1 shot, with Mrs. A. Hass' Miss R third, the winner paid $6.20.

In the second, run at the same distance, D. S. Tabler's Hard Loser came from off the pace to pay $4.40, H. Kesting's Kohinoor, after setting the early pace, bested E. N. Kratz's Flying Wise for the place. Fans holding the 5-8 daily double combination of Sickle Blade and Hard Loser collected $17.40.

Rust Team Plays Fairfax "All-Stars"

The champion M. T. Rust Co. will play a team of All-Stars from the Fairfax County "A" League tomorrow at 2:30 at the Fairfax High School.

The game will be broadcast over Radio Station WEAM in Arlington. All proceeds will go to the Living Memorial Fund for Fairfax High School.

Major League Status Not Far Off Chandler Tells Coast's Directors

He Fails to Refer To Draft Freedo

Los Angeles, Aug. 29 (AP).—Commissioner A. B. Chandler today told Pacific Coast League directors and supporters of the circuit's plan to become a big league:

"You haven't had major baseball out here in over 40 years. Don't be impatient if it takes a few more years."

The commissioner, here with the major leagues' executive council to inspect coast facilities and ideas, spoke at a luncheon meeting of PCL representatives and civil leaders.

"We are going to ascertain the facts," declared Chandler. "We want to make a fair decision."

The commissioner said that decision, however, will not be made until the major leagues convene in December, and President Clarence Rowland of the Coast Loop assured Chandler that "we don't look for an answer until December."

The Coast League's primary demand on the executive council has been for freedom from the annual major draft. The PCL chieftains believe that to be the first step toward building up playing rosters of big league caliber. Chandler made no specific remarks concerning the draft.

Presidents Ford Frick of the National League and Will Harridge of the American, other leading members of the council did not speak. In fact, Harridge was taken ill and had to leave the luncheon. He was placed under physician's care at his hotel, where he was reported resting easily.

Other members of the so-called Chandler committee present were President Frank McKinney of the Pittsburgh Pirates, General Manager Leslie O'Connor of the Chicago White Sox, and Secretary Walter Mulbry of the Baseball Commission.

Browns Recall Pitcher, Infielder

St. Louis, Aug. 29 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns have recalled 12 players on option to minor league teams but only two—Infielder Perry Currin and Pitcher Bud Swartz of Springfield, Ill., of the Three-I League—will join the major league club this season, the Browns announced today.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Fitting Recognition Urged for Patterson

By Robert S. Allen

Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

In the practically daily welter of outcries and charges against men in high office, it is vital to keep in mind that there are many more Americans who have a lofty sense of duty and who serve their country honorably, devotedly and courageously.

Patterson

Too frequently the distinguished deeds and records of these citizens do not receive the acclaim they so richly deserve. Selfless devotion to public trust, as a general rule, does not make smash headlines. But throughout the Nation's history it has been such citizens, big and small, who have fought and won its battles and made the United States the mighty world power it is today.

It is the Merry-Go-Round's pleasure and honor to pay tribute to such an American by bestowing on him the brass ring ring for outstandingly patriotic and distinguished services to his country. Throughout his life, from the field of battle to high public office, he has met every test of selfless citizenship unfailingly, modestly and valorously.

This great American is Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War.

In bestowing the brass ring on him, this column in a very small way is endeavoring, to make up for the inexplicable failure to decorate him with the high medal he deserved when he retired from office recently. Far lesser men received DSM's and Legions of Merit. Why Bob Patterson was not so honored is a mystery. He merited it outstandingly on every count.

It can be said, of course, that he did not require such recognition. His kind of integrity, courage, and lofty sense of duty need no decoration to embellish them.

Also, in his lapel, Bob Patterson wears the gleaming pin of the Distinguished Service Cross that he won for extraordinary heroism in battle as a young company commander in World War I. A DSM would have added luster to this DSC, but could not have replaced it.

Yet, it would have been a gracious and eminently fitting act to have awarded him the DSM.

Iron Courage

Patterson unhesitatingly gave up a lifetime position as a United States Circuit Court judge to respond to the late President Roosevelt's request to assume the onerous and thankless responsibilities of directing the logistics branch of the War Department. They also know how he worked unflaggingly and fiercely to arm and equip his unprepared country.

But only a few members of his staff know of one particular act of uniquely outstanding fortitude and high sense of duty.

Patterson's only son was an AAF bombardier. The young soldier was a member of the crack squadron selected to make the first raid on the vital Ploesti oilfields in Romania on August 1, 1943. It was crucial to smash these installations in order to deprive the Nazis of desperately needed gas and fuel oil. For that reason, the attack had to be made at "tree top" level.

With the heavy bombers based 1200 miles away in Africa, that meant, in effect, a suicidal raid. Any plane that sustained damage had practically no chance of getting back.

On the day of the attack, Patterson was scheduled to leave Washington on an urgent secret mission in the Pacific. Before he departed, the War Department received word that the raid has been very successful but that more than 37 per cent of the bombers had been lost.

It would have been very easy for Patterson, as Undersecretary of War, to have ascertained the fate of his only son. All Patterson had to do was to lift his phone and ask for the information.

But he quietly left Washington without seeking or knowing what had become of his boy.

Patterson's concept of duty was so meticulous and inflexible that he would not use his position to gain information not available to the fathers and mothers of the other boys who made that attack.

A week later, far out in the Pacific, Patterson was formally notified by the War Department that his son's plane had been shot down. However, the boy had not been in it. Two days before the raid, he had been hospitalized as the result of an injury in a crash.

All the members of young Patterson's plane parachuted to safety and were captured by the Germans. After the war, all were recovered in a prison camp.

Modern Prosthetics

Another thing that only close friends know about Bob Patterson's service is that he is responsible for the Government's belated program to develop modern and effective artificial limbs.

Both the Army and Navy went to great lengths and cost to give the finest medical care to men who lost limbs. Special hospitals and rehabilitation centers were set up for amputees, who, at the height of the fighting, averaged as high as 1500 a month. But at that point their efforts ended.

Nothing was done about modernizing the prosthetic devices upon which these handicapped men would have to depend the rest of their lives.

Both services gave the amputees the best artificial limbs that could be bought. But they still were obsolete, cumbersome and ineffectual. There had been no real improvement in artificial limbs since World War I.

In the spring of 1945, Patterson, personally, finally took hold of this tragic problem himself. Over the hidebound opposition of certain Army brasshats, he set up a committee of civilian scientists, engineers and surgeons, provided them with ample funds, and put them to work to lift artificial limbs out of the ice age.

This committee on artificial limbs is still functioning. It is now jointly supported by the War Department and Veterans' Administration. It has already made some notable advances, and other promising developments are in progress. If this long-needed humanitarian program can be continued a few more years, the 800,000 amputees in the United States—civilians as well as veterans—can hopefully look forward to devices that will be as modern and as efficient as an up-to-date electric washing machine, at least.

If that modest goal is realized, it will be due in a large measure to the humanitarianism and high sense of duty of Robert P. Patterson.

44 of 45 Hungary 'Conspirators' Sentenced to Jail

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—A People's Court today convicted and sentenced to prison 44 of 45 "conspirators" whose alleged plot to overthrow the government last May sent Premier Ferenc Nagy into exile and the Communists into power.

The sentences were pronounced exactly three months after Nagy resigned and just two days before Hungarians will elect a new Parliament under what Communist Boss Matyas Rakosi today termed "the most democratic electoral system in the world."

In the second trial of Nagy Smallholders' Party supporters only Tibor Ham was acquitted. Other defendants drew prison terms ranging from two months to nine years.

Endre Misteth, former Smallholders' Minister of Reconstruction, was given 3½ years, and military leader Paul Jaczko received a four-year sentence.

Rakosi said that he would obtain permission for correspondents to visit polling places Sunday.

Tokyo Ban on Pets Exempts Goldfish And Canaries

Tokyo, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—All pets except canaries and gold fish, were banned from Tokyo apartments billets as of noon today but the Army said it would take no military police action against occupation wives who defied the order aimed at removing "nuisances."

Col. John F. Davis of the headquarters and service group denied that noon was the "deadline." He said, however, that Army and civilian personnel who did not comply with the 48-hour time limit set Wednesday would be "referred to higher headquarters."

"Higher headquarters," according to Davis, meant an unnamed section of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's supreme command.

Some of the chief woman complainants capitulated today, but other leaders of the group which yesterday swarmed into the office of Brig. Gen. R. N. Starr vowed to carry their fight to Congress.

Mrs. Anne Coon, New York City, said, however, that she wouldn't give up her dog and wouldn't board him with a Japanese family.

"Everybody knows the Japanese eat dogs," she said.

Labor Day Exodus Far In Excess Of Influx

Outbound Traffic Extremely Heavy; City Faces Sleepy, Ghost-Like Period

Despite earlier expectations, it became obvious last night that the exodus of holiday-minded Washington residents was to be greater than the influx of weekend visitors.

Outbound traffic was heavy as residents headed for fishing, bathing and just plain loafing spots up and down the eastern seaboard, but the paucity of incoming visitors suggested that Washington would turn into a sleepy, ghost-like town by nightfall.

Unlike previous holiday weekends this year, few hotels were booked solidly, a survey showed.

Visible Everywhere

From shortly after noon, when Federal workers started for Union Station, the bus depots and the Washington National Airport, the story of a rapidly emptying city was visible everywhere.

There were dozens of suitcase carriers in downtown streets. American Automobile Association information phones buzzed incessantly. Airlines switchboards flashed calls by the hundreds.

But motor travel was expected to draw the heaviest crowds by far. AAA officials expected 25 million cars on the highways across the country—an all-time record.

"People are going to take a chance even if they don't have reservations," a spokesman said. "This is their last fling and there's no stopping them."

Resort Hotels Booked Up

In contrast with the just-about-normal weekend business at Washington hotels, hotels at nearby resort areas were booked to the hilt. Business was especially brisk at Rehoboth Beach, Virginia Beach, Ocean City and the Poconos.

Travel experts said they "haven't been able to get any reservations for so long we can't remember when." They said they were "saying no all day."

At the swank Cavalier Hotel in Virginia Beach, the manager reported all the rooms were "booked solidly." He said there would be nothing available before Monday night.

While outbound traffic was heavy, it did not compare with the July 4 or Eastern weekends, officials agreed.

Sidney Kerl, Union Station superintendent, conceded that outgoing travel was "not as heavy as we expected it was going to be." Incoming travel, he said, was "just normal."

Many Extra Trains

Nevertheless, extra trains were put into operation on virtually all lines. Pennsylvania got 30 additional trains, chiefly northbound; Baltimore & Ohio got 5, westbound; Southern got 4; R. F. & P., 4, and Chesapeake & Ohio, 2.

At the Greyhound terminal, Assistant Manager R. A. McDonald reported business only about 4 per cent better than a "normal Friday" at 5 p. m. He anticipated a 5 per cent increase later in the day, however. Extra buses were put into service on all schedules, he announced.

Briskest travel was reported by airport officials.

Donald Walters, superintendent of reservations for American Airlines, said business was "exceptionally good." If it "continues," he added, "I think it will be the best day we've ever had."

Terrific Is Word For It

Eastern Airlines officials said reported travel was "very heavy." Northbound flights were described as "terrific."

Sticking to earlier promises, the Weatherman forecast a "very pleasant weekend" both in Washington and along the rest of seaboard. Locally it will be mostly and cooler today with a high of about 81 degrees.

Department stores and specialty shops here will open today for the first Saturday in eight weeks.

Virtually no special activities are planned for Labor Day. District Government offices, the schools, and all the courts except the Municipal Court's criminal division, will be closed.

Mrs. Keyser Appoited

Luray, Va., Aug. 29.—Mrs. Robert Keyser has been named clerk of the Trial Justice Court for the term ending June 30, 1948. She succeeds June M. Bailey, who recently resigned.

Labor Day Chosen As Midway Point

Labor Day originated with a proposal by Peter J. McGuire, carpenter's union founder, to the New York Central Labor Union on May 8, 1882, for an annual "Labor Day" observance.

He recommended the first Monday in September as it was midway between July 4 and Thanksgiving Day. McGuire's suggestion was adopted by labor groups, who paraded in New York the first Monday on that and succeeding Septembers.

In 1887 Colorado passed the first law declaring the day a legal holiday in the State, and seven years later Congress passed a bill making Labor Day a holiday in District and Federal offices.

Watch and Lighter Sought But Divers Bring Up Glasses

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

Diver Hugh McClelland comes up with the glasses for Horace "Happy" Walker

An underwater hunt for a cigarette lighter and wrist watch unexpectedly turned up a shoreside spectator's glasses.

The search was part of a little extracurricular work by a section of the United States Naval School of Deep Sea Divers.

Thursday night at least three items were lost by people at Pier No. 1 at Nash Marine Supply Co. Maj. Edward Williamson of Walter Reed Hospital, lost his lighter, Miss Elizabeth Wright, 4620 30th st. nw., lost her wrist watch and Horace "Happy" Walker, 235 Longfellow, nw., lost his glasses.

Miss Wright called Lieut. Otha Sanders in charge of the harbor police in behalf of Major Williamson and herself. He informed her that in view of the sentimental value attached to the items he would ask the Navy to help.

The Navy sent YDB 49, attached to the school, and eight of the students to see what they could find. Some of the students are already experienced divers but will get a first-class rating when they graduate from this finishing school.

Three divers went down for periods of half an hour but the water was so murky from the mud on the bottom they couldn't find the lighter.

While this was going on Walker who is a member of the racing committee of the President's Cup Regatta and familiar with the Harbor Police decided to call on friends there for help.

Learning that a Navy boat was already searching for other lost articles, he hurried to the scene. Within 10 minutes they found his glasses.

Ensign I. V. Bailey, assistant officer in charge, said that they would return next week with a mud sucker pump developed by the Navy which filters silt from the river bottom through a screen.

"We might find that lighter and watch yet," he said.

2 of District Legal Staff Are Advanced

Two members of the District legal staff have been advanced to fill vacancies left by a recent promotion, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West announced yesterday.

West said the Commissioners had approved the promotion of Assistant Corporation Counsels George F. Lynch and William S. Cheatham.

Lynch took over the $4902-a-year tax division post formerly held by

Lynch

Cheatham

Harry L. Walker. Walker moved up August 1 to a new $5905 tax job authorized in the 1948 budget.

Cheatham advanced to the $3397 general assignment position vacated by Lynch.

Lynch, a 35-year-old veteran of World War II, joined the city legal department November 18, 1942, but was granted leave to serve in the Army from March, 1948, to November, 1945. He lives at 144 13th st. se., with his wife and three sons.

Cheatham, 38, an rmy ir Forces veteran, was secretary and clerk to the Senate sergeant-at-arms before his appointment as assistant corporation counsel May 12 this year. He and his wife live at 5912 14th st. nw.

Oil Drilling Begins In Wythe County, Va.

Radford, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Homer K. Bowen, executive secretary of Southwestern Virginia, Inc., said today drilling for oil had been begun on the Wythe County farm of Andrew K. Newberry.

Bowen said the operations were part of a plan which also provides for drilling in Pulaski County and other counties of southwest Virginia, where leases have been acquired by I. Groskins of Tulsa, Okla.

Groskins has been leasing property in the counties of Pulaski and Wythe since the early part of this year.

Slaying Suspect Waives Extradition

A 44-year-old employe of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey circus, arrested Thursday in Hutchinson, Kans., in connection with the death of Richard Sheehan in Baltimore June 12, has agreed to waive extradition, the Associated Press reported yesterday.

Police left yesterday to return the circus employe, Hubert Thompson, to Baltimore, for questioning, Detective Capt. Henry J. Kriss said.

Just a Breather

White Shirt, Short Pants Help Police

Short wind and a white sports shirt yesterday turned their possessor, Bernard Winfield, 23, Ricketts court nw., over to police. It happened like this:

Mrs. Laura Sipe, 50, of 1004 Upshur st. nw., was walking in the 1000 block of 27th st., when a man wearing a white sports short sprinted alongside her, grabbed her purse containing $40 and a wristwatch and dashed off toward Rock Creek pkwy.

Police Pvts. S. H. Brennan and E. A. O'Callaghan, cruising the vicinity in their accident investigation scout car, saw a man in a white sports short about a half mile from the robbery. Inside the shirt, the owner was puffing hard and trying to quiet his heaving chest with his hands. The police called him over and Winfield came, still puffing.

Find Wrist Watch

In his pocket they found Mrs. Sipe's wrist watch. Winfield sat quietly in the scout car until his wind recovered. Then, said police, he tried to leave through a car window. He was charged with robbery. The purse, police said, was thrown into the Potomac by Winfield before his arrest.

A white T-shirt was the mark of identity of a man who held up two shops within 10 minutes of each other. Clarissa Cummings, 48 Hanover st. nw., a clerk at High's Ice Cream store at 1538 North Capitol st., reported he took $20 from her billfold and $6 from the cash register. The robber carried a gun.

Ten minutes later, a man of exactly the same description held up Helen E. Fedorka, 27, who gave her address as the Army War College. He entered the Palace Laundry branch store at 101 T st. nw., a few blocks from the previous robbery, and took $50 from the cash register. He also took $5 and a diamond ring valued at $45 from Miss Fedorka, a clerk at the store, then locked her in the bathroom.

Miss Ruby Arrowsmith, 1301 15th st. nw., an employe of the British Information Service, reported to police that her wallet containing $34 was stolen Thursday from her office at 907 15th st. nw.

And Myer Mazor, 911 7th st. nw., reported the theft of a French Marquis upholstered chair valued at $135 from his furniture storeroom at 905 7th st. nw.

Woodford Man Hurt In Truck Accident

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 29.—Herman C. Baker, jr., 22, of Woodford, Caroline County, sustained possible brain injuries in a truck accident on Route 207, 2 miles west of Milford, yesterday. He was brought to Mary Washington Hospital here and was still unconscious some hours later. He was driving an excelsior-laden truck of the Blanton Trucking Co. of Milford, which failed to turn on a curve and ran into an embankment.

D. C. Welfare 'Failure' Laid To Economy

Huff Declares Lack Of Funds Prevents Finding and Caring For Feebleminded

The District Welfare Department, by its own admission, is not doing its job.

Ray L. Huff, director of the Department of Public Welfare said as much yesterday. He declared that because of the failure of Congress to provide adequate funds for welfare functions, the department couldn't comply with an existing statute calling upon it to determine "the mental and physical characteristics of each child" accepted by it for care.

"The resources necessary to comply with the existing statute have never existed," said Huff. He declared that at a recent exploration, "some 20 per cent of the children in related services of the board were considered feebleminded.

More Services Needed

Huff explained that under the existing statute, it should be possible for the Board "to secure those services which are needed to determine the physical and mental characteristics of each child. One characteristic it can determine is the status of feeblemindedness."

"If we had these services we would know better than we know now those children who are feebleminded and could take appropriate steps for their care in the community or in an institution as the nature of their particular problem would indicate.

Huff said that the Board of Public Welfare plans early in October to meet to discuss the fundamental premise of public welfare—that it is for the purpose of gaining public security; it is "not an act of benevolence, it is not an act of charity; it is an action undertaken under the statutes through which the community security can be established."

Traning School Too Small

"The capacity of the District Training School for the Feebleminded is now 650," Huff pointed out. "The need is estimated at a minimum of 1700. It is important here to note that commitments to the District Training School are for an indefinite term, to include life.

"They are not sentences in the nature of a criminal sentence, but are commitments for the protection of society and also for the protection of th eperson concerned.

"It is obvious that immediate expansion is necessary for institutional cases and that this expansion include the type of service that would guarantee protection to the community from those committed who present physical dangers."

Weatherman Sees No Rain Over Holiday

The Labor Day weekend's weather won't be much of a boon to sun worshippers, but at least they won't get rained on.

The Weather Bureau's forecast called for mostly cloudy and cooler today, with high temperature of about 81 degrees; partly cloudy and warmer tomorrow with a probable high of 83 and fair on Monday, with a high of 86 degrees.

The mercury's best effort yesterday was 89 degrees at 4:40 p. m.

High temperatures and generally sunny skies were predicted for most of the Nation and "sweltering" was promised from the Rockies to the Appalachians.

"Seasonably comfortable" temperatures were forecast from New England to Northern Virginia, with possible scattered showers tomorrow.

Fewer Sea Nettles In Chesapeake, Official Reports

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—Despite numerous complaints from bathers who maintain they have been stung by sea nettles "in great numbers," Dr. R. V. Truitt reports the gelatinous, tentacled nuisances in the Chesapeake Bay are operating at minimum strength this year.

Truitt, who is director of the biological laboratory at Solomons Island, says nettles are 40 per cent less prevalent this season than during a normal year.

At the same time, the director paused to shed some light on the bathers' blight. The sea nettle or jellyfish, he said, is 95-96 per cent water and inhabits brackish saltwater found in inlets and tributaries.

The source of its painful sting is a microscopic tube which, when irritated, flicks out and ejects formic acid on the victim. Truitt says the sting is more uncomfortable than permanent.

Rescue Squad Aids Injured Pedestrian

1. TRAFFIC VICTIM AWAITS HELP—Maurice Liff, 33, of 1733 E st. ne., struck by a taxicab yesterday afternoon at 13th and U sts. nw., lies on a streetcar platform at the intersection. Dr. Roland Strong of Emergency Hospital assisted by Ambulance Driver Jerry Darden, questions the injured man after examining him. Dr. Strong decided Liff's back might be broken and called for the Fire Rescue Squad and special equipment

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

2. BOUND TO A BOARD, THE MAN IS REMOVED—Men of Rescue Squad No. 1 worked 25 minutes to tie Liff to a "fracture board" and then —with their patient looking like an Egyptian mummy—took him to Emergency Hospital. He was bound so that no part of his body would move during the jolting ride. Dr. Strong took extra precautions to be careful and right, rather than careless and wrong

Fish Wagon Driver Injured When His Horse Runs Away

The driver of a horse-drawn fish wagon suffered a possible skull fracture and a broken right arm yesterday when the horse bolted and threw him from the wagon.

He is Clarence Smith, sr., 60, of 2418 Snows Court nw., who, with a helper, Milton Findfield, 25, of the same address, was thrown from the wagon as it overturned at New Hampshire ave. and P st. nw. Windfield suffered a broken right leg. Both were taken to Gallinger Hospital.

The horse and wagon struck several parked cars along New Hampshire ave. before residents stopped the runaway. City workers cleaned up the scattered fish.

In other traffic accidents yesterday, at least five persons were injured. They were:

Maurice Liff, 37, of 1306 U st. nw., who suffered back injuries, police said, when he walked into the side of a moving taxi in front of 1306 U st. nw. Driver of the taxi was listed as Homer N. Jones, 44, of 608 Keefer pl. nw. Police said Liff had just stepped off a street-car loading zone.

Fell From Truck

Oliver Kenner, 13, of Glen Arden, Md., who suffered a possible skull fracture when he fell from a truck at Landover, Md. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital.

Daniel Tharin, 16, of 4403 14th st. nw., whose motorbike was in collision with an automobile at 16th st. and Underwood ave. nw. Tharin suffered a fractured left leg. Driver of the car, Blackwell Castle, 56, of 706 Quincy st. nw., was charged with failing to give full time and attention to driving and posted $100 collateral.

Girl Is Bruised

Yvonne Thornton, 9, of 65 M st. sw., severely bruised, police reported, when she was struck by a car driven by Samuel R. Bauer, 60, of Vienna, Va. Police said the girl darted from behind a parked bus. She was treated at Casualty Hospital.

George T. Knox, 74, of 901 Division ave. ne., who suffered a broken right arm when his car ran down an embankment at his home and struck a telephone pole. He was taken to Casualty Hospital. A passenger in the car, Milton Armour, 6, of the same address, was slightly bruised.

Child Is Injured

"Jackie" Sonnett, of 5515 Oakmont ave., Bethesda, Md., the 7-year-old son of Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett, suffered a broken right leg when struck by a car yesterday afternoon.

Bethesda police said the boy was sruck by a car operated by Oliver O. Thomas, 36, of 3330 Croffut pl. se., after he ran from in front of a parked truck selling ice cream to children.

The accident occurred in the 3500 block of Oakmont ave., Bethesda, and "Jackie" was admitted to Suburban Hospital.

Wife Sends $1000 So Husband May Be Tried

Frederick, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—Mrs. Yetta Cramer of Brooklyn, N. Y., sent authorities a $1000 check so they can bring her husband here from California to face bigamy charges, State's attorney Edwin F. Nikirk said today.

Morris Cramer was indicted at the last grand jury session for marrying Selina A. Scali here, June 11, 1946, while still married to Mrs. Yetta Cramer.

Deputy Sheriff Austin Murray will go to Los Angeles for an extradition hearing September 10 before Governor Warren of California, Nikirk said.

Cramer's and Miss Scali's marriage showed he was 32, single and a salesman from York, Pa., and that she was 28, single, and a photographer living at York.

50 of Maryland's Tree Surgeons Wind Up Clinic

Fifty of Maryland's official tree surgeons yesterday wound up a two-day clinic on the tricks of the trade at Beltsville, Md.

Sponsored by the State Department of Forests and Parks, the tree trimmers reviewed methods of cutting branches beside power and telephone lines and studied ways of dealing with problems along county roads.

The 50 men, all roadside tree control personnel of the department, were briefed on State enforcement of a law requiring certification of tree surgeons before they may operate.

State Forester H. C. Buckingham supervised the annual course. Also present were representatives of utilities, who helped work out protective measures.

River Terrace Owners Gain 7% Rent Rise

Tenants of 99 Units On East Capitol St. Agree at Hearing

A compromise 7 per cent rent increase on a one-year lease basis was agreed to yesterday by both owners and tenants of 99 River Terrace housing units in the 3200 block of East Capitol st.

The agreement was reached during a recess near the end of a four-hour hearing before Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson.

Tyson took the case under advisement and said he would issue a ruling "in about a week."

The owners, the River Terrace Co., had sought a 13 per cent rent boost to cover increased operating costs—and higher taxes and water rents.

Attorney William Stempil and Paul Dobin, a lawyer who lives at River Terrace, represented the tenants. Myron Davy, a company partner, and Attorney Ernest Henry presented the owners' case.

Present River Terrace rents range from $50 to $60 per unit, Tyson said.

Tobacco Price Averages Up $1 to $14 in Carolina

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 29 (AP).—Price averages on the flue-cured tobacco border belt of South Carolina today showed increases from $1 to $4, while the eastern North Carolina belt found prices remaining steady in most instances with a few losses for a limited number of grades.

Good lemon cutters established a new high of $61 on the boarder belt, and the majority of leaf and lugs gained from $2 to $4, the Federal -State department of agriculture reported.

There was more fair quality and nondescript on the border, but less good and fine. The bulk of sales was composed chiefly of low to good leaf, smoking leaf and lugs and low and fair cutters, with volume of sales heavy.

Ship Auction Ordered

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—Federal Judge W. Calvin Chestnut today ordered the SS Cypress, a ship of Panamanian registry, sold at auction to satisfy claims of the captain and 13 crew members for back wages. The vessel will be sold September 11. The corporation owning the ship is headed by S. G. Andreadis of New York.

2 Suspects Arrested In Slaying Of May, Wife

Naval Veteran, AWOL Soldier Paid $1000 Down On Car in Omaha

By Charles J. Yarbrough
Post Reporter

Two youths, one of them in bloodstained trousers, were arrested at Grand Island, Nebr., yesterday as suspects in the Thursday slaying of Robert L. May 2d and his wife of Parkfairfax, Va.

May, 22-year-old son of a wealthy Virginia family, and his bride of six months, were found shot to death along the highway west of Omaha.

Their car, a 1947 Chrysler owned by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. May, was found in an Omaha parking lot three hours later. It was heavily bloodstained. The elder May is owner of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co.

Answer Descriptions

Grand Island's police chief, Joe Bosler, said the two youths held answered descriptions given of two khaki-clad hitch-hikers who were given a ride in the May car when it stopped at a Grand Island filling station Wednesday.

However, the filling station attendant and a construction worker who said he had talked with the two hitchhikers before they were picked up by the Mays, said last night the two held at Grand Island are not the same men.

Their arrest came after a Nebraska Safety Patrol broadcast blanketed the Midwest. Chief Bosler identified the pair as Loman D. Brand, 23, discharged naval veteran of Mason City, Iowa, and Edward Ayola, 18, who was wearing an Army uniform and said he was AWOL.

Authorities said they were driving a 1940 Oldsmobile coupe bearing "in transit" license plates which was purchased in Omaha Thursday for $1300. They said the pair paid $1000 in cash as a down payment.

In Alexandria, A. B. & W. officials said they were confident May and his wife were not carrying "that kind of money. They probably had only about $200 when they left here for the Colorado vacation," one official said. He added that they had cashed a $75 check in Denver before starting east.

When the bodies were found, Mrs. May's pocketbook and her husband's wallet were missing. Only a small amount of change was found in May's pockets. Also missing was a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol which May was believed to have taken on the trip. Deputy sheriffs said the murder weapon was a .38-caliber pistol, which has not been found.

The theory that the Mays were slain with his pistol was exploded here yesterday when bus company officials said May's pistol had been found in his father's home.

Prints Sent to FBI

Omaha police have sent copies of a bloody palm print and fingerprints, neither of them the Mays', to the FBI, but FBI officials here said they were not actively engaged in the case.

The two suspects offered no resistance when stopped near Grand Island by Highway Patrolman Lawrence Feiling. A roadblock had been set up after reports from officers at Rising City, Nebr., that two men in service uniforms had passed through toward Grand Island.

Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. May are to arrive by air from Omaha today. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

May, son of Beverly C. May, of 16 Belfield rd., Belle Haven, Alexandria, and his wife, Elizabeth, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Piele of 2983 S. Columbus st., Fairlington, lived at 1138 Valley dr.

Said He's Been "Rolled"

In Omaha, Douglas County Sheriff William H. Dorrance said he had had earlier reports two young, khaki-clad men had boarded a bus in Omaha Thursday, headed for Des Moines, Iowa. The bus driver reported to Dorrance that one of them said he had been "rolled" in Nebraska to explain his bloody shirt. The men had tickets for Connecticut, the sheriff said, but the Nebraska portion of the tickets had not been used.

When arrested, one of the two held at Grand Island told police he was AWOL and was en route to Denver to see a sick relative. He had a train ticket from Cedar Rapids to Chicago, police said.

The American Automobile Association in Washington yesterday issued an emergency warning to Labor Day holiday motorists not to pick up hitchhikers. The AAA, pointing out the Nebraska tragedy, said the picking up of hitchhikers "is one of the worst of the potential dangers of the road."

Md. Youth Is Killed Loading Lumber Truck

Prince Frederick, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—Carl Persinger, 18, of Edgewater, Md., was killed yesterday while loading a truck at Chaneyville, about 13 miles north of here.

Witnesses said the youth was stowing lumber aboard the truck when a log fell off the vehicle, striking him in the face. They said Persinger ran a short distance and tumbled to the ground. Dr. Hugh W. Ward, county medical examiner, reported death was accidental.

In Maryland and Virginia

Eastern Time Extended To Whole of Virginia

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday extended the Eastern Standard Time Zone to include all of Virginia.

Additional areas of North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee are also included in the extended zone, effective at 2 a. m. (CST) September 28.

The change affects the whole of Virginia's Lee County and portions of Wise and Scott Counties.

The ICC's action was taken on petition of the Knoxville, Tenn., senior and junior Chamber of Commerce and other communities in Central Time territory which have long operated on Eastern Standard Time through local ordinances.

No Choice

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—Magistrate Harry E. Snyder refused an offer from Charles Long of this city, to serve three to five months in the House of Correction instead of 60 days in the Washington County jail.

Sentenced yesterday on a drunk charge, Long told the magistrate he was "tired" of the jail.

Blight Hits Tomatoes

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Tomato late blight again this year is causing extensive damage in Southwest Virginia although it has not attained the disastrous proportions of the 1946 epidemic which destroyed an estimated 50 per cent of the entire State crop, the Agricultural Extension Service reported today.

Plant Pathologist S. B. Fenne said the blight has been reported in Floyd, Montgomery, Craig, Giles, Patrick, Bland, and Pulaski counties as well as in the Winchester area.

Virginia C. E. Elects

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—The Virginia Christian Endeavor Union closed its fifty-third annual convention at Massanetta Springs today as newly elected officers took over for the coming year.

In yesterday's elections, the Rev. Kenneth R. Bain, pastor of the Milrose Christian Church at Roanoke, was named president. Other officers elected were Joan Seavell, of Bristol, and Imogene Kitts, of Norfolk, vice presidents; Beatrice Pillow, of Lynchburg, secretary; Mabel Martin, of Bristol, mailing secretary; Alice Whitely Jones, of Richmond, Treasurer, and the Rev. C. F. Allen, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Petersburg, pastor-counselor.

New Highway Closed

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—Several sections of the new Hagerstown-Frederick highway have been closed to through traffic by the State Roads Commission. The road will be fully opened around mid-September, after shoulders and other finishing touches are completed.

Mason Is Candidate

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 29.—E. G. Mason, farmer and dairyman, has announced his candidacy for the Board of Supervisors of Spotsylvania County from Courtland District. He was a member of the board from 1936 to 1940. The other candidate from Courtland District is Wilbur Wallace, who was nominated in the Democratic primary. Mason is running as an independent.

Dr. Freeman to Speak

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, editor of the Richmond News Leader, will be the principal speaker here September 2 at the opening exercises of the second session of the Armed Forces Staff College. The five-month course of training in joint operations will be attended by 150 senior officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and air force.

A Bear Chance

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—Three polar bears in a pool might set an example in international harmony, says J. V. Kelly, former secretary to the Board of Park Commissioners.

Kelly yesterday urged the board of estimates to ask Premier Stalin for a Russian polar bear as a poolmate for the Druid Hill Park zoo's Canadian and Alaskan polar bears. The trio, he said, "might create more friendly international relations."

City Sergeant Resigns

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 29.—Deputy City Sergt. Charles M. Unglebower today resigned his post effective Monday, because of ill health. Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazille is expected to appoint a successor next month. Unglebower is a Marine Corps veteran of 12 years of service, with 400 parachute jumps to his credit.

Bent Elbow Note

Washington tipplers, whose drinking in the District is down 30 per cent from what it was a year ago, may be bending the elbow in Virginia.

Figures released yesterday show Virginians bought 5,399,080 gallons of spirits in the fiscal year just ended, while a year ago the total was 4,808,020 gallons.

The Virginia Alcohol Beverage Control Board had book profits for the year ended June 30 amounting to $16,502,776.89, compared with $14,232,059.70 a year ago.

Once Over Lightly

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—The man of the house got a break today in a recommendation by Agricultural Extension Service horticulturists that grass should not be mowed too closely in hot, dry weather.

Assistant Gardening Specialist A. G. Smith, jr., pointed out that blue grass can be killed in a few weeks of such weather if it is clipped too closely. He advised adjusting mower blades to leave two inches or more on top of the underground stems to protect the grass from direct sun and wind.

4-H Expects 100

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Nearly 100 rural youths from throughout Virginia are expected to gather here September 13 to compete in the annual 4-H club dairy and livestock judging contests.

State 4-H Club Agent Gordon M. Elcan said livestock teams from 15 counties already have registered for the contest and added that the teams from 11 counties so far have entered the dairy judging and dairy demonstrating competition.

Teams from each of the three fields will be selected here to represent Virgini aat the Atlantic Rural Exposition at Richmond October 6-11 and in out-of-State contests.

Shell Injures Two Boys

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 29.—Two small boys were patients in Mary Washington Hospital here today as the result of the explosion of a shotgun shell with which they were playing at Forest Hall Farm in Spotsylvania County.

Delbert Mongold, 8, lost three fingers of one hand, and Wayne Westfall, 3, was peppered on the face and arms by shot. The boys were believed to have hammered on the shell, which exploded in Mongold's hand.

Amvets Meet Today

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—Cumberland, prepared today to greet an expected 100 delegates and visitors when the Department of Maryland, Amvets, opens its second annual convention here tomorrow afternoon.

Delegates from the nine posts in the State are expected and will be greeted by Mayor Thomas S. Post, John Groobey, city convention chairman, and Dr. James E. Marbone, Frederick, State commander.

Strike Call Authorized

Covington, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Members of Local 202, Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO), voted unanimously on a motion last night at the union hall to empower the negotiating committee to arrange if necessary, to call a strike of employes at the plant of Industrial Rayon Corp. here.

The union hall was filled to capacity. It was the largest crowd attending a union meeting of rayon workers here since the strike at the local plant in 1937, union officials said.

Telephones Teeming

Winchester, Va., Aug. 29.—This city has more telephones per capita than any other city in Virginia, C. P. Marks, local manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., disclosed yesterday in an address before the Kiwanis Club.

Special Auditor Hired

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 29 (AP). Myer L. Sigel, member of a local accounting firm, was employed today by the mayor and council to undertake "special auditing work in behalf of the City of Cumberland and the office of the city tax collector, for the years 1944, 1945 and 1946."

Mayor Thomas S. Post said the purpose of the audit is to make sure accounts are in order and that nothing in particular prompted the action.

Editor Hits Tax Rate

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—John Fulton Lewis, editor of the Southern Maryland Times, contends that "Anne Arundel has the highest tax rate of any of the counties of Maryland; yet it gives the least for the tax dollar."

Lewis, elected last night to lead a new Arnold chapter of the Citizens Protective Association of Anne Arundel County, made this statement as 130 Arundel residents voted to join the county-wide group in an investigation of the county tax structure.

Residents Cautioned

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 29.—Residents of this area were warned by military authorities at A. P. Hill Military Reservation today that daily firing practice is taking place in the section southeast of Route 301 from Port Royal to Bowling Green. Unauthorized persons were told not to enter the firing zone.

Pollution Perils Pike

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—Pollution will spoil pike in some parts of the Severn River unless stiff measures are taken to keep the waters clean, the Anne Arundel County Fish and Game Association heard last night.

William Vanous of Annapolis told members the river and its offshoots are in "such bad shape at certain points that when the pike season rolls around they won't be fit to eat." He urged that violators of pollution rules be reported to the State Pollution Control Commission.

Rev. Dufford Resigns

Luray, Va., Aug. 29.—The Rev. Fred E. Dufford, pastor of the Luray Lutheran Parish, which includes St. Mark's and Bethlehem Lutheran Churches, submitted his resignation to the church council yesterday. He has accepted a call from the Advent Lutheran Church in Charleston, S. C. He became pastor of the Luray Lutheran Parish on June 1, 1942, coming here from Tennessee.

Leaf Sell-Out Closes 3 Md. Warehouses

The three tobacco warehouses in Marlboro closed for the season yesterday with moderate sales ranging close to the previous week's overall southern Maryland price average.

The warehouses reported all tobacco on their floors sold, with no rejections of last-minute bids by the growers.

The Planters' Warehouse handled 73,356 pounds of tobacco yesterday at an average price of $35.16 per hundredweight. The Marlboro Tobacco Warehouse disposed of 104,530 pounds of leaf at an average of $33.47. Figures from Edelen Brothers' Warehouse were not available.

The year's average for all southern Maryland through last week was $45.64, with that week's average, $34.13.

Two Charles County markets, La Plata and Waldorf, will remain open through Monday when all Maryland sales will stop.

With the largest cigarette tobacco crop in history harvested in 1946, Prince Georges County growers had expected a peak selling year.

Buyers, however, held to last year's offering bids as the season opened last April, and before the first week of sales had, ended farmers were refusing bids and carting their tobacco back to the farm in hope of raising prices above the $50 average offered. Prices rose slightly but never reached the anticipated level.

Another short "revolt" occurred last Thursday but did not change prices appreciably.

Warehousemen yesterday believed all marketable tobacco had been brought to market. Labor shortages prevented many farmers from getting their entire crop into marketable condition, though, and much tobacco will be held over for next year's markets, they said.

NAM President Tells Leesburg Of Tax Needs

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Earl Bunding, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, told the Leesburg Rotary Club yesterday that the Nation's tax system must be revised to free venture capital which "alone can spell more jobs, better jobs, steadily rising real wages, more goods, more purchasing power."

He described "venture capital" as the "savings people can afford to risk on long chances," and added:

"Venture capital is investment made in the face of a very real chance that part or all of the money put up may be lost. It can't come from Government funds, savings deposits, or insurance company. premiums. It can't come from people who shouldn't risk their shirts. But it can come from one source which is now dammed up.

"Bureau of Labor Statistics studies show that relatively little venture capital can be tapped in income under $10,000. But on incomes over this amount, the present tax dollars represents 20 cents taken from consumption and 80 cents from savings which would otherwise be available for venture capital," he said.

Telephone Calls Drive Woman From Her Home

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—A practical joke, if it is that, today drove a woman in despair from her home which for days had been besieged by telephone calls from coquettish females asking for her husband, an undertaker and a moving van.

Mrs. Harry Hoffman said today she couldn't stand it any longer and left for an unknown refuge. Her husband, thinking he knows who is behind it, went to court for a show-cause summons.

The Hoffmans first realized something was afoot when people, hundreds of them, they said, called for him. The calls came early in the morning and late at night.

An undertaker called to ask what Mrs. Hoffman wanted done with the body. What body? Why, that of Mr. Hoffman.

Then a moving van backed up to take away a piano which the Hoffmans never ordered moved.

The females called to chide Mr. Hoffman for not keeping an engagement.

And all day long the Hoffmans have been telling people they knew nothing about the newspaper advertisement of an apartment to rent.

Maj. Gen. Lerch Has Heart Attack

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Archer L. Lerch, American military governor, suffered a heart attack late last night and was taken from his home to the 34th General Hospital. Physicians said he was seriously ill and must remain in the hospital for some time.

Congressional Game Nets Fund $2970

A check for $2970.38 representing profits from last month's congressional baseball game was turned over yesterday to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club fund.

The check was accompanied by a letter from Representative John C. Kunkel (R., Pa.) to Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett which said:

"It is with a great deal of pleasure that I present on behalf of the members of Congress the attached check in the amount of $2970.38 made payable to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

"This check represents profits realized from the benefit baseball game played on July 12 at Griffith Stadium.

"Here's wishing you continued success in the splendid work of your organization in an effort to wipe out juvenile delinquency in the District."

Barrett said he had sent a reply to Kunkel in which he said:

"Your splendid contribution will yield dividends in the form of less delinquency and assist us greatly in our efforts to build good citizens from our underprivileged youth."

The benefit game last month was witnessed by about 2000 fans who saw the Republicans outscore the Democrats, 16 to 13.

U. S. Acts to Aid Tomato Growers In Surplus Market

The Department of Agriculture rushed to the relief of the Nation's tomato growers yesterday.

In Maryland and other large tomato growing areas, tomatoes have piled up at canning factories because of lack of markets.

The department announced it was asking bids for the purchase of canned tomatoes, to be paid for out of the National school lunch program, and to be distributed to schools throughout the country.

It also announced that bids will be asked next week for purchase of canned tomato juice.

Physician Convicted On Woman's Charge

Gettysburg, Pa., Aug. 29 (AP).—A 28-year-old Pennsylvania physician was convicted today of fornication but was freed of rape and two other charges brought by a 23-year-old dishwasher.

The physician, Dr. Robert S. Lefever, also had been charged with assault with intent to ravish and administering a drug with intent to commit a felony.

An all-male jury deliberated the case three and a half hours. The offense carries a maximum penalty of $100 fine.

Mrs. Rita Dryer told the jurors Dr. Lefever gave her "a white pill" for a headache when she visited his office November 21, 1946, then assaulted her while she was under the influence of the drug.

Dr. Lefever, a Navy veteran who had returned to private practice only a week before Mrs. Dryer visited his office, denied the charges. He testified he gave the young woman a drink of water—"just plain tap water."

Alexandria Plans to Eliminate Weed Nuisance in 2 Weeks

Two weeks from today any good-sized weeds still growing in Alexandria may cost some good citizen a good-sized fine.

The Alexandria Health Department, in conjunction with the police, yesterday announced a vigorous campaign to enforce a long-standing weed ordinance, outlawing weeds more than one foot high.

The ordinance includes in the term "weed' all rank vegetable growth which exhale noxious odors and which may conceal filthy deposits."

A. Clarke Slaymaker, sanitary inspector, said he will begin today collecting names of offenders. Next week, he said, he and a police officer will notify each offender of the violation and give each 14 days to comply.

In case offenders do not have facilities to cut the weeds, Slaymaker said he will carry a form to be made out asking the city engineer to get rid of the weeds at the rate of 85 cents an hour plus 5 per cent.

The ordinance provides for a $10 to $100 fine for offenders.

Slaymaker said he has received more than 100 complaints about the weed growth in Alexandria. Complainants say the weeds give them hay fever, he said, or that they make good rat nests, or that they are ust plain unattractive.

City Attorney-City Manager Joseph M. Pancoast, back from vacation yesterday, gave the drive the official go-ahead sign.

She's in Hospital

Crash Keeps Girl Out of Beauty Test

A pretty, 18-year-old Piscataway, Md., girl lay in a hospital bed last night, her chances of becoming "Miss Farmerette of Prince Georges County" abruptly terminated by fate.

The girl, Miss Ella Frances Davis, was eliminated from the contest held last night in the Marlboro High School when she was injured in a traffic accident in the early afternoon 2 miles from the scene of the judging.

Yesterdaw, as she rested in a hospital bed, her flashing dark eyes were swollen shut and her long brunette tresses had been shorn to make way for a surgeon's needle.

Sideswipes Truck

The accident occurred as Miss Davis was being driven to Marlboro, where she is employed as a secretary in the law offices of Magruder and Magruder, after having eaten lunch with a friend, James S. Armiger, 23, Davidsonville.

The car driven by Armiger, police reported, sideswiped a truck operated by Ernest Diggs, Marlboro, about one mile north of Wells' Corner on the Crain hwy. It skidded more than 200 feet after the impact then overturned against a fence, police said.

Door Pops Open

The right door on Armiger's coupe popped open with the impact and, according to Armiger, Miss Davis fell out as the car rolled over. Both occupants were treated by Dr. James Sasscer in Marlboro and Miss Davis was taken to Prince Georges General Hospital where she was reported in "good" condition with a six-inch scalp wound and abrasions on her face. Armiger suffered cuts and abrasions.

Both drivers were charged by Prince George County police with reckless driving and a hearing was set for next Friday at Marlboro Police Court.

Rep. Springer's Funeral Rites To Be Held Monday in Indiana

Funeral services for Raymond S. Springer, 65, Republican Representative in Congress since 1938 from Indiana's Tenth District, will will be held Monday at 10 a. m. in Connorsville, Ind. Interment will be in Dale cemetery there.

Mr. Springer died Thursday night in a Connorsville hospital after being rushed there following a heart attack at his home.

In 1932 and again in 1936, he made unsuccessful bids for the Governorship of Indiana, losing to Paul V. McNutt in the 1932 Democratic landslide and to M. Clifford Townsend four years later.

Representative Springer was born near Nunreith, Ind., in 1882. He graduated from Earlham College and Butler University, and was a member of the latter institution's football team. He also held a law degree from Indiana Law School, graduating from there in 1904.

He served as a judge on the thirty-seventh judicial circuit in Fayette County, Ind., for six years, leaving the bench in 1917 to serve as a captain of infantry in World War I, after working up through the ranks.

After World War I he returned to Indiana and organized the American Legion in his State. He was the first national executive committeeman from Indiana, and held a commission as lieutenant colonel in the Officers Reserve Corps.

Elected to the House in 1938, Congressman Springer had been a critic of the New Deal and in 1943 criticized "heavy-plated New Deal propaganda" on the floor of the House.

In early 1941 he expressed emphatic disapproval of large United States sales of oil and gasoline to Japan.

Representative Springer was a 32d degree Mason, a member of the American Legion and of the Forty and Eight, and belonged to the Eagles, Knights of Pythias and Elks lodges.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Nancy Springer.

Walter Ernest Keyser

Luray, Va., Aug. 29.—Funeral services were held in Baltimore Wednesday for Walter Ernest Keyser, 59, of Stanley, who died at his home near here Sunday following a long illness.

He was a restaurant owner and manager and until the death of his wife about 20 years ago he resided in Baltimore. He later came to Stanley where he was in business with his brother, Fred Keyser.

The wedding of Miss Mary Laurie Cobb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Culver W. Cobb of Arlington, Va., and Charles Robert Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Kelly, also of Arlington, was at 8 last evening at Pershing Drive Christian Church in Arlington.

The bride wore white frosted organdy made with a bustle and a circular train. She carried white roses and orchids. She was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Walter L. Wingfield, who was gowned in periwinkle blue. Mrs. Wingfield carried a mixed bouquet of purple and yellow flowers.

Lloyd F. Kelly was best man for his brother and Walter L. Wingfield and William R. Pickin were ushers.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the church, after which the couple left for a honeymoon to be spent in the mountains and on the Maryland shore. They will live in Washington.

Use Your Tray

The metal tray for kitchen use comes in handy so many times and yet is forgotten until the job is done. It is splendid and saves many steps when carrying the jellies and preserves to the cellar, when carrying sherbet glasses of newly-made pudding to the ice box and when it dons an attractive cover it can be used to carry those beverage glasses and pretzels out to the porch or lawn.

For Bluing Bottle

Place a piece of cheesecloth over the top of the bottle of bluing and add the strained blue to the water instead of straight out of the bottle. This will prevent that mottled appearance the clothes have at times when the bluing has not been thoroughly absorbed in the rinse water.

Hostess' Secrets for You

What's the secret of successful parties? Getting the crowd to mix, getting them to leave behind their workaday dignity, and really have fun! There's no better way to start things humming than with lively ice-breakers.

"Who am I?" is always a sure-fire hit. As each guest arrives, pin on his or her back a card bearing the name of a famous person—of past or present, fact or fiction. For example, Bing Crosby, Chopin, Joan of Arc, Scarlett O'Hara, Henry VIII and so on. Make sure guests don't peek at their own cards.

Now, the object of the game is to identify yourself by asking questions such as, "Am I living?" "Am I an American?" By the time every identity is solved, your guests will be thoroughly thawed out and in the mood for fun.

Then you can follow up with team games, paper-and-pencil games, magic stunts, fortune-telling games, romantic games. All found in our Reader Service booklet No. 60. Also menus, prizes, invitations.

Send 25c (coin)) for "Games for Good Parties" to The Washington Post, Reader Service, 243 West 17th St., New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address with zone, booklet title and No. 60.

Mrs. Truman is honorary chairman of the local hospitality committee and Mrs. Edwin G. Nourse is chairman. A full schedule has been arranged by the committee for the coming weekend. There will be a reception at the Shoreham Hotel on Saturday at 4 o'clock to enable newly arrived delegates to meet each other, and Sunday afternoon a sightseeing tour will take the visitors to Mount Vernon, Arlington and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Sunday night from 8 to 10 the board of trustees of the National Gallery of Art will hold a reception at the gallery. The Marine Band will play for the guests as they inspect the gallery's exhibits.

Ladies serving on Mrs. Nourse's committee include Mrs. J. Parker Van Zandt, Mrs. Charles G. Ross, Mrs. Paul Opperman, Mrs. John P. Steelman, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Grace Frysinger, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Mrs. John B. Blandford, jr., and Mrs. Stuart A. Rice.

Auxiliary Installation

Newly elected officers of the George E. Killeen Unit, No. 25, American Legion Auxiliary, will be installed at 8 p. m. Tuesday at unit headquarters, 3204 M st. nw. Installation for the Second Division Unit No. 28 officers will be held Wednesday in New Colonial Hotel. Presidents of all units are invited to attend both services.

Miss Burnette and Mr. Beane Marry

Making their home in Washington following a motor trip through the mountains of Virginia will be Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Parker Beane, who were married August 23 in Francis Asbury Methodist Church. The Rev. O. Bryan Langrell officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the former Miss Dorothy Lee Burnette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Burnette, Anderson, S. C., and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. L. Beane, this city.

Escorted by her brother, Thomas J. Burnette, the bride was attended by Mrs. Leroy Owens. John R. L. Beane, jr., was his brother's best man. Following the wedding a reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. L. Beane, jr.

Harris & Ewing

Mrs. James E. Webb (left), wife of the Director of the Budget, and Mrs. Edwin Nourse discuss plans for entertaining delegates to the International Statistical Conferences being held in Washington the week of September 8. Mrs. Nourse is chairman of the local hospitality committee and Mrs. Webb is an assistant

Jack Shoup Weds Miss Marion Spear

In a ceremony solemnized in the patio of All Saints' Unitarian Church on August 23, Miss Marion Alice Spear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Spear, Alexandria, Va., became the bride of Jack Perkins Shoup, son of Mrs. Miriam Perkins Shoup, Colorado Springs, Colo. The Rev. Gilbert Arthur Phillips, pastor of Arlington Unitarian Fellowship, performed the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Joan Elizabeth Spear, as maid of honor, and by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Amy Clark Spear, as matron of honor. Robert B. Spear, brother of the bride, served as best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Shoup attended Colorado College in Colorado Springs. The bridegroom at present is a research engineer at Sandra Base, N. Mex. The couple will reside in Albuquerque.

Capitalites Spending Holiday At Mountain and Shore Resorts

Paris Hemline Means Requiem For 'Le Gams'

By Sally Swing
United Press Reporter

Paris, Aug. 29.—"Raise it up just a little," said the photographer, and the woman hoisted her skirt slightly.

"Take a last look, boys," said the photographer, "them gams is disappearing, until the short skirt comes back."

And that, as far as the public is concerned, was the requiem of the famed legs of Marlene Dietrich. At least, so think Paris fashionists and their cooing well-wishers.

It was good news for designers, bad news for the French woman.

Marlene is good publicity for the long skirt that designers are trying to sell to Paris and the world.

It's been labeled the "New Look."

It's been cheered, said Marcel Rochas, swank Paris designer. "The short skirt is dead, long live the long skirt."

It has been challenged. Maggy Rouff presented a collection for fall showing daytime wear that hit just below the knee and was 15 inches off the floor.

The man who invented it last year and crows about it, Christian Dior, is on his way to the United States. Said his directors today: "We have never done such a booming business with America before this season. They are crazy about long skirts. They were crying for something new, and this year Paris has it—it really has."

Doubly Strong Brew Is Secret Of Making Best Iced Tea

By Charlotte Adams

ONLY in America is iced tea popular. That's partly, of course, because we have much more ice readily available than have most other countries. Having ice in quantity, we have become exceedingly fond of iced drinks at meals, and in between during the summer.

But though we like iced tea, we don't always make it properly, for which I think we should be heartily ashamed of ourselves. First, tea should be freshly made if it's to be iced. Our fairly widespread habit of making a pitcher full of tea and storing it in the refrigerator to chill is a very bad one.

Brew Double Strength

Iced tea should be brewed double strength, to allow for the dilution caused by melting ice. In other words, you use two teaspoons of tea to a cup of water. Have the tea ready in a pre-heated pot. Pour boiling water over it. Let it seep between three and five minutes, depending upon your taste—but never more than five. Then pour it directly into the glasses, which are filled to the brim with ice.

Never under any circumstances use a tea bag if you want to get the full flavor and use of your tea. The leaves, all crowded in that way, can't expand properly—and that expansion is what lets the flavor get out. Cloudiness, which does no harm to flavor, is more likely to develop with fine tea than with inferior grades and with a strong brew than a weak one.

Add Some Cloves

With iced tea serve sugar and lemon slices for those who like them. Stick the slices with cloves and have a few maraschino cherries handy for people who want their iced tea "fancy."

What to serve with iced tea, when it's a between-meal drink? Well, if I could have my way, I'd never have any accompaniment other than thin, thin bread-and-butter sandwiches. A bit of fresh dill, chopped and creamed into the butter, is a delicious and allowable addition.

There are those, however, who want fancier sandwiches. White or dark bread spread with a tiny bit of mayonnaise and rolled around watercress is good. Most cheese spreads, sweet or sharp, go well with tea. They may be put on bread or crackers.

And finally, there are tea drinkers who want a bit of a sweet with their tea. A filled cookie jar is a good thing to have in any house. Here's an excellent cookie recipe from that fine new cookbook "Sour Cream Cookery" by Barbara Brown (M. Barrows and Co.).

Chocolate Raisin Cookies

2/3 cup butter
2 eggs.
½ cup cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sour cream
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
2/3 cup raisins
½ teaspoon salt.

Cream the butter and sugar together until fluffy. Add the eggs and beat for 2 mins. Sift the salt and soda with the flour, add, alternating with the sour cream. Flavor and blend well. Add the raisins. Chill the dough for an hour in the refrigerator then drop by teaspoonsful onto oiled baking sheet. Flatten with a spatula. Bake for 12 mins. at 350 degrees.

And if you really want to go the whole way and offer your guests cake, please just make it a simple pound cake, sliced very thin, or, at most a dark raisin cake with just a thin simple icing.

BETWEEN-MEAL SNACK . . . Chocolate Raisin Cookies and Iced Tea.

Ask Anne
On Homemaking
Your Questions

Part of the house we recently bought is sectioned off to provide a recreation room, with concrete floor and brick walls. Recently, the furniture, linoleum rug, and books in the room have developed a mildew-like dust. Actual mildew stains are forming on books and cloth (cushions, etc.). I scarcely know where or how to begin to rid the place of mildew since it is suddenly so prevalent. What treatment should I give the furniture, floors, wall, rugs, and books? Will such treatment permanently destroy the fungus? Do you think the commercial "drier-outers" will be effective in preventing a recurrence of this condition? H. T. C.

Remove loose mold from upholstery and books by brushing with a whisk broom. Do this outdoors to prevent scattering mildew in the house. If possible, run a vacuum cleaner attachment over the surfaces to draw out more of the mold. Sun and air the articles to stop growth. If necessary, wipe upholstery with a cloth wrung out of diluted alcohol (1 cup denatured alcohol to 1 cup water). Try this on an inside edge of book bindings, and if it doesn't seem to damage them, wipe off books too. Dry thoroughly in the sun. If leaves of books are damp, sprinkle cornstarch or pure talc between the leaves to take up moisture. Brush off after a few hours.

Brush the walls and sweep the floor well. As soon as a reasonably cool day arrives—or on a day when few members of the family will be at home—heat the room for several hours to thoroughly dry it out. Just before heating, scrub the floors (walls too, if necessary) with soap and water and rinse with clear water. If mildew has grown into any of the furnishings, fumigate them in the room after it's been dried out. Fumigate by burning formaldehyde candles in the tightly closed room. Be careful as formaldehyde is very irritating to skin and eyes. Follow carefully directions given with the candles.

As to the future, solid calcium chloride or a commercial "drier-outer" should be helpful in drying the room occasionally. Windows of the room should be closed when using such preparations so you won't be drying all outdoors. It's a good idea to keep them closed on damp days anyway, as warm moist air condenses on cooler surfaces, particularly in the basement, increasing the amount of moisture therein. There's a mildew-resistant paint that can be used on painted surfaces, and there are mildew-resistant finishes for cloth. Check with a dealer (paint or department store) about which would be advisable to use in this case. Additional information about fighting mildew may be obtained from the booklet "Preventing and Removing Mildew," issued by the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

(1) Can you tell me how to remove from a baby's clothing stains made by halibut liver oil, orange juice, and a soybean preparation? (2) How should I store a baby carriage made of leatherette? J. P. G.

1. Fresh stains made by halibut liver oil can usually be removed by pouring either glycerine or soapless shampoo on them, rubbing lightly between the hands, rinsing in clear water, and washing in soapy water. Old stains, however, turn brown and are almost impossible to remove, particularly if the material has been washed and ironed.

Boiling water will take orange juice stains out of cotton or linen. Stretch the stained spot over a bowl, fasten it with a string, and pour boiling water through it from a teakettle held at a height of 3 or 4 feet. Rubbing alternated with boiling water is helpful. If a stain remains, use laundry bleach.

The soybean preparation should come out if you soak the garment in cold water, then wash in warm soapy water. If the stain proves stubborn, try dampening with cold water then sprinkling with powdered pepsin. Let the pepsin remain on the spot for half an hour, then brush it off and rinse the spot well.

2. Before storing the leatherette baby carriage, dust it thoroughly and wash with a cloth or sponge wrung out of mild lukewarm soapsuds. Rinse with a clean cloth wrung out in clear lukewarm water, and dry thoroughly with a soft cloth. Wrap the carriage well with papers or an old sheet and store in a place that's fairly dry, cool, and well ventilated.

Who Thinks Up Those Titles For Errol Flynn's Pictures?

(Mr. Brady, an instructor in the speech and drama department at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post's theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.)

By Leo Brady

WARNER Brothers must maintain a special staff of leprechauns to give titles to pictures made by Errol Flynn. Like "Cry Wolf" at the Metropolitan. It relates to the story all right but it does seem a cryptic and distantly allusive way of identifying a Flynn vehicle.

CRY WOLF.

Warner Bros. release of Henry Blanke production. Directed by Peter Godfrey; screenplay, Catherine Turney, from a novel by Marjorie Carlton. At the Metropolitan.

THE CAST.

Mark Caldwell	Errol Flynn
Sandra Marshall	Barbara Stanwyck
James Demarest	Richard Basehart
Senator Caldwell	Jerome Cowan
Jackson Laidell	John Ridgley
Angela	Patricia White
Beaket	Rory Mallinson
Marta	Helen Thimig

And Introducing
Geraldine Brooks as Julie Demarest

The picture is a mystery melodrama which has been entrusted to Director Peter Godfrey, who would appear to be Warner's current choice in the creep-and-scream section. Mr. Godfrey has better luck here than he did with, say, the "Two Mrs. Carrolls," but he is still presented with a script which calls for fairly routine treatment and a plot that is in the end dissatisfying. The surprise of the denouement is equivalent to the shock you get when the magician really does saw the lady in half. You feel you've been cheated—to say nothing of how the lady feels about it.

Auspicious Beginning

An old dark house with sinister servants is the setting and the film begins auspiciously enough. Barbara Stanwyck arrives at this mausoleum—which looks dangerously like a similar pile inhabited by Joan Crawford in "Possessed"—by means of a racy if astonishing opening sequence in which a sprite on a horse gallops alongside a limousine against a background of Franz Waxman's William Tellian music. The remarkable thing about this scene is that nobody mentions the horse. Miss Stanwyck doesn't even say, "Look, a horse." She seems to accept it as a matter of course.

Dictator of the household turns out to be Errol Flynn. He is obviously in cahoots with the shady domestics and giving niece Geraldine Brooks a hard time. Miss Stanwyck, displaying athletic abilities heretofore unrealized, steals around the corridors, rides in dumbwaiters, balances on chimney gutters and climbs fences before she is able to straighten everything out.

During the course of her investigations, Flynn says things to her like, "I want to probe behind that sphinxlike exterior." Barbara slaps him, apparently under the impression that he wrote the line.

Takes Some Talk

It takes quite a lot of talk to get this business under way—you can understand that horse after the conversation sets in—but the action begins eventually and you may find there is enough movement plus enough suspense to make you put up with a situation in which you are forced to root for the wrong team.

Flynn looks pretty sphinxlike himself most of the way and Miss Stanwyck still talks as though she were being held under water. Richard Basehart would seem to be okay although all his scenes are murky and you'd never recognize him again. Geraldine Brooks, who labors under that self-conscious billing the movies have taken to giving new players, is pretty and pleasant and may well turn out to be an actress.

All in all, a standard entry in the screams-in-t h e-night department, although the ending of "Cry Wolf" may make you cry uncle.

IT SAYS right here that Hollywood has discovered a new kiss. New or old, Robert Cummings and Susan Hayward seem to be making the most of it in this scene from the Walter Wanger film, "The Lost Moment"

Mediterranean Conditions Better,

Leghorn, Italy, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Officers and enlisted men at Mediterranean command headquarters said today that their commander, Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, was riding more in his jeep and less in his limousine since the newspapers back home had made him a public figure.

They noted a considerable improvement in "general conditions' 'around Leghorn. This improvement, they said, coincided with the charge of Robert Ruark, Scripps-Howard newspaper columnist, that Lee was living like a monarch and mistreating his enlisted men.

Soldiers pointed out that Italian police had replaced military police along the main street that Ruark called "Bent-Arm Boulevard." The signs in front of Lee's headquarters, which used to read "sedans only"—reserving all space for staff cars—has now been changed to "passenger vehicles" only.

Military vehicles no longer carry officers from Leghorn to Viaregion twice a day. The officers now ride trains.

Enlisted men said they were now provided "much better" bus and truck transportation to the beach.

17 Get Awards At Arlington YM Campfire

The Arlington YMCA climaxed its summer camp season last night with a final "campfire meeting" at which awards were presented to 17 of the 200 campers for outstanding achievements.

The event was held at the Kirkwood rd. headquarters.

Fourteen of the awards went to winners and runners-up in contests to determine the best all-around boys and girls in the junior and intermediate classes. The other three were presented to prize-winners in a hobby contest, held earlier yesterday as a feature of the closing day's program.

Selected as the best all-around campers on the basis of attitude, participation in camp projects and service to the camp were Tommy Butler, 11, 825 N. Jefferson st., and Roselyn Sours, 12, 1235 N. Irving st., in the intermediate class, and Bobby Steele, 10, 5703 N. 7th st., and Charlotte Ale, 10 5239 Carlyn Springs rd., in the junior class. All four received YMCA camping emblems mounted on placques.

Medals Are Awarded

Hobby contest prizes, consisting of gold, silver and bronze medals, were awarded to George Jordan, 10, 509 N. Garfield st., first place; Carl Muskat, 9, 1304 N. Pierce st., second place, and Paul Herrman, jr., 12, 3308 N. 23d st., third place.

Jordan's winning entry was a unique collection of handmade pins and brooches fashioned from tiny sea shells and painted with water colors. Young Muskat displayed a set of wooden airplane models, complete with a seaplane base and landing field, while Herrman's third-place entry was a collection of more than 100 Army insignia.

Presentations by Goodman

All of the awards were presented by L. T. Goodman, executive secretary of the YMCA and director of the camp, as the feature of a program which included storytelling, songs and a one-act play by a group of the campers.

Runner-up awards in the "best all-around" contests went to the following:

Intermediate boys—Ronny Kinney, 11, 1509 N. Herndon st., and "Doc" Koneczny, 14, 3066 N. Pollard st., tied for second place, and Peter Reimer, 11, 1411 N. Hudson st., third. Intermediate girls—Betty Kinney, 14, 1509 N. Herndon st., second, and Helen English, 1307 N. Kirkwood rd., third. Junior boys—Rodney Nichols, 5436 N. 17th st., second, and Emmett Barkley, 8, 1323 N. Vernon st., and Bunky McPherson, 8, 1008 N. Randolph st., tied for third. Junior girls—Beth Richards, 10, 909 N. Livingstone st., second, and Linda Wev, 9, 851 N. Harrison st., third.

Butter, Egg Prices Show Steady Rise

Two dollars will buy the Washington housewife a dozen eggs and a pound of butter and precious little else.

A general survey of prices yesterday showed that eggs in some independent stores are selling for as much as 86 cents and butter 91 cents.

Chain store prices ranged from 65 to 77 cents a dozen for eggs and from 87 to 89 cents a pound for butter.

Prices for butter are no higher now than they were a year ago but eggs even at the chain store price were an average of 15 cents a dozen higher than this time last year.

One chain store executive explained that price increases in both commodities are normal for this time of year.

Butter, he said, has risen 6 cents in the past two weeks and there is no reason to believe that it won't go higher.

The Agriculture Department explained that pastures in the Middlewest, source of most butter sold in this area, have been drying up, forcing farmers to feed their cattle high-priced grain.

Prospects of a short corn crop also have had a disturbing influent, also resulting in price jumps, the department said.

Advance costs in chicken feed was given as the main reason for the high price of eggs. Another factor is a shortage of laying hens—the result of the good prices poultry has been bringing farmers.

Prices of meat in the Washington market have been steady for the past several weeks, a spokesman for a large group of meat retailers said. He pointed out, though, that those prices are as high now as they ever have been.

Somebody's Stuck No Matter How You Look at It

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—Mrs. Jeanette Smith watched happily yesterday when a paperhanger walked in and started to redecorate her living room.

He was halfway through when the landlady appeared and told him he was in wrong house. He was supposed to be next door.

The paperhanger picked up and left Mrs. Smith looking at walls with two patterns of paper.

She appealed to Magistrate August Kozlovsky who said he will try Tuesday to work out an agreement whether more paper goes up, the misplaced comes down or Mrs. Smith remains with her unique half-and-half scheme.

Capital Transit Net Up 68% During July

By S. Oliver Goodman

Happier days have arrived for Capital Transit Co. as result of the fare increase in mid-May.

The company yesterday reported a 68.8 per cent increase in July net income, despite an 8.9 per cent decline in revenue passengers. That extra 1 2/3 cents a ride you've been paying (plus 25 cents more per pass) piled up $2,388,876 in operating revenues for the month, a gain of $69,922 or 3.1 per cent over July, 1946. This happened despite the fact that 3,053,102 fewer revenue passengers rode than in same month last year.

Net income for the month totaled $82,714, against $49,000 last year. In addition to fare increase, a big help was a $11,094 decrease in interest charges and a drop of $30,807 in provision for depreciation.

Despite the July upturn, Capital Transit's net for the first seven months still makes a sorry showing. The company profited $186,905 as compared with $876,812 in the corresponding 1946 period, or a drop of 78.7 per cent. Principal factor was soaring operating expenses, which aggregated $12,571,959 in seven months against $11,488,904 in comparable 1946 period.

RECORD CLEARINGS: Washington bank clearings totaled $256,924,526 in August, setting a new all-time high for this month. Cumulative clearings for the first eight months aggregated $2,187,424,443, a gain of $177,095,537 or 9 per cent over the same 1946 period. Monthly totals compared as follows:

	1947	1946
February	239,049,317	214,598,191

Tuck Names Apperson, King To Fill Official Vacancies

Richmond, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Governor Tuck today appointed Harvey B. Apperson, member of the State Corporation Commission, attorney general to succeed A. P. Staples, newly named to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, and named W. Marshall King, Fredericksburg mayor and attorney, to Apperson's post on the SCC.

The two appointments filled vacancies which resulted from the Governor's appointment last night of Attorney General Staples to the State's high tribunal to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Associate Justice George L. Browning on Tuesday.

Both appointments, as did that of Staples, become effective immediately and are for periods extending until 30 days after the convening of the General Assembly for its regular session in January, 1948.

The Legislature will elect an attorney general for the remainder of Staples' unexpired term, which runs through mid-January, 1950, and a member of the SCC for Apperson's unexpired term extending to February, 1952.

HARVEY B. APPERSON
Gets new post

Staples

King

Appointment by the Governor is tantamount to election by the General Assembly, according to State house veterans.

Apperson will become attorney general after 34 years' experience as lawyer, legislator and member of the corporation commission.

Elected to the State Senate from the old 22d Senatorial District in 1933, he served on the finance, privileges and elections, public institutions and education, and roads committees. He was chairman of the Virginia advisory legislative council from 1942 to 1944. In 1936 he served on the legislative study commission which worked out widespread amendments to the State ABC laws.

A former president of the Roanoke Bar Association and a member of the American Legion, he was elected to the SCC by the General Assembly in January, 1944, for the unexpired term of the late William Meade Fletcher, and was re-elected by the Assembly two years later for a six-year term.

King, Mayor of Fredericksburg since 1936, is a former president of the League of Virginia Municipalities and formed grand exalted ruler of the Elks in Virginia.

He is a member of the board of visitors of VMI and a director of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank in Fredericksburg. In 1945 he served as State campaign manager for Governor Tuck, Attorney General Staples and the entire Democratic ticket in that year's general election.

Staples said today that he probably will join the Supreme Court at its October term. The court will meet in Staunton, Monday, but Staples said at least a month will be required to close out pending matters in his office.

The term of the late Justice Browning will run through January 31, 1953.

Staples was elected to the State Senate from Roanoke in 1927 and reelected in 1931. During his terms as a senator, Staples served on the legislative commission which planned the State's liquor control system.

Former Gov. George C. Peery appointed Staples as attorney general in 1934 to succeed the late John R. Saunders, and he was elected in 1936 by the General Assembly to fill the remainder of the unexpired term. He was elected by the people for four-year terms in 1937, 1941 and 1945, only one time having opposition.

Elgin Urges Md. Again Inspect Autos

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 29 (AP).—State Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. Lee Elgin today proposed resumption of safety inspections for Maryland adtomobiles, trucks and buses.

"Last year we killed 417 people on our streets and highways," he declared. "If we get the right kind of inspection, we can cut that by one third. Saving the lives of that many people is important, isn't it?"

Elgin said legislation requiring semiannual safety inspections at State-operated garages was "buried in committee" at this year's session of the General Assembly.

There already is an inspection system on the Maryland statute books but it was suspended by gubernatorial decree in 1941 as a war emergency measure.

"The Automobile Trade Association is meeting in Ocean City next Friday and I am going to ask them to resume the inspection. I believe they can get the spare parts and the mechanics now, and I hope to resume the work," Elgin said.

"I still hope to get legislation which will provide for inspections at State-operated stations," he explained.

The bill introduced in the Legislature early this year would have set up an inspection station in each of the 23 counties and three for Baltimore and Baltimore County. Each vehicle would be inspected twice a year and the owner would pay a $1 fee when he got his registration tags.

W. Va.'s Marshal Has Fireman's Holiday in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—West Virginia's State fire marshal, Carlisle Raper, came to New York to join the American Legion fun and get away from fires, but today found himself in the midst of one.

Fire broke out in the kitchen of a luncheonette near the Pennsylvania Hotel, the Legion's headquarters, chased 50 customers out and drew a crowd of thousands that included many Legionnaires.

One of the first on the scene was Marshal Raper, who had heard the siren and rushed over from his room in the nearby Hotel Martinique.

DRUM POINT BEACH
Not promises—Not Dreams—but a reality. The first announcement of DRUM POINT BEACH made mention of big doings—and NOW they are a reality. New streets, new homes under construction, and new sections being opened up offering still more and more attractive cottage sites for the prudent investor.
DRUM POINT BEACH is the perfect setting for idyllic summer vacations and for year 'round living also. Many of the people who have already purchased large attractive homes, have planned for their retirement in this private paradise where the steadily lapping waters of Chesapeake Bay sing a soothing lullaby through the leaves and branches of the stately trees.
From your comfortable retreat at DRUM POINT BEACH you'll pity pent up friends. You will enjoy the miles and miles of wide white sandy beach and the swell fishing in the 4 sparkling clear spring-fed fresh water lakes.
Make it a point to come down today, tomorrow, or any day of the week and pick out a large attractive wooded cottage site, either on the water or overlooking the water. There is always a representative on the property to show you around and to discuss the easy terms on which a purchase may be made.

CAPE LEONARD
Why is Cape Leonard the fastest selling vacation land of its kind in Maryland? Why have so many prominent, desirable families bought homesites at Cape Leonard? Cape Leonard is only 46 miles from the District line. It is a large salt-water peninsula surrounded by lakelike clear, blue water, with white sandy bottom. Cape Leonard has exceptionally wide, winding roads and big towering shade trees. This peninsula is always swept by cool, delightful breezes and is located between the world famous Solomons and Broomes Islands. This parklike, restricted community offers opportunity for the entire family to live and play in one of nature's beauty spots. Cape Leonard has ideal swimming, fishing, crabbing, boating and two all-year protected harbors. There are also contractors on the property at all times; they will help build and finance your home now. See the homes already completed on Indian Circle. Unusually large waterfront lots. Fast paved highways right to our entrance. Mr. Smith is on the property at all times. Select your lot now. Directions: Drive out Penna. ave. se., left on Alabama ave. (Route 4) to Marlboro, then Solomons Island rd., through Prince Frederick to Broomes Island rd.; turn right, follow signs to Cape Leonard. Cape Leonard, Inc., Bowen Bldg. NA. 0370.

Pentagon Is No Joke to Loyal Folks Who Work There

The many stories which have been told about the Pentagon move Helen L. Fisanich of 3325 18th st. nw., to spirited rebuttal.

Helen is a secretary in the Adjutant General's office, and she says there's little or no truth to the yarns and jokes about the Pentagon and its inhabitants. She writes:

"Yes, it's big. But it's a well-planned working unit, designed for maximum efficiency, comfort, and convenience.

"True enough, it's immense; it has miles of corridors, almost limitless facilities, acres of space, and so forth.

"But its real greatness stems from its occupants. They're men and women of all ages, colors, and creeds, from all parts of the Nation —all working together amicably for a common purpose.

"They gripe, like any other Americans—about the weather, bus service, housing, the food they're served, and lots of other things.

"But they stick to their jobs and do their work well, for they're the solid, indefatigable unit that's the Pentagon."

Atta girl, Helen. In spite of current trends, one of woman's noblest virtues is still loyalty.

UPS AND DOWNS

Metropolitan Police Inspector Milton D. Smith postcards that he's visiting historic old shrines "up in Charlottesville, Va., or down in Charlottesville—which is proper?"

I don't know, Inspector. Does a policeman tell a speeder to "slow up" or "slow down"?

Or does he just say, "Where's the fire, buddy?"

DISCOVERY

Weston Dodson of 4657 34th st. South, Arlington, Va., appears to have spent some time in exploration on our side of the District line. He writes:

"Washington does have a Jay st. Take a Seat Pleasant trolley and get off as near as possible to the point where 43d pl. intersects Deane ave.

"The Capital Transit Co. right of way parallels Deane ave. here, just after leaving Minnesota ave. Jay st. runs nearly parallel with Deane ave., being the only street intersecting 43d pl. in its course between Sheriff rd. and the trolley tracks."

After checking our office map, Mr. Dodson, I take my hat off to you. But please note that it's "Jay st." and not "J."

NATCH!

During most of his 25 years of Army service, former M/Sgt. Paul W. Cable of 1443 Ridge pl. se., worked with wood.

He was assigned to the woodwork shop at Bolling Field, and was in charge of the shop from 1932 on.

Cable

Now Citizen Cable has retired, and will climax a quarter of a century of woodworking for the Army by going into business for himself.

You guessed it—he's opening a cabinet shop, and will build custom made cabinets.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three two-month-old kittens and their mama. The mother cat catches moles, and I think she'd also catch mice—if we had any." (ALexandria 3598).

MARKED CARS

This has been worrying me all week.

I notice that some traffic policemen mark the tires of parked autos on the tread, whereas others mark the sidewalls of the tire.

The object, of course, is to keep tab of how long the car has been parked. If the cop returns and finds the marked car still there, it's time for a ticket.

A chalk mark on the tread quickly wears off when the car is in motion. But a mark on the sidewall could remain for days—and cause an innocent motorist to get an undeserved ticket.

Or at least that's the way it seems to me. Is there an explanation?

SHOCK TREATMENT

The doctor says my blood pressure is too low, and he prescribes some medicine to raise it.

Why fool with these half-way measures, doc? Just hand me your bill.

Grin and Bear It

"Pop's bedtime stories are pretty dull—but the threats he makes if we don't go to sleep are super-duopers!

Injured Helen Hayes Passes Buck

ACCIDENT: Dick Rodgers, the composer and co-producer of "Happy Birthday" learned that his star, Helen Hayes, had 10 stitches taken in her arm—when she slipped in the bathtub and the porcelain fixture broke as she tried to grip it—and telephoned her immediately. Miss Hayes started to explain how it happened. "I know all about such things," said Rodgers—whose father was a distinguished doctor and whose brother is a distinguished doctor. "Don't you know better than to have a porcelain fixture in your bathroom? The medical records show that porcelain fixtures are the No. 1 cause of accidents" . . . "Well, Dick," replied Miss Hayes, "the fixture was put in by a decorator—Dorothy, your wife."

SUCCESS: In his forthcoming radio series Al Jolson is surrounding himself with a capable staff with which he will cooperate fully. Some years ago, when Jolson first was trying to crack radio, he made a recording under the supervision of Carlo D'Angelo, the radio director. Jolson would bob and weave during his performance—just as he does when he's on stage. D'Angelo stopped him twice, and reminded him that radio was different—that bobbing and weaving made it impossible for the microphone to receive the full tones. "Listen, you," Jolson told him, "for this kind of singing I got five million dollars. What have you got?" . . . D'Angelo replied: "Friends."

DISPUTE: Trouble's brewing at Time, Inc., where Newspaper Guildsmen are rebelling at a new editorial policy enunciated by the magazine's editors. Under this new policy a staff member whose outside writings—including books, broadcasts, newspapers and other magazines—are in conflict with the editorial policies of Time, Inc., becomes subject to "separation from the staff." This editorial control applies even to fiction pieces for other publications.

COMFORT: One of General Wild Bill Donovan's staff members tells the story of a night after an American invasion had begun and General Donovan, as always, participated fearlessly. He was accompanied by an officer who was familiar with the invaded territory and who had selected a fine house as the proper billet for the general. When they arrived at the house Donovan protested that this was too rich for his ease—that he couldn't sleep in such a fine house, with paneled walls and exquisite furnishings, while other soldiers were sleeping in makeshift beds. The other officer called to a GI: "Corporal, go outside and dig a fox hole for General Donovan to sleep in—while I take over in here."

CHATTER: Sinclair Lewis has abandoned the play he's been writing. He leaves for Minnesota next month to do some research on a new novel . . . Citizens of every State in the Union and of 60 nations have purchased raffle tickets for the car which is exhibited at 5th ave. and 42d st. every night. The raffle is being sponsored by the 77th Division Association, to pay off its mortgage . . . The Brooklyn Dodgers may be seeking a successor to Secretary Harold Parrott because of his unavailability . . . Jimmy Dunn will do "A Slight Case of Murder," the Runyon-Lindsay play, a few weeks here, sharing the profits with the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund.

TALENT: Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was introduced to a violinist who asked Vanderbilt about his racing stable and stud-farm. "I'd like to know one thing," said the violinist, "How come you didn't have a horse entered in the Kentucky Derby or in the Santa Anita Handicap?" . . . "For the same reason you don't play Carnegie Hall," Vanderbilt shrugged, "—not enough to go with."

ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF LABOR UNIONS?

DO YOU FAVOR THE RIGHT TO STRIKE?

A coast-to-coast Gallup Poll, reported in tomorrow's Washington Post, brings you America's answers to these two questions. The Gallup Poll has tested America's attitude toward unions several times since 1937. That year 72% expressed approval of unions. In 1939 this had dropped to 68%, in 1940 64%, and in 1941 61%. Is the postwar trend up or down for unions? Sunday's Post brings you the answer, shows you also what proportion think strikes should be forbidden. Don's miss this chance to compare your own attitude with that of others. Remember—the Gallup Poll appears only in The Washington Post in Washington.

Road Salesman

He has to travel day and night . . . To earn his loaf of bread . . . And take a chance that he will have . . . A place to rest his head . . . His business is to call upon . . . The merchants low and high . . . And try to sell the ones who think . . . They do not want to buy . . . His bags are filled with samples and . . . The ads that he displays . . . To introduce his product and . . . To catch the buyer's gaze . . . Some people think that all he does . . . Is roam around for fun . . . But actually he has a job . . . And tries to get it done . . . And while he may be happy and . . . Content at times to roam . . . He usually is lonely and . . . He longs to be back home.
